Fay, Blick Seek to Shut Another 29 Bottle Clubs

Police Collecting Evidence Against All They Believe Violate Charters

By Benjamin Bradlee
Post Reporter

The Government hopes to close at least 29 more after-hours clubs in Washington, in addition to the 11 against which it has moved already.

Lieut. Roy Blick, police vice squad chief, revealed yesterday he is collecting evidence against "all the clubs that are not living up to their charters."

George Morris Fay, United States Attorney, said that as soon as he gets the evidence from Blick he will move to close down these clubs.

Blick said 103 clubs are chartered to operate after hours, and at least 40 of them are operating illegitimately.

Fay filed petitions in District Court Monday to dissolve the charters of 11 bottle clubs. He charged the charters, incorporating the clubs for "social uplift," and "literary, musical and scientific benefit," were shams and subterfuges for violating liquor and gambling laws.

Will Ask Court Order

Fay said he would ask Judge Richmond B. Keech today to order the bottle clubs to show cause why their charters should not be dissolved. A hearing date early in April will be sought, Fay said.

Neither Fay nor Blick would name the additional clubs against which evidence is being collected.

But as the Government attack was intensified, the clubs pounced on what they feel is the perfect loophole.

"Say they dissolve the charters on one day," Charles Ford, attorney for several clubs said. "There is nothing in the law which prevents the clubs from going down to the Recorder of Deeds next day and getting a new charter."

"Do you mean it will take the Government about four weeks to dissolve the charters, and only take you about four hours to get a new one?" Ford was asked.

"Right," he replied.

Licensing Weighed

One club operator said plans were being drawn up to form a federation of clubs. The federation would hire counsel and petition for an injunction restraining the Government from dissolving club charters, he said.

Fay is proceeding against the clubs under a statute which orders him to seek to dissolve charters of corporations which "abuse, misuse, or nonuse" their charters.

Superintendent of Licenses C. T. Nottingham said the possibility of licensing after-hours clubs was on the agenda for the next meeting of licensing authorities, March 27.

"It's high time the District did something about this problem," he said, "to protect the citizens and the businessmen."

Legislation has been drafted by the Corporation Counsel's office to license places where alcohol may be consumed. Only places where liquor may be sold are covered now.

Margaret Culkin Banning To Speak at Book Lunch

Mrs. Banning

Four authors will speak at the season's third Book and Author Luncheon sponsored by The Washington Post, March 24 at 1 p.m. in the Statler Hotel. They are: Margaret Culkin Banning, "Give Us Our Years" (Harper); Clare Barnes, jr., "White Collar Zoo" (Doubleday); James Burnham, "The Coming Defeat of Communism" (John Day), and Cmdr. William Lederer, USN, "All the Ship's at Sea" (Sloane).

Tickets for the luncheon are $3.00. They are available at the following book stores: Airport, Ballantyne's, Brentano's and branches, Community, Kann's, Francis Scott Key, Sidney Kramer, Paul Pearlman, Pursell's, Saville, Whyte's, Woodward & Lothrop; in Alexandria, Better Mouse Trap and Chequire House; in Bethesda, Center Book Shop.

Attlee Government Is Winner In Third Vote of Confidence

London, March 14 (AP).—Prime Minister Attlee's socialist Labor Party tonight thwarted a new Conservative attempt to oust it from office after promising to be more vigilant henceforth on matters of Government spending.

By a vote of 308 to 289, the Laborites defeated a Conservative move to censure Attlee's Cabinet for not keeping within the bounds of the budget in the past.

This was the third Conservative challenge the Laborites have beaten down in six days.

Laborite whips apparently were confident of victory tonight, despite the fact their party has only a six-seat majority in Commons. This time, ailing Labor members were spared from appearing. In the earlier tests some had been rushed to the chamber from sickbeds.

Had Attlee's government lost tonight's vote it would have been obliged to resign, thus bringing about a new general election.

Barrett Refuses Senators Priority List on New Posts

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett yesterday balked at furnishing a Senate Appropriations subcommittee a "priority listing" of the 44 new positions and 10 in-grade promotions he wants for his department.

"I feel they all have A-1 priorities," he told Subcommittee Chairman Lister Hill (D., Ala.) near the close of the second all-day public hearing on the city's 199-million-dollar spending program for the year starting July 1.

Barrett was the first city official declining to comply with Senator Hill's routine request for priority listings for the subcommittee's guidance.

Last month Barrett won a sympathetic hearing from the Davis Crime subcommittee on his suggestion that an additional 650 men were needed on the police force to give Washington proper protection.

And early in Barrett's testimony yesterday Hill interrupted to say: "I happen to be one of those who frankly feel you ought to have about what you want in personnel. This is a big city."

In addition to 44 new men on the force, including 30 privates, Barrett is seeking funds to promote six lieutenants to captains and four detective sergeants to lieutenants for duty as department heads.

Of these promotions, said Barrett, "I wouldn't know which ones to pick. If you're not going to give me all the promotions, don't bother to give me any."

Morale would decline, he said, if only a few of these promotions were granted.

Young, School Officials

Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young and school officials enjoyed a friendly, free-sailing presentation of the city's permanent improvement program and school construction plans at the morning session.

Young outlined the city's plan for a 60-million-dollar capital outlay program over five years. It will go forward at a 12-million-dollar-a-year rate and on a pay-as-you-go basis, he emphasized. (The pending 1951 budget carries $11,700,000 for new construction out of the city's general fund.)

Tracing the school department's construction requests, School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning praised the Commissioners' attitude toward school needs, though admitting they had trimmed the school budget from 33 to 28 million.

In other testimony, District Budget Officer Walter L. Fowler disclosed a $900,000 supplemental request will be made for additions to Browne Junior High School, 24th st. and Benning rd. ne., to relieve overcrowding.

Chief Engineer Joseph A. Mayhew of the Fire Department urged approval of 146 more men to place his force on a 60-hour w ek. The department now works a 72-hour week.

School Aid Bill Shelved, 13-12, By House Unit

Labor Group to Study Loans and Grants For Construction

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The House Labor Committee yesterday sidetracked the 300-million-dollar Senate-passed Federal aid-to-education bill by a vote of 13 to 12 but overwhelmingly agreed to study loans and grants for school construction.

Rejection of the Senate's Thomas bill all but slammed the door on enactment of any general aid-to-education law this session but two moves for a more limited approach were scheduled today:

1. Representative Andrew Jacobs (D., Ind.) said he will attempt to call up in the committee the GOP-sponsored Kearns bill confining Federal aid to education to "needy" states. (Cost, about $136,000,000.)

2. Representative Thomas H. Burke (D., Ohio) indicated he will move separately for approval of his own bill earmarking some 300 mil-

Rapist Told To Leave U. S. Or Go to Jail

A Virginia judge yesterday gave an American sailor, convicted of raping a 12-year-old girl, a choice —either leave the country, or spend 10 years in prison.

The sailor is Hospitalman 3/c Damon P. Wills, 25, of Diamond, W. Va. The judge is Edward L. Oast of the Norfolk County Circuit Court.

Judge Oast, on the recommendation of the court parole officer, sentenced Wills to 10 years' imprisonment but suspended the sentence on condition that Wills and his family go to Trinidad, British West Indies.

According to the Associated Press, Wills and his wife told the court they wanted to go to Trinidad, Mrs. Wills' home. They have two children.

Navy spokesmen declined comment on the sentence but said that a report on the case will be sent to the Navy Department "for action."

Sesqui Commission Meeting Seen Clearing Up Problems

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

The full Sesquicentennial Commission meets today for the first time in 11 months with every indication it will get the long-stalled Freedom Fair back on the track.

Today's meeting, called for 10:30 a. m. in the Senate District Committee room of the Capitol, is expected to do these things:

1. Formally set the new dates for the Fair, with the grand opening expected April 15, 1951. The show would run two full summers, probably closing down from November, 1951, to April, 1952.

2. Give the Sesqui's energetic new boss, Paul M. Massmann, power, with the executive committee's approval, to select a new site, if one can be found. Most likely alternate site is the National Training School for Boys grounds, off Bladensburg rd. ne., but a shift from the current East Capitol st. site is by no means certain. A couple of other sites on public land also are under consideration but the problem of obtaining authority to use them may rule them out.

3. Approve the proposed new Sesqui corporation which would actively run the fair. Approval of the Attorney General is still needed before this legal move can be made, however.

Massmann, in town less than 10 days, is confident that after today's formal actions the wheels will begin spinning. He expects the leasing bureau, which probably will be attached to the new corporation, to start selling exhibit space again after 2½ months of inactivity following a hold-up order by the Sesqui executive committee.

The Sesqui general manager, a veteran of fairs all over the Nation, already has been floored with inquiries from industry, indicating willingness to buy far more than the 400,000 square fet of space first planned for the fair. A new site probably would at least double that area while replanning of the present site, already under way just in case a new one can't be found, is likely to boost the figure considerably.

U. S. Opens Japan-China Trade Gates

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

At last, after months of official soul-searching, the Administration here has made up its mind what kind of trade to permit and encourage between occupied Japan and Communist China.

United States Government "advice" has gone to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, as Supreme Allied Commander, to set up controls over the export of a wide range of Japanese goods of potential military value.

MacArthur can let such goods move into Communist China and North Korea if he is satisfied that they are needed for normal civilian requirements. He can forbid their export if he thinks they are wanted for stockpiling or for transshipment to Russia.

Among Controlled Exports

Among the controlled exports will be such Japanese products as steel rails, steel plates, boiler tubes, generators, copper wire, locomotives and mining machinery.

Goods of direct military value will be forbidden to move into Communist-controlled areas; goods that are harmless from the security standpoint will be exported freely to whatever extent the Communists are ready to buy them and pay for them.

It has taken the Administration almost six months to agree on a Japanese export policy, although MacArthur asked for Government "advice" as a matter of urgency long ago. The question had to be settled on what are called the "highest levels," and President Truman himself took a personal interest in it and helped to solve it.

No more important decision about Japan has been taken since the surrender, for almost 40 percent of Japan's exports before the war moved into what are now Communist-controlled areas.

Other Officials Hesitant

Today Japanese trade with the mainland has been reduced to a trickle, while Japan maintains herself with the help of American appropriations. MacArthur himself, and most other officials concerned, are convinced that Japan cannot recover and become self-supporting without restoring some of her former markets and supply sources on the continent.

But other officials here were hesitant about giving MacArthur the go-ahead signal for fear that Japanese goods would build up the war-making power of the Soviet Union. Complicating the problem was the fact that the United States technically cannot give orders to MacArthur, who is supposed to act on behalf of all the Allied powers, including Russia herself.

The present decision, tactfully couched as "advice," is a compromise that at least enables MacArthur to go ahead.

The new policy on exports to Communist China differs somewhat from existing American policy toward the satellite countries of eastern Europe, and for reasons

Clementis Replaced in Czech Cabinet

Foreign Minister May Be Victim of Purge, Western Sources Say

Prague, March 14 (AP).—Vlado Clementis, Czechoslovakia's suave foreign minister for two years, was replaced today by a tough, Kremlin-trained underground fighter.

Clementis, it has been suspected by Western sources, bore a "Western taint" in the eyes of ascendant Communists here because of his wartime service in London with the government-in-exile of the late Eduard Benes.

The official news agency said Clementis asked to be relieved of his duties and that President Klement Gottwald accepted his resignation at the weekly cabinet meeting today.

Then Gottwald handed the job over to Viliam Siroky, deputy premier and a product of the Moscow Communist training center.

No reason was given for the resignation. Clementis has not been reported in ill health. There was no announcement of when he turned in his resignation or what government job he would get—if any. But he still is a member of Parliament.

The job switch caught Western diplomats by surprise.

Although they had heard shake-up rumors, beginning last September when Clementis was away as a delegate to the United Nations Assembly in New York, they had no evidence to back them up.

One diplomat said he thought the move may mean a hardening in Czechoslovakia's anti-West campaign, and possibly the start of a series of trials of the so-called "pro-Western" group in the Communist Party.

More Cotton Acreage

Price Prop Conferees Agree; Cull Potatoes Denied Support

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Senate-House conferees yesterday voted to add 1,200,000 acres of price-supported cotton and 100,000 acres of price-supported peanuts to this year's crop acreages.

They also voted to pay freight on potatoes given free to public and private welfare agencies, hospitals, schools, etc..

At the same time they beat down efforts by Republican Senators George D. Aiken (Vt,) and Edward J. Thye (Minn.) to keep potato price supports unchanged. The committee voted 12 to 2 to deny price supports this year to surplus potatoes that did not meet strict marketing qualifications on a voluntary basis. This would remove price supports from culls or lower grade potatoes.

No supports at all will be granted potatoes next year unless the industry votes to observe strict, Government-enforced marketing regulations.

This last provision brought immediate action by the Senate Agriculture Committee, whose Chairman, Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.) was also chairman of the conference committee.

Thomas has called a meeting for today to draw up a law permitting Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan to order an election on marketing quotas for 1951.

Marketing quotas are a device by which the Government can enforce crop restrictions by limiting the amount each farmer may sell. Two-thirds of the growers of any crop must vote in favor of quotas in order to put the law into effect.

The conference threw out a Senate provision to increase this year's wheat acreage by about 4½ million acres. It also turned down an appeal by Representative Clifford R. Hope (R., Kans.), one of the conferees, to add 800,000 acres to the wheat crop. A new bill, granting an increase in wheat acreage, is now being studied by the House Agriculture Committee.

The 100,000 increase in peanut acreage was voted to rectify a discrimination in acreage allotments granted to Texas and Alabama.

The end of the 11 days of conference did not find all happy. Majority Leader Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.) wasn't sure last night if he would sign the report. Because it partly corrected the potato situation, however, he thought he would agree. When asked if President Truman would sign the measure, he shouted: "I don't know."

Brannan Assails Tax Plan of Farm Bureau

The row between the American Farm Bureau Federation and Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan burst out again yesterday. Brannan's office released testimony Brannan gave at a hearing of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Brannan sharply criticized recent recommendations of the AFBF that farmer cooperatives be taxed for undivided profits. He termed them "devoid of merit."

He added that supporters of this legislation "want to go back 30 years."

His Attorney Refuses to Drop Appeal

New York, March 14 (U.P.). Valentin Gubitchev will stay in the United States and fight to clear his name of spy charges, his attorney said today.

This startling development in the case of the Nation's first convicted Russian spy came when the Government refused to suspend Gubitchev's 15-year jail sentence unless he promised never to appeal his conviction.

The Soviet diplomat's attorney, Abraham L. Pomerantz, refused to withdraw his client's appeal. The lawyer didn't make it clear whether this move had his client's blessing. Gubitchev had accepted the Government's clemency offer to go home to Russia and never return and was planning to sail for his homeland on March 20.

But the Government made it clear today that if he wants to go home, he cannot appeal his case here or abroad.

"I will not let Mr. Gubitchev have his cake and eat it," declared United States Attorney Irving S. Saypol. "If he wants to proceed with the appeal, he will have to do it from jail. He must forego any future proceedings if he is to leave the country."

Pomerantz went to Federal Court today prepared to cancel the appeal, but changed his mind when Saypol said Gubitchev could not appeal after he returns to Russia.

"The deal is off," Pomerantz announced. "There probably will be no resentencing Monday. We're going ahead with the appeal, because the Government wants us to give up our right to appeal on resentencing."

After announcing that his client would not withdraw his appeal, Pomerantz asked Judge Thomas W. Swan to set bail so that the Soviet diplomat could go free pending the appeal.

"It seems to me he has the key to his own locker," Judge Swan said cryptically. "This motion for bail will be considered Tuesday."

Gubitchev, 33-year-old third secretary of the Soviet Foreign Affairs Ministry, was sent to the Federal House of Detention last Thursday, immediately after he and Miss Judith Coplon were sentenced.

Miss Coplon, his convicted partner in conspiring to slip United States secrets to Russia, was still in jail, too. Her attorneys have been unable to raise the additional $20,000 bail necessary to gain her freedom. They said today that they hoped to raise the bail by noon Wednesday.

Saypol explained to Judge Swan in court why the Government will not permit Gubitchev to leave this country unless he permanently drops his appeal.

He said the Government does not want to see a situation arise with Gubitchev out of the country, able to continue to litigate and propagandize from abroad.

"For illustration, if that were permitted and if the judgment of conviction were affirmed by the court of appeals, there would be no available way to effectuate the judgment of conviction," Saypol said.

Mate Embalmed While Still Alive, Woman Alleges

Quincy, Calif., March 14 (U.P.).—A Los Angeles woman sued county officials for $200,000 here today on charges they embalmed her husband while he was still alive.

Mrs. Calhoun L. Huber claimed Coroner M. H. Schooler and Deputy Coroner John F. Moody were responsible for embalming her husband, Edward J. Huber, before he was dead.

Huber was reported dead January 11, 1949, by workers at a construction camp where he worked.

Persons Listed By McCarthy Now Total 9

25 Employes Cited To Tydings as Poor Risks for Security

Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) yesterday classified as pro-Communist four more persons who, he said, are or were State Department employes.

This brought his total to nine, the others having been cited in previous testimony before a special Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee investigating his charges.

McCarthy then temporarily suspended his presentation, saying he would not be ready with other cases for "some time," presumably not until next week at the earliest.

He handed Subcommittee Chairman Tydings (D., Md.) a list of 25 names of employes of the State Department or related agencies who, he said, were poor security risks.

But he declined to give Tydings, publicly or privately, the names of the persons referred to in the now famous "81 cases" he outlined on the Senate floor on February 20, despite urgent demands for them by the chairman.

Neither has he, in his testimony

French Reds Lose Effort to Stall Arms Aid Debate

Paris, March 14 (AP).—The National Assembly rejected by a vote of 404 to 179 today a Communist effort to sidetrack debate on the arms aid pact with the United States.

Only Communists and their sympathizers voted for a motion to halt debate until the Assembly can consider proposals for disarmament and the outlawing of atomic weapons.

D. C. Grocer Shot By Gunman

A 48-year-old grocery store proprietor was shot in the shoulder last night by a gunman who got into his car just as he was preparing to drive home.

The victim was Morris Forman of 6508 13th st. nw., proprietor of Forman's Market, 500 Irving st. nw. His condition at Garfield Hospital was described as "not serious."

Forman told police when the gunman ordered him to "move over or I'll kill you," he leaped out and began running. The thug followed, hit him in the back of the head with the butt of the gun, then shot at him, Forman reported.

Miss Kenyon Denies Red Link Before Senate Unit

Former N. Y. Judge Cites Data to Prove Long-Time Views About Communism

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Dorothy Kenyon yesterday recited a blanket, unqualified and rip-roaring denial of charges by Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.) that she was a Communist sympathizer, and documented it point by point.

She did it, in an attitude of controlled seething, before a special Foreign Relations subcommittee that last Wednesday heard McCarthy name the former U. S. representative to a United Nations commission as his first case in his proposed demonstration of Communist infiltration in the State Department.

McCarthy did not attend the afternoon session when Miss Kenyon had her innings. But when she finished, even Senator Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), acting on the subcommittee in a sort of vice-consular role for McCarthy, said he "had not the least belief" that Miss Kenyon was "subversive or disloyal in any way."

Documentary Proof

Miss Kenyon, a former New York Municipal Court judge, gave records documenting about 11 years of robust attacks on communism and on the particular Communist officials and Red fronts organizations that she battled with in the U. N.

She frankly admitted sponsoring many of the "subversive" organizations that McCarthy had linked her with, but gave a full explanation of why they were not Communist-dominated when she was connected with them.

Telling portions of her testimony included a letter she had written to one organization—the only one to which McCarthy had shown her linked after it was declared subversive by the Justice Department —for failing to take her name off its letterhead as she had requested years before.

In her letter, she denounced the organization—the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship —for abandoning its original aims, and making a mockery of its name and alleged purposes by doing nothing but making "apologetics for the Russian government" and attacking the United States.

1939 Paper Used

Also put in evidence was a document she used when she was a candidate for municipal judge in 1939. In it she said she regarded "with horror and loathing the Hitler-Stalin Pact," and considered "any fusing of the brown and red dictatorships (as) a treacherous blow to world civilization."

Other evidence showed roaring attacks against her as a "slanderer" of Russia by Russian officials she fought in the Commission on the Status of Women.

When she completed her statement, she drew thunderous and prolonged applause from an over-

Girl Loses Job, Refused to Sign Ober Affidavit

Baltimore, March 14 (AP).—A State worker who refused to sign the loyalty affidavit required of all public employes by the Ober law lost her job today.

She is Miss Doris Shamleffer, personnel examiner in the State Department of Employment and Registration. The Ober antisubversive law was reinstated yesterday under a mandate of the Court of Appeals.

Miss Shamleffer is one of three Quakers who refused to sign the affidavit. State officials stated they are satisfied that none of the three has subversive leanings.

Meanwhile Attorney General Hall Hammond said today he hopes to find a suitable man for assistant Attorney General to help administer the Ober law within a few weeks. Hammond didn't mention any names of candidates under consideration.

Zoo's Elephants Embark March 20, Due in U. S. Apr. 12

The two baby elephants bound for the Washington Zoo will sail from Bombay on March 20, the Indian Embassy announced yesterday.

They and their mahout will arrive in New York about April 12.

The year-old animals, gift of Prime Minister Nehru to the children of America, will travel aboard the SS Steel Fabricator of the Isthmian line, the Embassy said. The line loves animals and is doing it for free.

Truman Just Dandy (Oops!) As Southern Seas Subside

Aboard Presidential Escort William C. Lawe, March 14 (AP).—President Truman felt just dandy today as his yacht ploughed through the Atlantic swells.

Moderating seas cheered the President and his cruise companions and one by one they got out of their berths on the Presidential yacht.

Nobody, however, was advocating another trip by sea to Key West aboard the USS Williamsburg after the first two days of this voyage.

The President took several turns around the deck, then sat down on the fantail. He wore a sweater and a long-billed cap, and pulled a blanket over his knees.

However, Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross strongly hinted Mr. Truman will not try it this way again, but will make any future trips to the "Little White House" by plane.

The President is due at Key West at 6:30 a. m. (EST) Thursday. He left Washington Sunday.

He was confined to his cabin when the Williamsburg began bucking rough seas off Hatteras yesterday morning.

His Army aide, Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, was still "prostrate" today. Assistant John R. Steelman hadn't been sighted since Sunday night.

"Are you getting any work done?" reporters asked Ross.

"The answer is no, period."

Ross said his most vivid recollection of it would be "a nightmare in which I am going to see oranges rolling around on the floor."

How has the party been spending the time?

"Mainly horizontally. But we are reviving in spirit. To be honest with you it has been a pretty damn rough trip."

He said the President has filed his income tax, and that Mrs. Truman and daughter, Margaret, may join the President at Key West during the latter part of his stay. The vacation is expected to last three weeks.

McCarthy Adds Four To Communist List

so far, called any person he named an outright Communist. He has not named as yet the "57 card-carrying Communists" he said in recent speeches are in the State Department.

The question of McCarthy's producing for the subcommittee the 81 names may blow up into another full-fledged row between him and Democratic members of the subcommittee.

The individuals listed by McCarthy yesterday were:

1. John Stewart Service, consular officer in Calcutta, and formerly "one of the dozen top policy-makers" in the department's Far Eastern division.

2. Gustavo Duran, State Department Foreign Service officer from January 1943 until his resignation in October, 1946, and presently a United Nations employe.

3. Harlow Shapley, America's most famous astronomer, who is a delegate to an advisory commission to the United States delegation on the United Nations Educational, Social and Cultural organizatons.

4. Frederick L. Schuman, Williams College professor, who, McCarthy said, has ben a "lecturer" at the State Department.

No word had been heard from Service, in Calcutta, by last night. The other three issued vigorous denials of McCarthy's charges.

The first two cases, as McCarthy conceded, are old, and have been causes celebres at various times in the past years. With the other two men, it may be difficult for McCarthy to support the contention that they are or have ever been State Department employes in any direct way.

Case Rests on 'Amerasia'

McCarthy's case against Service rested exclusively on his involvement, in June, 1945, with the magazine "Amerasia," and his arrest, with five others connected with the periodical, on charges of espionage in connection with the theft of several hundred classified Government documents.

Service and two others were not indicted by the Grand Jury called to hear the case. McCarthy, however, cited reports of a House committee that investigated the matter, suggesting that the failure to indict was by reason of a technicality.

McCarthy's view was that Service was directly involved with either the supplying or receiving, illegally, of the stolen documents that were found in the Amerasia offices.

He said Service was in any event "a known associate and collaborator with Communists and pro-Communists . . . consorting with admitted espionage agents."

Group Opposed Grew

Furthermore, McCarthy said, he was associated with a group which aimed, and succeeded, in obtaining the ouster of Undersecretary of State Joseph C. Grew because they disliked his China policy. Grew's successor, Dean Acheson, promptly reinstated Service in the department and promoted him, McCarthy said.

McCarthy admitted that Service had been cleared by State Department loyalty boards three or four times, and added he understood recently that a fifth clearance was given.

But, he said, he also understood that the Loyalty Board of Appeals and Review had done a "post-audit" of the last clearance as recently as March 3. It rejected the findings, McCarthy said, and noted that it did not feel it could give him clearance, and recommended a new board, or panel, in the State Department be appointed to rehear the case.

The State Department said later yesterday it had not received any such word from the Review Board.

Its Executive Secretary, Lawrence V. Meloy, told a United Press reporter "I never heard of the (Service) case." But Meloy told a Washington Post reporter he had no comment and could not state whether or not a case was or had been before the board.

Army Reports on Duran

On Gustavo Duran, McCarthy presented to the subcommittee copies of United States Army intelligence reports identifying the man as a Communist in an important spot in the secret police of the Spanish Republican army.

According to McCarthy, Duran, Spanish born, later became an American citizen, worked in the office of the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs, and was employed as a Foreign Service officer by Spruille Braden, in January, 1943, when Braden was Ambassador to Cuba. Later, Braden brought him back to Washington as an assistant when Braden became Assistant Secretary of State.

Then he was allowed to resign from the department in October, 1946, and shortly thereafter became a U. N. official. McCarthy implied that someone in the State Department was protecting him and a Cabinet member helped him get the U. N. job.

That job, McCarthy said, is in the International Refugee Organization, where Duran works at "screening refugees coming into this country."

Had Good Indorsement

The intelligence reports McCarthy submitted naming Duran as a Communist during the Spanish Civil War were extensive. But among other exhibits offered by McCarthy was a letter from the then Assistant Secretary of State for Administration stating that he and the department's security committee recommended favorably on—i. e. cleared—Duran.

At that time, the Assistant Secretary was Donald Russell, one of the most redoubtable Communist-chasers and housecleaners in the department's history. The Secretary then was James F. Byrnes.

From Lake Success, Duran yesterday vigorously denied that he is a Communist or ever was one.

Duran told reporters he suspected most of the information presented by McCarthy was nothing more than a translation of an article that appeared four years ago in the Spanish newspaper Arriba, the official organ of the Falangist Party.

Statement Full of Errors

Duran said McCarthy's statement was full of errors. He pointed out that McCarthy had described him as an employe of the International Refugee Organization (IRO) while actually he is an official in the Social Affairs Department of the U. N.

"I've never been a member of the IRO," he said in a statement.

Referring to charges that he was an officer of the international brigade during the Spanish Civil War, Duran said:

"As a Spanish citizen, I was a lieutenant colonel in the legal Spanish Republican army, but not in the international brigade. I am now an American citizen."

He also denied he was recommended for his present U. N. position by a member of President Truman's Cabinet.

Referring to charges he resigned from the State Department under pressure, he said:

"At my request an investigation was conducted by the State Department in 1946 and it resulted in my being cleared. I freely and voluntarily resigned from the department to take up a job that had been offered me in the Department of Social Affairs of the United Nations secretariat."

Case Against Shapley

The case against Shapley rested on his alleged affiliation with a host of organizations officially labeled subversive.

Of the joining proclivities of Shapley, head of the Harvard Observatory, there has been no doubt for many years. More questionable, however, is whether he is a State Department employe or whether the Secretary of State appointed him to his UNESCO advisory post.

Both the State Department and Shapley deny it. Actually, Shapley was appointed to the job by and as representative of the American Association for the Advancement of Science's board of directors, under terms of an Act of Congress. He obtains no salary, but only transportation cost and a $10 per diem.

McCarthy listed 10 organizations classified as subversive that Schuman belonged to, and called the political science professor "one of the closest collaborators in and sponsors of Communuist-front organizations in America."

Gave One-Hour Lecture

But, according to State Department spokesmen, his connection with the Department consisted entirely of a one-hour lecture he gave, in a series by private citizens. The lecture course was designed to bring Department officials in closer touch with differing public points of view on various matters.

Lecturers, who were unpaid, were drawn from a variety of sources—officials, members of Congress, newspaper editors and columnists, etc. Schuman spoke on June 19, 1946. He has been a consistent and outspoken critic of State Department policy.

In addition to the four persons he named publicly, McCarthy gave the subcommittee one name in private. He said it was of a man, formerly in the State Department, with a police record of homesexual activities.

He was allowed to resign from the Department, McCarthy said, and now obtains a $10,000 to $12,000 salary from the Central Intelligence Agency.

At the end of yesterday morning's presentation by McCarthy, Tydings asked him to deliver "today or tomorrow" the names of the 81 individuals concerned in the cases mentioned last month. He said he wanted all of them so that he could ask for Government files on all suspects at once.

McCarthy Demurs

McCarthy demurred, and said Tydings' staff had already been given plenty of leads to follow and that the staff should get the files on the names he had already supplied.

"Don't you tell me how to run the committee," Tydings snapped. Nevertheless, he got no promise from McCarthy as to when the names would be supplied.

Late in the afternoon, Tydings appeared to be even angrier than before. Talking to reporters, he condemned McCarthy's position and asked what kind of a business McCarthy was engaged in—in demanding investigation of "dangerous security risks" and then refusing to disclose the names to the subcommittee so it could investigate.

Tydings meets with his subcommittee in closed session this morning to determine further procedure.

Sadowski Reports 'Frank' Was Utilized by Communist

By The Associated Press

Representative Sadowski (D., Mich.), said yesterday he unwittingly allowed a man he now understands to be a prominent Communist to use his congressional mailing privilege.

Sadowski, ill at his home here, related the circumstances through his secretary, Mrs. Elizabeth Mitchell. Mrs. Mitchell said Sadowski on August 24, 1949 received a letter from George S. Wuchinch, United States Veterans Hospital, Aspingwall, Pittsburgh, Pa., asking for copies of a speech Sadowski had put into the Congressional Record August 1.

In reply, Mrs. Mitchell said Sadowski sent Wuchinch 2000 copies of the speech, along with franked envelops entitled to free mailing.

"The Congressman never had heard of Wuchinch and doesn't know to what purpose the material was put," Mrs. Mitchell said. "The request was not unusual. We often mail speeches which are requested."

Matthew Cvetic has told the House Un-American Activities Committee that Wuchinch was active in the Communist Party and various "front" organizations in the Pittsburgh area.

Meanwhile, Cvetic testified yesterday that Communists are using in America the same tactics by which Reds took over eastern European countries. He said the end is "liquidation" of the more moderate forces with which Reds join up for so long as it serves their aims.

The witness, who rose to high place in the party while serving as an FBI under-cover agent, did not go into detail on what he meant by "liquidation."

But he said playing along with the Reds is "dangerous." And he was emphatic that the plan for America is the same as the one actually carried out in areas where many who worked with the Reds have met the executioner.

Cvetic, known to Communists in Pittsburgh as a fellow party member for the last seven years, rattled off dozens of names in a list of persons he said were Communists active in the affairs of Henry Wallace's Progressive party in Western Pennsylvania.

At the head of Cvetic's list of Progressive party officers whom he identified as Communists was Zalmon H. Garfield, Pennsylvania state director for the Progressives.

Miss Kenyon Flatly Denies McCarthy Charge

flow crowd in the big Senate Caucus Room. Chairman Tydings (D., Md.) of the subcommittee had to warn the group against further demonstrations.

Following her testimony, there was released a statement signed by 13 New York attorneys, all prominent and many very conservative, calling McCarthy's charges against her "fantastically false." It said she "has never had the slightest sympathy with communism in any of its forms" and that, "no citizen of New York is a more loyal American."

Signers included former Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson, former War Labor Board Chairman William H. Davis, Newbold Morris, defeated Republican candidate for Mayor of New York last year; former Gen. Edward S. Greenbaum, Ordway Tead, Robert Moses, John W. Davis, C. C. Burlingham and others.

Importance of Kenyon Case

McCarthy, whom Miss Kenyon had previously called a "cowardly liar," told reporters that he was staying away from the session because he did not want to be involved in a personal fight with the lady.

He said the important element in the case was not Miss Kenyon herself, but the question of how she was cleared by the State Department, without having appeared personally before its loyalty board, when the files showed so many affiliations with subversive groups.

In a detailed statement, Miss Kenyon said:

"I am not, and have never been, a Communist. I am not, and never have been, a fellow traveler. I am not, and never have been, a supporter of, a member of, or a sympathizer with any organization known to me to be, or suspected by me of being, controlled or dominated by Communists. . . .

"I can and do state, with the absolute confidence born of my personal and positive knowledge, that there does not exist and never has existed any genuine document that proves or even tends to prove that I have ever knowingly joined or sponsored or participated in the activities of any organization known to me to be even slightly subversive."

Hickenlooper Cross Examines

The 62-year-old former judge challenged anyone to porve the contrary. She admitted that her name had been used, at times with her consent, in connections with organizations proved later to be subversive, but which "at the time, seemed to be engaged in activities or dedicated to objectives which I could and did approve."

Senator Hickenlooper conducted a long cross-examination, producing the various exhibitions that McCarthy had used in his original charges. The result was such that Hickenlooper found little to argue about.

He said he thought, however, that all McCarthy was intimating when he presented the case that there had been cause, by reason of the alleged affiliations, to question Miss Kenyon as a security risk.

Senator McMahon (D., Conn.), a member of the subcommittee, jumped hard on that one.

He quoted McCarthy as having said her "Communist activities were . . . deep rooted." And Judge Kenyon added that he had referred to her helping a "fellow Red."

One Affiliation "Impossible"

One alleged affiliation Miss Kenyon denied as "impossible." It showed her joining a group criticizing President Roosevelt in 1941 for whipping up war hysteria. She presented proof that she had been active in behalf of exactly the opposite point of view, attempting to get the United States to aid the Allies more vigorously.

Thus, she said, it was "incredible" to think she could have made such a statement.

"I've heard that word before," Hickenlooper observed wryly. Last year he touched off a months-long investigation of the Atomic Energy Commission when he charged its chairman, David E. Lilienthal, with "incredible mismanagement."

"I didn't mean to plagiarize, Senator," Miss Kenyon replied.

Some of the affiliations Hickenlooper quizzed her about, she admitted with pride, and gave the reasons for her pride. Others she said she could not remember. She also admitted that she doubtless made "one or two mistakes," but said, "When I have made a mistake it has always been from generous motives—never from selfish political motivation."

Procedure Questioned

Hickenlooper apparently attempted to substantiate one of McCarthy's opinions, that in view of the file showing her many affiliations, the State Department should have discussed them with her before giving her security clearance.

As a purely hypothetical matter, he asked Judge Kenyon, should not officials have talked to her about her associations, when so many, allegedly subversive ones, were shown in her file.

That would have been silly, Miss Kenyon replied in effect. Would any investigators expect her to say that she indeed favored overthrow of the Government by force or violence? It was much more "intelligent" for the department to have done what it did—namely, to have looked at her activities "in the round, and not just a segment," and to have talked to people who knew her.

"If you were to look into all my activities, Senator," she said, "you yourself would think, without further questioning of me, that I was a good security risk."

$419,000 Surplus Nice Cushion in Democratic Party

By The Associated Press

A $419,000 surplus from the Jefferson-Jackson dinners sends the Democratic Party riding into the 1950 congressional elections on a comfortable financial cushion.

Republicans didn't fare so well during the first two months of this year, but they held no $100-a-plate dinners, either. However, their national committee showed an operating profit of about $26,000 during the two months.

The financial statistics of the two major parties were filed yesterday with the clerk of the House under election laws requiring periodic reports.

Italy Announces Land Reform Plan

By Barrett McGurn

Rome, March 14 (NYHT).—A broad plan of land reforms to combat the misery on which Communists have been capitalizing was announced here today by Prime Minister Alcide de Gasperi.

De Gasperi said that:

1. The government within one week will ask Parliament to permit a quick land reform in several hundred square miles where land reform will be easiest to accomplish and where action is needed most speedily.

2. The government will present over-all land reform to Parliament within the same time limit. This will cover an area 2½ times the size of its quick reform. Discussion in Parliament is expected to consume about a year.

3. The government will ask Parliament to authorize creation of a new organization for a 10-year, $1,600,000,000 public works program in Italy's poorest area, the south.

4. To finance the costly program, Marshall Plan grants and earlier U. S. funds will cover more than half the cost for the first two years, but increased internal taxes will have to carry the bulk in the third year.

De Gasperi implied Italy will need further American loans and expects to get them if it succeeds in convincing Americans that Italy is doing everything possible to help herself.

De Gasperi said agreement has been reached on a system of gradually increased confiscations which will hit poorly cultivated, large properties the hardest.

Beware Reds' Talk of Peace, Dulles Warns

New York, March 14 (NYHT).—Former Senator John Foster Dulles asserted tonight that the cold war "is putting our free American society in greater peril than did the Axis, even during the dark days of 1942."

We were fooled at Yalta by Russia's talk of "democracy," he said, adding:

"Let us not be fooled now by their talk of 'peace.'" He urged the United States to make the "momentous decision" of carrying on a cold war counter-offensive that would really crack the iron curtain.

"The 'peace' agreement that the Soviet leaders seem to want would, at best, be no more than an arrangement whereby they would promise not to wage a war they do not plan, with weapons they do not have, while we would be physically and morally disarmed.

"Stalin must indeed chuckle when he reads that many in the United States seem willing to pay Russia a good slice of 50 billion dollars if only Russia will agree to disarmament in the one and only respect in which we probably have clear superiority . . .

"There is one way, and only one, in which to check and end the kind of menace that confronts us. That is to recognize our solidarity with those everywhere who love liberty and who are threatened by despotism. We should make common cause with all men who would be free."

13 Koreans Go to Jail for Red Contacts

Seoul, Korea, March 14 (AP).—Thirteen members of the Korean national assembly were sentenced to prison today for violating national security by having contacts with Communists.

Assemblymen Ro Il Hwan and Lee Moon Wun were sentenced to the longest terms—10 years.

At the trial, Ro and Lee were declared to have admitted they had received money from alleged Communists. Both testified confessions were taken from them under torture.

The state charged all 13 had made written confessions, but introduced no others after Ro and Lee testified they were tortured.

Eight-year terms were given Kim Yak Soo, a prewar Communist turned Nationalist and an assembly committee chairman when arrested, and Pak Yoon. Four others drew six-year terms. Five were sentenced to three years.

Thomas Bill Asks Oil Import Limit

Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.) introduced yesterday a bill to limit imports of oil and oil products to five percent of what this country uses.

The limitations would not be effective during periods when United States petroleum supplies are inadequate to meet our requirements.

Parliamentary Vote Is Sought On Leopold

Brussels, March 14 (U.P.).—The Social Christians, Catholic party in power in Belgium, announced today it wanted a special joint session of Parliament to approve the return to the throne of exiled King Leopold.

The party's decision was relayed immediately to Premier Gaston Eyskens, who was conferring with Leopold at Geneva, Switzerland, on the King's narrow victory in Sunday's referendum on his return from exile.

Such a session was certain to be a stormy one.

A few hours earlier, the Socialist-controlled Belgian Federation of Labor had announced it would call a nation-wide general strike if Leopold tried to return to the throne without parliamentary approval.

Sunday's advisory plebiscite gave Leopold 57.68 percent of the total vote. The King said he would not return unless he got at least 55 percent. He has not yet announced whether he considers the narrow margin above that a sufficient expression of popular approval to warrant his return.

New York Begins $50,000 Attempt At Rainmaking

New York, March 14 (AP).—The water-short city of New York laid $50,000 on the line today and told scientific rainmakers to bring on the rain.

Meteorologist Wallace E. Howell said: "It is possible to have a man-made rain over the watershed area in a week."

He said the rain attempt would start within a few days.

Actor's License Bill Offered as Curb to 'Lewd'

By The Associated Press

Criticizing the "brazen" romance between Ingrid Bergman and Roberto Rossellini, Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.) yesterday introduced an actor's licensing bill that he said would curb "immorality and lewdness" in the movies.

Johnson called Miss Bergman "a powerful influence for immorality" because she bore Rossellini's child while she still was married to Dr. Peter Lindstrom.

The Colorado Senator told the Senate that R.K.O. had engaged in "nauseating commercial opportunism" by its "shameless exploitation" of Rossellini's picture, "Stromboli," in which Miss Bergman was starred.

The Senator also criticized Eric Johnston, head of the Motion Picture Producers Association, for permitting the film to be shown in this country.

The measure also would provide a $10,000 fee for licensing a motion picture in interstate commerce. Such licenses could be denied if the film could be "reasonably" expected to contribute to juvenile delinquency, or if it encouraged "a contempt of law, or public or private morality."

Exhibition of unlicensed films would be banned. Criminal penalities for violation of the law would range from $1000 to $10,000 fines.

Asserting Eric Johnston is "merely the front for the money changers for this association," Johnson declared:

"With one eye on the cash register and the other constantly winking at evil, he has permitted scandal to pile up on scandal until the movies, a powerful influence for wholesome life, have lost the confidence of the American people."

The Motion Picture Association of America promptly retorted that his proposal is "a police state bill" which would subject the industry to "government slave-control." It termed Johnson's criticism of the industry a disservice to the Nation.

Big Bombers Pound Airport At Shanghai

Hongkong, March 14 (U.P.).—Nationalist bombers blasted Lunghwa the once-great international airpor at Shanghai today, and an air force claimed it was 80 percent de stroyed.

The raid was announced from Taipei, Formosa, after the Chinese Communist navy made its first appearance in an attempt to crack the Nationalist blockade and forced a Natioalist warship to take refuge under Macao shore batteries.

The Nationalist air force said six flights of B-24 Liberators followed one another over Lunghwa, dropping 500-pound bombs. Reconnaissance reports described huge fires burning, the runways torn up and the control tower wrecked.

Dispatches reaching here said the Communist navy consists of armed trawlers and junks and a few gunboats which deserted the Nationalists.

U. S. Liner to Evacuate 1600 From Shanghai

By The Associated Press

The State Department said yesterday arrangements have been made for the American President Liner General Gordon to remove 1600 foreigners from Shanghai, 310 of them Americans.

Press Officer Lincoln White said Nationalist Chinese authorities have "agreed not to interfere" with the vessel when it goes to Shanghai about March 20. The Nationalist government has declared a blockade of the port.

No difficulties are anticipated from Communist authorities, White said.

From Paris

Jessup Flies To Answer McCarthy

Paris, March 14 (NYHT)—The United States is sympathetic to the wishes of Far Eastern peoples for "full independence" and believes the French union provides Indo-China with such an opportunity, Dr. Philip C. Jessup, the State Department's Special Ambassador, said here today.

He expressed this view before taking a plane for Washington, where he will be prepared to answer United States Senator Joseph McCarthy's charges that he has "an affinity for communism." Dr. Jessup said, good naturedly, that the allegations were not true.

The roving envoy, back from a tour of 14 Far Eastern countries, eased any anxiety about American policy in Indo-China.

Jessup said there was "no conflict" between State Department policy and the concept of the French union under which France guarantees the defense of the overseas members of the union. His remark seemed to indicate American aid in Viet Nam would be dispensed with French advice and assistance.

Japan's Trade Gates Opened

that have to do with China's more primitive and largely agricultural economy.

If Poland and Czechoslovakia, for example, wanted to buy steel rails or locomotives or mining equipment here, they probably would fail to get an export license. The reason is that these countries are relatively so highly developed industrially that such goods would be almost sure, in American eyes, to add to the Soviet war potential.

No such certainty exists in China, where industrial development has been slight and where existing industries are badly run down after years of civil war following a long Japanese war and occupation. Reports reaching Washington suggest that the Chinese Communists need certain Japanese exports to get their industries going sufficiently for normal consumer needs.

Machine Parts Needed

The Communists need spare parts for the Japanese-made machinery in their mines and factories. The Japanese, in turn, can get many necessary imports from China more cheaply than from the United States or other distant sources.

Among these Japanese needs are coal, iron ore, salt, soybeans and vegetable oils, assuming that the Chinese have them to sell. The Japanese could get coal from north China for a little more than half what it now costs them to import coal from West Coast American ports.

Ultimately, perhaps from three to four years from now, Japan is expected to be in a good bargaining position with Communist China, for Japan looks to a world market, and not just to China, to buy her goods.

But for the present the restoration of Japanese trade with China is of the utmost importance to Japan, and to the American taxpayer who helps keep the Japanese people fed and clothed. With MacArthur controlling exports to Communist areas, officials here are confident American security will be safeguarded.

'Character Reader' Accused of Witchcraft

Wilmington, Del., March 14 (AP).—The State of Delaware reached down its dustiest lawbook to bring a 23-year-old mother of two to court today on witchcraft charges.

Mrs. Helen Evans was arrested yesterday after police said "clients" complained she put a curse on them. In municipal court today, she was granted a week's continuance because her attorney is ill.

She denied the witchcraft accusation.

First 4 B-29s For Britain Fly Monday

Boeing B-29 Superfortresses are being supplied to Britain under the North Atlantic arms aid program, the Department of Defense announced yesterday.

The first four of them will be flown to England from Andrews Air Force Base next Monday, following ceremonies to be attended by leading British officials here and representatives of the Departments of Defense and State and the ECA.

When they take off the B-29s will carry RAF markings, but will be flown by American Air Force crews. The latter will remain in England until British crews have become familiar with the craft.

The announcement said the bombers will be the first MAP equipment actually to arrive in Europe. Last week some Navy carrier planes were turned over to a French aircraft carrier at Norfolk, Va., but the vessel has not yet sailed.

While officials refused to disclose how many B-29s will be turned over to the British, British sources indicated that between 70 and 80 of the Boeing bombers are involved in the program.

Air Force spokesmen said the craft will be equipped with "modernized" postwar engines, though not with the new aerial refueling equipment which is said to boost the combat radius of the B-29s from 2000 to 3000 miles.

Even without refueling, however, the bombers could reach most targets in Europe from their British bases.

Ex-German Loses Assets By Court Rule

Judge Edward A. Tamm of District Court ruled yesterday that the Alien Property Custodian has power to seize the property of German citizens who became residents elsewhere and never aided the mother country.

The jurist said that because of this, 80-year-old Richard Guessefeldt, now of Flushing, Long Island, cannot recover some $24,000 the Government has taken from him.

The decision may be "harsh" on the petitioner, Judge Tamm said, but the correction, if any is needed, must come through legislation and not through the courts.

Guessefeldt was born in Germany but became a native of Hawaii in 1896. He returned to Germany for a visit in 1938, but couldn't leave there because of the war. He never aided Germany and evidenced no intention of remaining there, the judge said.

Last December, Guessefeldt finally applied for American citizenship, said the judge who noted that this act appeared late.

Judge Tamm said that the fact that Guessefeldt has no "enemy taint" does not aid him since Congress clearly included persons in his situation among those subject to alien property laws.

Chinese Nationalists Assail Lie as 'Appeaser' of Russians

Lake Success, N. Y., March 14 (U.P.).—Nationalist China charged today that Secretary-General Trygve Lie's campaign to give China's United Nations seat to the Chinese Communists had "destroyed public confidence in the impartiality" of U. N. officials.

Nationalist Delegate Dr. Tingfu F. Tsiang sent Lie a blistering "formal protest" against his "China memo" in which Lie argued that China's membership should belong to whichever government "exercises effective authority" and is "habitually obeyed by the bulk of the population."

Tsiang accused Lie of "appeasing" Russia and attacking "the cause of freedom." He asked Lie to circulate his protest to all 59 U. N. members.

Lie later issued a reply saying: "I shall continue to carry out what I believe to be my duty as secretary-general of the United Nations and to serve the best interests of the organization as a whole as I see them. I reserve my right to answer the misstatements made by Dr. Tsiang when the question of Chinese representation comes before the Security Council or another organ of the United Nations."

The sharpest charge in the Nationalist protest was that the Norwegian U. N. chief was taking sides in the Chinese credentials issue and the U. N. paralysis stemming from Russia's resultant boycott campaign.

Tsiang said Lie broke a promise to him that he would not interfere further in the credentials impasse without consulting him first.

BALDNESS due to AGE?

Perhaps; but . . . your hair should grow fastest when you are 30 to 40!

Consult Ray W. Plasterer, one of the Nation's leading Trichologists

Think twice before you blame your thinning hair on your age, and let it go at that.
Age is not the trouble in most cases. Trichologists say that hair naturally grows most rapidly between the ages of 30 and 40—the years, oddly enough, when most men are getting bald! If your hair does not prosper during these years some local disorder (dandruff, dryness, or excessive oiliness) may be robbing your scalp of a healthy head of hair.
Bring your problems to the Hair and Scalp Clinic, let Ray W. Plasterer remove that local disorder, and normalize your hair and scalp.

Adm. Struble Given 7th Fleet Command

Vice Admiral Arthur D. Struble, deputy chief of naval operations (for operations), yesterday was ordered to take command of the Seventh Fleet in the Western Pacific.

He will relieve Vice Admiral Russell S. Berkey, now commander of the Fleet, in May. Berkey has been ordered home to become chief of Navy information.

Vice Admiral Donald B. Duncan, now commander of the Second Fleet in the Atlantic, will replace Struble. Vice Admiral Robert B. Carney, formerly deputy chief of naval operations (for logistics) succeeds Duncan.

At the same time, the Army announced several general officer changes. Maj. Gen. John W. Leonard, whose Ninth Armored Division led the Allies across the Rhine in 1945, will become deputy commander of the Sixth Army at San Francisco next summer.

He'll succeed Maj. Gen. Walter M. Robertson, who is slated to retire June 30. Leonard is now senior American military attache in England. Rear Admiral Delbert S. Cornell, now United States naval attache in England, will replace Leonard, while Col. Howard E. Kessinger, chief of staff of the Fort Sill, Oklahoma., artillery center, will become American Army attache in London.

Other Army changes:

Maj. Gen. Harry J. Collins, now commander of the Second Infantry Division, Fort Lewis., Wash., to command the New York-New Jersey Military District, with headquarters at Fort Totten, N. Y.

Maj. Gen. Laurence B. Keiser, now assistant commander of the division, to be its commander.

Maj. Gen. Ward Maris, previously announced as slated for the New York-New Jersey command, to G-4 section of the General Staff here.

Collins will succeed Maj. Gen. Lawrence C. Jaynes, recently named special assistant for civilian components to the Chief of Staff of the Army.

"POPE PIUS XII, PRIEST AND STATESMAN" starts this Sunday in The Washington Post. It will be published in 24 installments, daily and Sunday.

Basing Point Bill Compromise Wins Approval of House

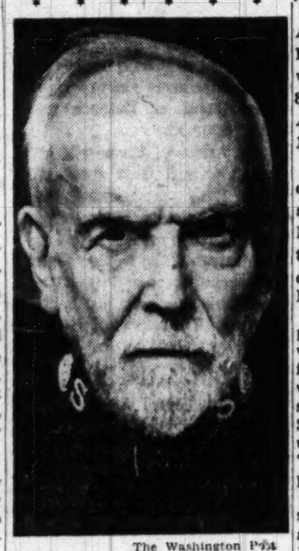
Basing point pricing legislation cleared its last House hurdle yesterday and now needs only final Senate approval to send it to President Truman.

By an unrecorded vote, the House approved a compromise of minor differences in Senate and House versions of the pricing bill passed previously by both bodies.

An effort by House small business champions to send the bill back to conference was beaten, 204 to 175.

The bill would clarify the anti-trust laws by stating that certain business pricing practices do not constitute unfair competition.

World Trade '2-Way Street,' Salvation Army Official Warns



The Washington Post
COMMISSIONER LAMB
"Isolationism is dead"

A visiting British Salvation Army commissioner, here on the latest of numerous personal goodwill missions he has made in his 83-year life, yesterday listed Anglo-American relationships as the No. 1 world peace force.

"If the United States and Britain can achieve social, political and spiritual unity, then we can tell Russia and other ill-disposed nations when and where to get off," declared Commissioner Charles Lamb.

Lamb, who has discussed world problems with leading officials of various nations and was recently feted with a birthday luncheon at which Prime Minister Attlee presided, warned that the United States will "encounter heavy seas" unless we realize more widely that "world trade is ever a two-way proposition."

Commissioner Lamb, whose sprightly step and speech belie his age, first visited North America in 1903 and has since "traveled the world" four times and has crossed the Atlantic "scores of times" on American visits, he said yesterday.

Commissioner Lamb advocates goodwill and patience toward Russia, up to a certain point. It does not make sense to apply present-day standards in our dealing toward Russia when that country is "100 or 200 years behind the times," he declared.

Attlee Survives New Test Vote

votes this time compared with margins of 14 and 25 votes in the two earlier tests.

Labor's victory followed by a few hours a statement by its chancellor of the exchequer, Sir Stafford Cripps, that a halt will be called in the expansion of Britain's costly national health service. Further, Cripps warned all other government departments to adhere from now on to their overall budget estimates.

Winston Churchill's Conservatives made a determined attack on overspending by various government departments of 1949-50 budget estimates.

So far, the departments have asked £148,402,365 ($415,526,622) extra for the year ending March 31. More than half this amount—£98,730,000 ($276,404,000)—is sought by the health service which has the task of providing free medical care for residents of the country. The service originally was allotted £260 million (728 million dollars) for the year.

Cripps told the house Britain cannot afford to go on increasing its outlay on the national health service. He even hinted that spending for this purpose may have to be cut, saying:

"We must bring expenditure on health into its proper proportion with food subsidies, education and all the other matters that vitally concern the safety and happiness of our people."

To most observers, this sounded like a plain warning to Health Minister Aneurin Bevan to pull in his horns. Bevan is regarded as being more to the Left than most of the members of Attlee's government.

Bevan called the Conservative motion "a concealed and cowardly attack on the National Health Service by those who have not the honesty to make it openly."

Pointing out that last year was the first year of operation for the Health Service, Bevan said:

"The estimate on the Health Service had to wait at least on one year's behavior of the population before it was possible to form the least estimate of what the expenditure would be."

Bevan promised: "There is going to be a tightening up of hospital administration. There must be a closer identification of the central government with the local units of hospital administration."

The health minister complained that the cost of patent medicines paid for under the scheme "has become a part of the racket of civilized society."

The Liberal Party's nine members abstained from voting tonight.

Capt. H. I. C. Crookshank, moving adoption of the Conservative censure motion, accused the government of suppressing the news about the extra spending during the election campaign. The estimate was presented to the new House March 6 for payment.

"It is going a little near to the suppression of the truth on the part of the government to have a general election campaign and not give any warning that these great bills were in the drawer awaiting declaration of the poll," Crookshank said.

Banished Chief Says British Seek Division of His People

London, March 14 (AP).—Seretse Khama charged today Britain is preparing to splinter the 100,000 Bamangwato people in his African kingdom "into conflicting fragments."

He asserted in an interview the British government hopes thus to crush tribal resistance to the order banishing him and his white wife from Britain's Bechuanaland protectorate for five years.

Commonwealth Relations Office spokesmen refused to comment. Patrick Gordon-Walker, Commonwealth Affairs Secretary, told Commons last week the order was issued in the interest of preserving the unity and well-being of the protectorate.

Seretse, an Oxford-educated Negro, married Ruth Williams, a former London typist, in September, 1948. A split developed among the Bamangwatos. Last June, however, the tribe voted to accept Seretse as chief regardless of the marriage.

Seretse's 25-year-old wife is still in the protectorate. One of Seretse's chief headmen talked with her in the mud-hut capital of Serowe today and told her the tribesmen had decided "to take all children out of schools" as part of their resistance to the British order.

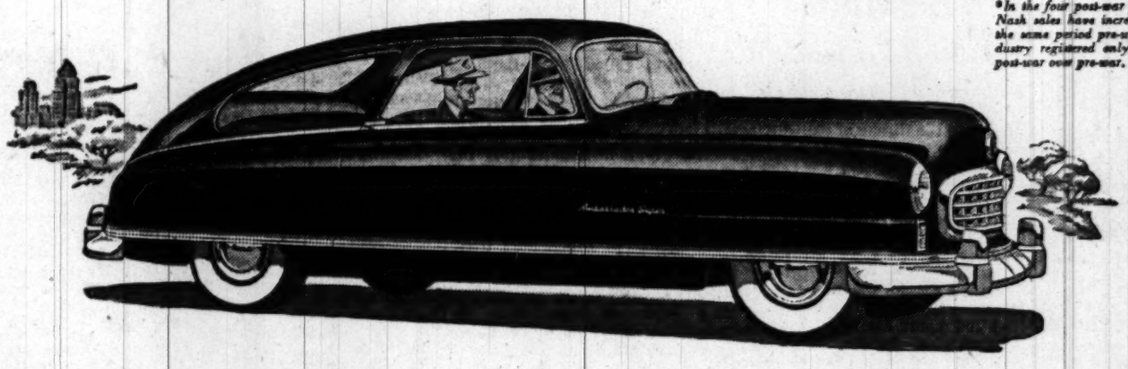
Nash sales growth since the war has been more than 4 times as great as that of the Automotive Industry as a whole* . . .

*In the four post-war years just ended, Nash sales have increased 95.7% over the same period pre-war, while the industry registered only a 21.3% gain, post-war over pre-war.



WHY NASH?

Why Nash? Because Nash was first to attack the problem of rust by Bonderizing and by development of more durable baked enamels.

Because today all sheet metal parts of a Nash Airflyte are many times more resistant to wear and fading.

Why Nash? Because Nash has consistently been first in the power parade—builder of valve-in-head engines for a third of a century—and a leader in high compression.

Because today Nash alone builds a valve-in-head engine of 7.3 to 1 compression ratio that gets premium performance with regular gasoline.

Why Nash? Because Nash invented, developed and introduced the first automatically-controlled, pressurized heating and ventilation system, probably the greatest single health, comfort and safety feature of the modern automobile.

Because today's Nash Weather Eye Conditioned Air System is still unequalled in efficiency and in the safety of fresh, untainted air drawn from outside, above the engine compartment.

Why Nash? Because Nash has been first and foremost in advocating—and delivering—greater gasoline mileage, as vital to our national economy and the conservation of our oil resources.

Because today Nash builds a big full-size car that delivers more than 25 miles to the gallon at average highway speed.

Why Nash? Because Nash is years ahead in aerodynamic design, to bring you the fullest benefits of streamlining principles.

Because today's Nash Airflyte cars by scientific wind-tunnel test have been proved to have 20.7% less air drag than the average of 10 other cars tested—with noticeably less wind-noise, less fuel consumption, and noticeably greater stability.

Why Nash? Because Nash, year after year, has been the "best buy" for generous passenger space and luggage room.

Because today's Nash Airflytes offer more combined passenger and luggage space, dollar for dollar, than any other car.

Why Nash? Because Nash has dared to pioneer and mass-produce the Unitized, welded body-and-frame car, long known to be more rigid, more durable, safer and forever free of squeaks and rattles.

Because today, 12 billion owner miles have proved that Unitized Nash Airflyte Construction has set a new standard for long life and economical operation.

Why Nash? Because Nash has been years ahead in the development of the car interior, increasing its utility, its space, its comfort, its safety.

Because Nash pioneered the curved, one-piece windshield on all models, and the clean, safe instrument panel with Uniscope. Nash Airflytes are still the only cars offering an Airliner Reclining Seat and the convenience of Twin Beds.

A&P Says Its Profit On Coffee Is 1 Cent

America's biggest grocery chain, the Atlantic & Pacific, makes only 1-cent a pound on its coffee, Francis M. Kurtz, president of A. & P. coffee division, told the Senate yesterday.

"We do everything but grow the coffee and brew it in the home," Kurtz added. "That 1-cent a pound is our total profit for procuring and processing the green coffee, importing, roasting, packing, transporting, grinding and retailing it.

The testimony of an A. & P. witness has been sought for a long time by the Agriculture subcommittee headed by Senator Guy M. Gillette (D., Iowa). The committee was set up to study price spreads in food.

Several weeks ago the committee engaged in an angry dispute with A. & P. over a failure of officials to appear when invited. Yesterday's session instead of revealing any shenanigans connected with the recent sharp rise in coffee prices, turned into a testimonial for the giant chain's marketing acumen.

Kurtz devoted his time to "what A. & P. has done to keep the prices of its coffee at relatively low levels, often 20 cents or more a pound less than the retail price of other coffees."

The result, he said, is that while coffee consumption has dropped, around 12 to 15 percent, A. & P. sales have increased.

Much of last fall's sensational rise in coffee prices, he said, was due to hoarding by housewives. He blamed some of that on a "front page" story in a "New York paper predicting coffee would go to $1 a pound."

'Flying Disc' Tales Still Widespread

By the United Press

"Flying saucers" were reported buzzing North America again Tuesday.

"Too fast for a bird, too small for an airplane," said a Colorado businessman who claims one chased his car.

Despite repeated denials by the Air Force and other official agencies that anything like a flying saucer exists, the following people declared the following:

Denver, Colo.—John D. Padilla and his stepfather said four saucers flew just under the clouds in formation around noon Monday, and at sunset four persons said they saw a single disc with a "long white tail" whiz across a golf course.

Mexico City—Hundreds of persons said they saw four saucers over their city Monday. Meteorologists calculated their altitude at 35,000 to 40,000 feet with weather balloon tracking instruments. North, at Monterrey, government airport inspector Francisco Martinez Soto said he watched one cross town in straight flight.

Du Quoin Ill.—Richard Lemmon, airport mechanic, said he and his wife were flying in a light plane February 27 when half a mile away they spotted a saucer 60 feet in diameter, 10 feet thick in the middle and thin at the edges. He saw it plainly, he said, but kept quiet because he feared he would be ridiculed.

Santa Fe, N. Mex.—Tom Coca said he watched two saucers fly across the highway Monday.

Durango, Colo. — Lloyd Locke and Harold Tanner were returning last week from a business trip to New Mexico when suddenly, they said, something dark, flat, and about 5 feet in diameter started following their car. "Hey, look at that bird," said Tanner. "Bird heck," said Locke, "no bird can fly that fast." Whereupon Tanner stopped the car, he said, and the saucer started circling the machine on a 25 or 30-foot radius at "tremendous speed," then flew away.

Group Votes To Keep Old Rubber Law

The House Armed Services Committee yesterday unanimously recommended that the present synthetic rubber law be extended, unchanged, for three years because of "unsettled world conditions."

The committee thus rejected President Truman's request for a freer hand in administering the Nation's war-built, Government-owned 700-million-dollar synthetic rubber facilities.

The Administration wanted authority to begin disposing of at least part of the plants, to private industry, under provisions aimed at insuring adequate production for defense needs.

Grand Juries Speed Income Tax Charges

By The Associated Press

In a race against the statute of limitations, Federal grand juries in all sections of the United States considered indictments yesterday against black marketers, racketeers, and businessmen suspected of evading income taxes on ther 1943 gains.

The Government can prosecute for attempted evasions in that year of high war profits only if the indictments are returned by midnight tonight or if some other formal step is taken, such as the filing of a bill of complaint.

The tax division of the Justice Department said it is a conservative estimate that 15 million dollars is involved. About 20 indictments have been returned since January 1, leaving some 60 to clean up.

In New York alone, one grand jury on Monday returned 23 income-tax indictments involving 34 individuals, nine firms and more than two million dollars. Many of those indicted allegedly tried to cover up money made in black markets.

Four New York indictments yesterday involved more than $800,000 in alleged tax evasions.

1735 Request U. S. Aid for Tax Forms

Yesterday turned out to be another peak day for the deputy collectors at the Bureau of Internal Revenue. Some 1735 Washingtonians came to the Bureau for tax information against 1697 on Monday, the previous "peak."

Today, last day to file your income tax return, is expected to be nearly as heavy.

So far this year, according to A. Parks Rasin, assistant to the collector in charge of the Washington office, 53,525 persons have come to have tax questions answered.

Meantime, the Bureau warned that tax returns this year will be scrutinized more thoroughly than ever before.

Electronic machines and several thousand new auditors are checking the 1950 returns, and the Bureau expects the additional men and machines will more than pay their way in additional taxes.

Christoffel Gets 2 to 6 Years

Harold R. Christoffel, former Milwaukee CIO union official, was sentenced yesterday to a two-to-six year jail term for lying to the House Labor Committee about his Communist connections.

Federal Judge F. Dickinson Letts, who rejected a defense plea for "leniency and mercy," refused bail and ordered him taken to the District Jail.

Christoffel, ousted president of the United Auto Workers local at the Milwaukee Allis-Chalmers plant, was convicted of perjury for the second time last month. The first conviction was set aside by the Supreme Court on technical grounds.

Within an hour after the sentencing, defense attorney Herbert J. Fabricant filed notice of an appeal with the U. S. Court of Appeals.

Fabricant also pressed an immediate appeal on the denial of bail.

Christoffel was found guilty of lying when he told the House committee in 1947 that he had never been a Communist and denied associating with prominent Wisconsin Communists.

Transit Company Begins Study of New Bridge Route

Capital Transit Co. officials said yesterday the company is making traffic studies to determine if it should establish a regular fare bus route over South Capital st. bridge.

The Public Utilities Commission Monday refused a request for an extra-fare express route across the bridge but said it would approve a route at regular fares. It also indicated that if CTC doesn't apply, PUC would investigate to see if establishment of such a route should be ordered.

Crime Inquiry No. 3 Proposed by Macy

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Representative W. Kingsland Macy (R., N. Y.) yesterday called for creation of a special House committee to make a Nation-wide inquiry into organized crime.

Macy's was No. 3 in the list of proposals for major Congressional investigations of crime.

Both the others are hanging fire. One, by Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) to investigate interstate aspects of crime syndicate operations, is caught in a jurisdictional fight between two committees, with a third committee sitting in judgment, and a decision yet to be made.

Davis Inquiry Waits

The other, by Representative James C. Davis (D., Ga.) calls for an all-out probe of organized gambling in Washington as part of a general inquiry into crime and law enforcement here. A request for $40,000 to continue the inquiry, already launched with extensive hearings, is pending before the House Accounts Subcommittee.

The accounts group is to meet today, but Davis said he will pass up today's opportunity to present a case for the $40,000, and wait until the return of Hyman I. Fischbach, counsel of the special District Crime Investigating Subcommittee, from a Florida vacation. Davis heads the subcommittee. No date has been set for Fischbach's return.

The Macy plan was written into a special House resolution he introduced shortly after noon. It calls for creation of a select House committee of seven members to be appointed by the Speaker. The committee would be given wide powers for an all-out attack on crime syndicates. Macy explained.

Scope of Investigation

Chief purpose would be to determine whether more laws are needed. The committee would have power to subpena all persons and papers required.

Senator Kefauver's resolution has cleared the Senate Judiciary Committee. It calls for a Judiciary subcommittee to make the study, and is pending before the Senate Rules Committee on the question of funds.

Also before that group is the claim of the Senate Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee that it is the body to make the investigation. Chairman Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.) contends his committee would have to handle legislation resulting from the study charted by Kefauver.

The question of what committee should get the Senate crime investigation assignment is being reviewed by a three-member Rules subcommittee, headed by Senator John C. Stennis (D., Miss.)

Rules Committee Chairman Carl Hayden (D., Ariz.) said yesterday the Stennis group will next meet on the Kefauver resolution next Wednesday.

For 2 Officers

Disorderly Conduct Case Is Dismissed

Disorderly conduct charges against two of four policemen involved in a fracas early Sunday yesterday were dismissed in Municipal Court by Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark King.

At the same time, after a three-hour closed hearing into assault aspects of the case, Assistant United States Attorney Andrew Howard annouced that "no charges will be placed by this office."

A speeding charge against one of the officers was continued by King until April 20 pending examination of the speedometer on a Vice Squad cruiser involved in the case.

Trial Board Session Slated

Charges against the men, Pvts. John Roy, 24, Burtell M. Jefferson, 25, Daniel R. Gonzales, 22, and Joseph D. Thornton, 32, involving police regulations, will be aired at a police trial board session, Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, announced.

He said the United States Attorney's office had agreed that the police department should take appropriate action. King said the disorderly charges were nolle prossed because of "insufficient evidence."

The officers, who had been suspended, were restored to duty as of 4 p. m. yesterday and transfered—Gonzales from the Fifth Precinct to the Fourteenth; Thornton from the Fifth to the Tenth; Roy from the Fourteenth to Eleventh and Jefferson, relieved of special detail duty at the Second Precinct and returned to the Ninth.

The charges, presumably involving conduct unbecoming an officer, are now being drawn. The trial board session is expected to be held this Friday or the following Friday.

Case Occurred Sunday

According to a report to Barrett made earlier by Inspector George Wallrodt, a vice squad cruiser crew spotted an auto speeding north across the Sousa Bridge about 3:45 a. m. Sunday.

When it was stopped the vice squad men found Private Roy driving and Private Jefferson as passenger. Both were in mufti and off duty.

Then, according to Wallrodt, Gonzales and Thornton in a scout car appeared, Roy and Jefferson were arrested and the group proceeded to the Fifth Precinct station where Roy was booked for speeding at 50 miles an hour.

The report said Roy and Jefferson became disorderly in the station house where, Wallrodt said, Gonzales and Thornton slapped Roy. The latter and Jefferson had disorderly charges placed against them.

The hearing in Howard's office was attended by the four policemen, Inspector Wallrodt, two unidentified police lieutenants and King.

Widow of Judge Lenroot Fined for Excessive Speed

Mrs. Eleonore Lenroot, widow of former Federal Judge Irvine L. Lenroot, yesterday was fined $10 for driving in excess of 30 miles an hour on the Whitehurst Freeway last March 3.

Mrs. Lenroot's attorney, Arthur Hanson, said he would appeal the decision by Municipal Judge Nadine Gallagher on the grounds that the defendant could still have been driving prudently although exceeding 30 miles an hour.

Mrs. Lenroot was in the news last January when she charged, in a parking case against her, that "very important persons" living in the 1800 block of Jefferson pl. nw., obtain extraordinary policing of the area at the expense of other sections.

Dairyman Suicide After Killing Wife

Police Report No Clews in Robbery

Arlington police said yesterday they were without clews "at present" in the robbery of the home of former gambler Blight H. Lee, which yielded $160 Monday to a pair of tough-acting gunmen seeking "big money."

Lee's wife, Marguerite, was unable to identify the unmasked member of the pair after looking over rogue's gallery photographs at police headquarters here. Mrs. Lee was forced at gunpoint to accompany the thugs to an upstairs bedroom, where the money was.

Lee received a telephone call at his home six hours after the robbery by a man identifying himself as one of the gunmen. The caller told him he and his accomplice had expected to find $50,000 or $60,000 in the house, and offered to make a "deal" to return some of Lee's private papers if Lee would "call off the cops."

Lee, who said he quit the numbers business in 1941 "for the sake of my family," was unable to identify the caller, according to detectives.

Maintaining a wife in Salisbury, Md., and another in Collingswood, N. J., was too much for Russell C. Moore, 48-year-old dairy executive.

He murdered his common-law wife in Salisbury last week. Yesterday he shot and killed himself at his home in Collingswood as police stood waiting on his doorstep to arrest him.

Chief of Police William Beck of Collingswood and an aide were waiting for Moore to answer the door. They heard a shot and found him dead in the cellar.

This was barely four hours after Marjorie Mae Mahnke Moore, 29, the common-law wife, was found at their four-room cottage in Salisbury with the top of her head shot off, according to the Associated Press.

She had been dead five or six days. Her body, covered with a blue blanket, was propped in a chair against the breakfast table in a tiny, blood-spattered kitchen.

Chief of Police William Chatham of Salisbury said Moore apparently continued to live in the house several days with their 4-year-old daughter, Marilyn.

Moore and the little girl disappeared from Salisbury Monday night. It was the child who admitted police to the home in Collingswood yesterday, saying:

"Daddy shot himself. He's in the cellar."

Chief Beck said Moore left a note to his wife, Laura, saying:

"I came up to tell you all. I did want to talk to you. I'm sorry about what I did. I don't remember about the killing. I was drunk and she was telling me I would have to do better than the $10 a week I was giving her or the whole world would know.

"I have never been happy since I left you five years ago."

Moore left a detailed financial accounting for Laura, including a note that his Salisbury business netted $18,000 in 1949 and she should get a good price for the $80,000 he had in it.

Laura Moore explained she went to Salisbury Monday because she had not heard from her husband in some time and got a report he was ill. She was still in Salisbury when Collingswood officers went to her home looking for Moore at the request of Salisbury police.

Five children survive Moore in addition to Marilyn—a son, Russell C., jr., a student at Rutgers University, two married daughters, and two daughters of high school and junior high age at the Collingswood home.

Man Is Acquitted In Slaying of Mother-in-Law

William A. Bronson, 37, was acquitted yesterday of second-degree murder in the shooting of his mother-in-law whom he accused of nagging him.

Bronson was convicted by the same District Court jury of a charge of simple assault on his wife.

The mother-in-law Mrs. Anna C. Williams, 51, was slain September 19 in Bronson's home, 403 M st. nw. The wife, Eunice, 28, has since become reconciled with Bronson.

Bronson claimed temporary insanity and self-defense.

Next Sunday, The Washington Post will publish another special Gardening and Homemaking Section. Don't miss any of these magazine-like features coming in The Sunday Post for the next seven weeks.

Tuberculosis Cases in '49 Totaled 1591

Some 1591 new cases of tuberculosis, or an average of more than four new cases a day, were uncovered in the city last year, it was stated yesterday by officials of the District of Columbia Tuberculosis Association and the Tuberculosis Control Bureau of the District Health Department.

The annual report also showed that of the new cases, about 56 percent, or 886, were found to be "clincially active," the transmissible stage of the disease.

The new cases brought to 9308 the total of known cases of tuberculosis in the District on January 1, 1950, of which 2641 were termed in the communicable stage.

Though all the 2641 cases are potential threats to public health, only 1045 were hospitalized, it was pointed out by Edward K. Funkhouser, executive secretary of the D. C. Tuberculosis Association. He blamed inadequate hospital facilities.

Recent surveys, it was said, showed tuberculosis is prevalent in all sections of the city, but particularly heavy in the far northeast and the Florida-New Jersey aves. sectors.

SNAPSHOT AT THE BEACH—Robert C. Moore, 48, and his common-law wife, Marjorie Mae Mahnke Moore, 29, are pictured in bathing suits about five years ago. Moore killed himself yesterday in Collingswood, N. J., five or six days after slaying her in a house in Salisbury, Md.

Police Private Subdues Man Inside Store

Less than a year on the police force, Rookie Pvt. G. M. Downs, 23, subdued a Western desperado early yesterday when he caught him inside a Georgetown store.

Downs

Attached to the Seventh Precinct, Downs was patroling his beat when at 4:15 a. m. he found the door to Meenehan's hardware store, 3241 M st. nw., unlocked. It had been locked when he checked it earlier.

Downs went in, service revolver in one hand, nightstick poised in the other. He dimly saw a man towards the back of the store, a box under one arm.

The man ran to a counter and crouched behind it. Downs went behind the counter and collared him.

While Downs was walking his prisoner to the patrol box, the man made a grab for the policeman's gun. Downs put him straight quickly, rapping the man's wrist sharply with his nightstick.

At the station, the man identified himself as Wallace Thayer Smith, 24, of 1200 9th st. nw. The landlady at that address said he hadn't lived there for four months.

According to the FBI, Smith served a prison sentence in Colorado for aggravated robbery. To bear out his reputation of being a tough guy, Smith told police he bears the scars of three bullet wounds received in a gun fight with Colorado authorities.

Police said the box Smith had under his arm contained $160 worth of tools.

Smith was charged with housebreaking and grand larceny and taken before U. S. Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence. His case was continued until March 22 and he was held in $5000 bond.

Baltimore, March 14 (AP).—First returns received in the 1950 Easter seal sale are encouraging, the State Society for Crippled Children and Adults said today.

Wife Cleared In Gun-Death Of Husband

Luray, Va., March 14 (Spl.).—Red-haired Mrs. Barbara Parks, 26, was cleared in a preliminary hearing today of a murder charge in the death of her former Army captain husband.

The experts strongly indicated that the dead man, Robert Franklin Parks, 38, was fatally wounded at his "plantation" home about midnight February 18 when a gun, thrown by him against a heating grill, fired accidentally.

Mrs. Parks, who sat tensely but without an outward show of emotion through the hearing, burst into tears when Judge Booton began speaking. Her mother, Mrs. Vera Young of Alaska, also began to weep.

Women Guilty Of Operating Bawdy House

Two women yesterday were convicted in Municipal Court of operating a disorderly house catering to "matinee" customers.

The women, charged with operating the establishment in an apartment at 912 I st. nw., are Barbara Packard, 40, and Bernice Belmore, 38.

The Belmore woman was arrested September 1 in a raid on the apartment after police had kept the place under surveillance for several days. Barbara Packard surrendered to police before the raid was pulled.

Prosecutor Frank Strickler brought out testimony to show that several men were observed entering and leaving the place on the day of the raid.

Judge George D. Neilson deferred sentence pending motion for a new trial by Defense Attorney M. Edward Buckley.

Red Cross Reaches 35.79 Pct. of Goal

The Red Cross Washington drive has reached 35.79 percent—$371,849—of its 1950 goal, the agency's fourth report luncheon at the United States Chamber of Commerce was told yesterday.

The fifth report luncheon will be held Friday at 12:30 p. m. at the Chamber of Commerce Hall of Flags. Mrs. Truman will be a guest, and Mrs. Georgia Neese Clark, Treasurer of the United States, will be main speaker.

Yesterday's report luncheon was "Government Day." Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan, chairman of the campaign's Government division, urged Red Cross workers to intensify their activities.

This year's goal for Washington is $1,039,000. The $371,849 collected so far represents 73,616 gifts.

Government offices reported at 100 percent of quota or better are: State Department, 117 percent; International Monetary Fund, 100 percent; Office of the Secretary of the Treasury, 140 percent; Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, 140 percent, and the Narcotics Division of the Treasury, 103 percent.

D. C. Dentists Take to New Plastic Filling

Washington dentists have taken to the new plastic fillings for teeth with unprecedented enthusiasm, it was reported yesterday.

Introduced to the District less than a year ago, the fast-setting plastics are already under trial by an estimated four out of every five Washington dentists.

Advantages of the plastic fillers, dentists in annual meeting at Hotel Shoreham yesterday agreed, are that they resist mouth acids, can be shaded to match the color of the patient's enamel, are unbreakable and easily cleaned, and stay put in tooth repairs where synthetic porcelain fillings fail to hold.

The plastics are especially recommended, the dentists said, for filling cavities or restoring front teeth where previously only gold or expensive recapping would work. Most patients, they explained, shy away from gold fillings for front teeth, and object not only to the expense of recapping but also to the extensive grinding down that must be done for such fittings.

Demonstrations of the techniques used in tooth repair with plastic fillers were featured yesterday at several commercial exhibits of the Eighteenth Annual Postgraduate Clinic of the D. C. Dental Society. Only a year ago, when the first such demonstration was given here, none of the local dentists used the new plastics, it was said.

Alexandria Annexation Plan Passed

Alexandria City Council last night passed on first reading an annexation ordinance to take over 7.5 square miles of Fairfax County land west of the city's present borders.

In other business last night the council:

1. Was told by City Manager W. Guy Ancell that he is "deeply concerned" over Alexandria's 1950 budget. The city, he pointed out, is more than $110,000 in the red. It also owes about $98,000 from 1948 and 1949 deficits.

2. Directed the Alexandria Charter Commission to study removal by the State Senate of the nonpartisan election provision from the city's proposed charter; determine how elections may be held, and report back to city officials.

3. Received a petition with some 50 signatures protesting the "continuing nuisance" of shanty and riverboat dwellers on the Potomac in Alexandria. A grand jury will be asked to investigate.

Economically Feasible

In moving to annex nearby Fairfax land, the council ordinance asserted that the area now needs the services and administration of a city.

Annexation is economically feasible, the ordinance said.

As soon as it is passed on second and third readings, the ordinance directs that immediate suit be filed to gain the territory.

Ancell, expressing concern over budgetary matters, revealed that the controversial 5 percent utility tax apparently has been discarded by the city council. The tax was to have raised $187,500 in revenue annually.

An unexpected $195,698 will be incoming, said Ancell, through real estate taxes. The estimated sum will come from a gain in reassessment, and an estimated $100,000 from the new Braddock Light and Power Co. building, he added.

One-Third "Transient"

The City Manager said that at least one-third of Alexandria's population is "transient."

"Until City Council . . . finds some subject of taxation which can be assessed against and collected from these people, I do not believe Alexandria's fiscal affairs will ever be in a satisfactory condition," asserted Ancell.

The problem of Alexandria's waterfront derelicts, an old one, featured an interchange between Councilman Marshall J. Beverley and Police Chief Edgar Sims.

Beverley demanded action, and said "it looks bad" when citizens have to petition to get action.

Chief Sims said police were notifying all "ark" owners that they must move out by March 20. Otherwise, he said, the issue will be taken to the grand jury.

Easter Fashion Parade Plans Previewed

Ambitious plans for a full-scale Easter fashion parade down Connecticut ave. were previewed for avenue merchants last night at a meeting in the Mayflower Hotel.

Alfred Pasternak, parade chairman, told the Connecticut Avenue Association that these plans were under study:

1. Fashion editors of local newspapers will select the 10 best dressed women in Washington. Those chosen will be asked to serve on the judging committee for the parade.

2. Two 75-minute broadcasts—one from the Mayflower Hotel and the other from the Dupont Plaza Hotel—introducing winners selected along the avenue, at the entrances of the churches in the area, the two hotels and other points.

3. Awarding of a long list of prizes, donated by Connecticut ave. merchants, to the best dressed in each classification.

4. Preparation of tape recordings of interviews with winners for use on news broadcasts.

He also suggested the possibility of holding an amateur photography contest for pictures of strollers and another for art students for best amateur decorated store windows on the avenue.

At the meeting, Horace J. Myers, association president, read a letter from the commissioners promising that, weather permitting, all surface roadways on the avenue from N to S sts. would be ready by April 7. The entire Dupont Circle underpass is scheduled for official opening April 25, the city heads wrote.

Ft. Dupont

Kermit L. Culver was elected president of the Fort Dupont Citizens Association last night at a meeting at the Anne Beers School, 36th st. and Alabama ave. se.

Also elected were John Estes, vice president; Mrs. James Silvea, secretary, and David Aronin, treasurer.

The meeting considered the possibility of obtaining better bus service from the area southeast of Fort Dupont to the new Sousa Junior High School at 37th st. and Ely pl. se. A committee was appointed to consider the matter.

Metropolis View

Commuters belonging to the Metropolis View Citizens Association last night made it known that they liked music with their morning ride as the group not only backed the transit company but also opposed any bill to ban it.

Other measures favored by the association included support backing of the five-day, 40-hour-week for the police, and group accident insurance policies for the District's school children. Louis N. Spangler presided at the meeting held at the Crosby-Noyes School, 10th and Franklin sts. ne.

Thomas Circle

The Thomas Circle Citizens Association last night adopted two resolutions, one decrying the use of swimming pools this summer on a nonsegregated basis; the other opposing transfer of Central High School for use of Negro students.

The group met at the home of its president, Mrs. Ella M. Thompson, 1536 16th st. nw.

Summit Park

Opposition to the Kefauver home-rule bill was voiced by the Summit Park Citizens Association last night, with the group going on record favoring a home-rule bill which provides national representation.

The association, meeting at Anne Beers School, 6th pl. and Alabama ave. se., also decided to take pictures of the condition of streets in the area to see if they get some action from the District engineers from photo exhibits. C. F. Dohne presided.

Lamond Heights

Following a speech by Federation President Herbert P. Leeman, the Lamond Heights Citizens Association last night went on record favoring the Kefauver home-rule bill, and urging its discharge from House committee.

Leeman, citing the contributions of the citizens' groups in the past 40 years, said that their pressure could put across this piece of legislation.

Other actions taken by the association, meeting at East Washington Heights Baptist Church, included backing of the 5-day, 40-hour week for District policemen and urging a cut in the District of Columbia real estate tax. Joel P. Sharon presided.

Baptists Draft 13 Resolutions

Representatives of 16 million American Baptists drafted 13 resolutions on national and international affairs yesterday in the semi-annual session of the Joint Conference Committee on Public Relations.

E. Hilton Jackson, 112 Hesketh st., Chevy Chase, Md., served as chairman of the conference.

The committee on religious liberty went on record against the Roman Catholic "church state hierarchy which aspires to control governments and affairs of people through political and economic power with disregard for individual soul liberty and denial of the principle which we know as religious liberty."

The committee also recorded an "intense disapproval of any proposal which might lead to the establishment of any official representative between the President or the Government of the United States and the Vatican."

On international issues, a special conference committee:

1. Urged that a commission revamp United Nations machinery, "especially in the matter of the veto plan."

2. Urged "our national leaders to keep an open mind with regard to plans for closer international cooperation which go beyond the scope of the United Nations and which may materialize in the distant future."

3. Propose a five-point program "to implement a moral and spiritual crusade for peace.

4. Approved a UN plan "for the internationalization of the Holy Places of Palestine.

Caucus Names Beville, Sidell

A radio station official and a Takoma Park roofer were nominated as candidates for Mayor of Takoma Park last night at the community's biennial caucus in the Takoma Park firehouse. About 250 attended.

The mayorality candidates are Ross H. Beville, technical director of Station WWDC and chief engineer of the Washington Transit Radio Corp., and John F. Sidell, operator of a roofing concern.

The election this year will be held on March 28 so as not to conflict with State elections. Town Council candidates also were nominated last night.

Belville has been a member of council since 1948. Sidell resigned from council in 1946 because of business. Present Takoma Park Mayor is John C. Post, who previous to his election two years ago was a councilman.

Candidates for three of the council's seven seats were nominated without opposition. They were J. H. Nies, to represent the Ninth and Twenty-second Precincts, and Lawrence Oosterhaus and Ray H. Eccleston to represent the Prince Georges section.

Candidates for the two seats in the Fourth and Twentieth Precincts are W. H. McClenon, Maj. William F. Fischer and H. Brooks Perring.

For the two seats in the Sixth and Twenty-first Precincts candidates are Mrs. Phillip Woods, James B. Parkhill and Charles H. Klinck.

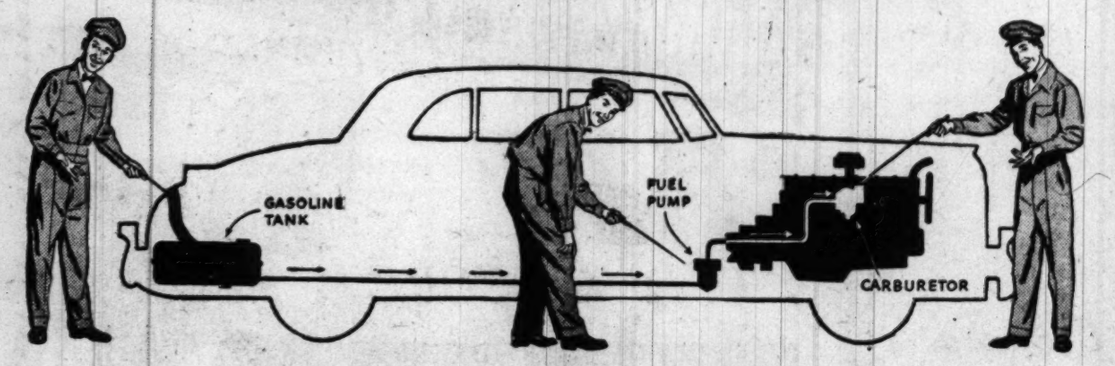
SINCLAIR RESEARCH SOLVES 40-YEAR PROBLEM OF RUST
AND CORROSION IN AUTO FUEL SYSTEMS



ANTI-RUST Chemical Now Blended into POWER-PACKED Sinclair Gasolines

Ever since the first automobile chugged down Main Street, car makers have been trying to lick the problem of rust and corrosion in gasoline tanks and fuel systems.

This problem is serious because water forms daily inside your gasoline tank when the warm, moist air above the gasoline condenses on the cooler metal walls. This water rusts and corrodes gasoline tanks and fuel systems. Rust and corrosion clog carburetor jets, and cause jerky performance, stalling and costly repairs. Sinclair Research has at last solved this problem by developing an amazing chemical called RD-119—now blended into POWER-PACKED SINCLAIR GASOLINES.

This miracle chemical coats your gasoline tank and entire fuel system with an invisible, water-proof film that stops rust and corrosion.

Fill your tank with new Anti-Rust Sinclair H-C or Sinclair Ethyl Gasoline. Use it regularly for continued protection.

Sinclair Fuel Oils also contain RD-119

WORLD'S FIRST ANTI-RUST GASOLINES CONTAIN RD-119

Piecemeal-Plan Danger Shown in Housing Bill

By Ysabel and Robert Rennie

The Administration's controversial middle income housing bill, which has been reported out of committee in both houses, reached the Senate floor last Saturday.

There are really three housing bills. One was voted by the House last session; the second has just come out of the House Rules Committee; while the Senate bill embodies the provisions of both House measures. These bills are trying to increase the housing supply in several ways:

(1) By guaranteeing larger loans to veterans ($7500 instead of the present $4000); (2) by providing very low interest rates on loans to housing cooperatives; (3) by lowering present high building standards for FHA mortgages in outlying areas; and (4) by increasing the amortization period on mortgages—that is, the time allowed for repayment of the principal.

The most controversial provision is that for direct loans to housing cooperatives. The legislation as now written would establish a National Mortgage Corporation for Housing Cooperatives. This corporation would make mortgage loans to housing cooperatives to provide homes for the middle income group, those families making somewhere between $2800 and $4400 a year. The loans would run for 50 years, and bear interest at a rate the sponsors believe would not, at least for the initial loans, exceed 3 or 3⅛ percent.

3 Percent Interest

Under the usual mortgage terms (20 year amortization, 4½ percent interest), a $10,000 mortgage costs $63.30 a month for principal and interest. A 50-year mortgage at 3 percent would only cost $32.20. This difference would bring home ownership well within the capacity of present middle incomes in this country.

The question arises: Why do two-thirds of all families need Government assistance to afford decent housing?

The answer lies in the high cost of construction, a high cost which goes back in large measure to the feast-and-famine nature of the industry. Low productivity, restrictive labor practices and speculation all arise from the same underlying cause.

The Government hopes to solve high cost housing by low cost mortgages. This policy, by making money cheap, has given builders fewer incentives to cut costs and has thereby contributed to the amount of water in postwar construction.

Today we are faced with the situation where the market for expensive houses has been tapped. If the building boom is not to collaps, there must either be lower costs or still cheaper financing. The housing bill proposes the second solution.

Under FHA's system of equal monthly payments on mortgages, very little is repaid in the first few years. The older system of amortization provided larger total installments at the beginning, when the house was new, and as the house grew older, the payments dwindled until the whole principal had been paid.

The FHA system, introduced at the bottom of the depression, has never had to meet the test of declining real estate values. Suppose we extend this principle to 40- or 50-year mortgages, as the present bill proposes. The house would grow older, comparable rentals would decline, but the burden of monthly payments would be exactly as great in the forty-ninth year as when the house was new.

Costs Inflated

Today's housing costs are highly inflated. Under this bill a home buyer could commit himself to a lifetime obligation on the basis of a speculative home price. When the present housing boom is over, millions of home owners will be struggling with mortgages higher than the value of their homes. They would be able to rent comparable quarters for much less than their monthly mortgage payments.

In 1929, just before the crash, mortgage debt in this country totaled a little over 19 billion dollars. Today it is more than 38 billion dollars.

When business activity declines, millions of home owners will default through no fault of their own. For most of the others the struggle to keep their homes will mean curtailed spending on food, clothing, and consumers' durables. By cutting off consumer spending when it is most needed, this will tend to intensify the decline.

The present legislation, however well-intended, shows the danger of piecemeal planning. In a clumsy attempt to get middle income housing, it will have unsettling effects on our control of credit, the costs of building, our debt structure, and on the whole price level.

The bunching of construction in a speculative boom like the present one will only add to the instability of our economy. As the then chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, Marriner Eccles, told a congressional committee in 1947:

"The more the backlog of demand for housing is filled at exorbitant prices now, the smaller will be the cushion under the entire industry when prices come down, and therefore, the more intense the deflation in the industry will be." Plain talk, and very much to the point.

Shaggy Georgia Dog Makes Own SOS Call

Midville, Ga., March 14 (AP).—When telephone operator W. Elliot Curry answered a late day call from Hugh Rountree's grocery, he heard only a scratching sound—later a dog barking.

The operator quickly rang the nearby residence, and Rountree rushed to the store to investigate.

There was Duke, his dog, locked in. The telephone receiver was on the floor and Duke was barking away for help.

Missourians Here to Vote On State Tax

President Truman might be able to do a little absentee voting April 4 on whether the Missouri gas tax should be raised from 2 to 4 cents per gallon.

The opportunity for Missourians in the Washington area to vote by absentee ballot in the April election has been brought to the attention of the House by Representative Paul C. Jones (D., Mo.).

Jones explained that a law passed last year by the Missouri State Legislature makes this the first absentee-voting opportunity for Missourians away from home.

He said his office has the necessary applications to obtain absentee ballots.

He explained that he is interested in the gas tax vote, having served as chairman of the State Highway Commission for three years before coming to Congress.

At the same time, Representative Jones indicated the Missouri absentee voting law would be completely out of key with the proposed Washington home-rule bill's voting provisions.

The aim of the home-rule bill is to let residents of Washington take part in the home-rule elections without necessarily losing their voting rights in a State.

But under the Missouri law, Jones explained, Missouri voting rights would be forfeited for anyone who claimed a District residence for purposes of voting in Washington municipal elections.

Jones has opposed the home-rule bill.

Illinois voters in the District also will be able to cast absentee ballots for State primaries in April.

Boyle Calls Party Committee Talk On 1950 Campaign

Democratic Chairman Boyle yesterday called the party's national committee to meet May 13 in Chicago to plan for the 1950 congressional campaign.

Boyle appointed the following resolutions committee:

Chairman Edward J. Flynn, New York; W. E. Harber, Oklahoma; Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, Maryland; Miss Mary Evelyn Dickinson, Louisiana; Edward J. Kelly, Illinois; Monroe Sweetland, Oregon, and Mrs. Edward Heller, California.

He listed the following members of the permanent credentials committee:

Chairman Frank M. McHale, Indiana; David Lawrence, Pennsylvania; Theodore F. Green, Rhode Island; David G. Kelly, North Dakota; Sam Morris, Arizona; Jonathan Daniels, North Carolina; Mrs. Marguerite Peyton Thompson, Colorado; Mrs. Margaret M. O'Riordan, Massachusetts, and Mrs. Florence M. Lynch, Iowa.

Without Painful Backache

As we get older, stress and strain, overexertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

The Gallup Poll

Public Thinks Income Taxes Too High, Survey Discovers

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., March 14.—Will the cost of defense, Government welfare and aid to Europe start a United States taxpayers' revolt?

Just before the March 15 income tax deadline interviewers for the institute asked a balanced cross-section of income taxpayers throughout the country:

"Do you consider the amount of income tax which you have to pay as too high, too low or about right?"

The results show a marked change in attitude since the end of the war. During World War II large majorities thought the sums they had to pay in income taxes were reasonable. In March, 1944, for example, nine out of every ten taxpayers questioned by the institute called their income taxes fair.

Today the vote is:

Too high	56%
About right	40
No opinion	4

Fewer than one percent said the taxes are too low.

The amount of taxpayer irritation found in the survey is considerably larger than last year in a similar survey, but about the same as two years ago, when taxes were a bit higher.

A survey in March, 1948, dealing with 1947 taxes showed that 57 percent considered the amount too high, while 38 percent called it about right. Then in the 1948 tax year the tax rates were eased a bit because of community property deduction and other cuts allowed.

As a result, a survey of taxpayers in March, 1949, showed a drop in the number of persons calling income taxes too high.

Here is the trend:

	1948	1949	Today
Too high	57%	43%	56%
Too low	1	1	....
About right	38	52	40
No opinion	4	4	4
	100%	100%	100%

The move in Congress for greater economy in Government has substantial popular backing. When voters in January were asked which of three alternatives they thought the Government should follow—increasing income taxes, cutting down on Government spending, or borrowing money to make up deficits—more than two-thirds of those questioned voted for Government economy.

When asked further, "Is there anything the Federal Government spends money for now which you think should be reduced or cut out?" voters in the survey named these chief items:

1. Cut down on foreign aid, European relief.
2. Too many Government employes in present bureaus.
3. Too many Government bureaus; Hoover reorganization plan should be adopted.

Detroit to Round Up 5000 Abandoned Cars

Detroit, March 14 (AP).—City Council was informed today there are 5000 abandoned cars on Detroit streets.

Five towing trucks working 24 hours a day will be put into service to round them up.

City Controller John H. Witherspoone said the abandoned jalopies were a serious problem because they created traffic hazards.

Road Code Hearing Ends in Montgomery

The Montgomery County Council yesterday finished the hearing on a proposed revised road construction ordinance begun last Saturday.

Councilman Thomas C. Kelley, who presided yesterday, said it will be at least three weeks before the council will decide the kind of ordinance, if any, it will adopt.

Donal L. Chamberlain, developer of Kenwood, asked the council not to enact the ordinance until they "got to the grass roots of the question."

He told the council he didn't believe "it is clear in your minds just what you are attempting to accomplish."

He urged appointment of a committee of representative professional and businessmen to assist in preparing a final draft.

Page Hopkins, president of the Prince Georges-Montgomery Engineers' club, and David E. Betts, of the Home Owners' Protective Association, offered the services of their groups in any further study directed by the council.

The "most vital and important single phase" of road construction, according to Thomas G. Oyster, Wheaton engineer, is the qauality of the subgrade which, he said, must be practically perfect to receive any type of paving.

The only way to control this is to have qualified officials having a "latitude of inspection" on the job all the time, he asserted.

"You cannot turn this job over to a clerk," he said, "and say 'Here are the rules—call a cop if they don't obey.'"

Irwin I. Kaplin, former chief engineer of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, said he favored "safe roads and highways," but was also an advocate of "practical subdivision streets to fit the lay of the land."

"Too Rigid"

While admitting that a "reasonable amount of regimentation and requirements are necessary and desirable," he termed the requirements of the ordinance "too rigid."

Gilbert Bell, an engineer and member of the Urban Land Institute, contended that subdivision streets should not be built so wide.

County Director of Public Works George T. Papageorge offered figures at the conclusion of the testimony purporting to show that increased costs under the new code would be slight.

New Suitland School Will Keep Its Name

Business men of Suitland won their battle to name the new high school there for the community instead of Eugene S. Burroughs, a former superintendent of county schools.

A delegation representing the Business Men's Association of Suitland, the Suitland Citizens Association, the Suitland Elementary School P-TA, the Civic Federation of the Seat Pleasant and Spalding election districts, the local VFW post and the Prince George Democratic Club appeared before the County Board of Education meeting at Upper Marlboro yesterday.

The group represented some 27 organizations in the two election districts, which will be served by the new high school. Despite the fact that children from at least a dozen other communities will be among the 1550 pupils, no protests against use of the Suitland name were received. The board voted to name the school for the community.

County Gets Budget for Hospital

A budget of $946,466, which would leave a deficit of $49,996 to be levied by the county, was presented for the Prince Georges General Hospital, Cheverly, yesterday to the Prince Georges County commissioners.

The budget anticipates receipts of $896,470 from the present 100-bed facilities and later from a changeover to a 225-bed hospital. The cornerstone for an addition to include facilities for Negro patients and for contagious diseases as well as expanded facilities for all medical and surgical needs will be laid March 25.

2 Bethesda Zone Requests Approved

Two applications for commercial zoning in Bethesda were approved yesterday by the Montgomery County Council.

The properties are in areas proposed for commercial use by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission in both its present Central Distict Zoning Plan and its proposed Master Zoning Plan for Bethesda.

Thomas M. Anderson, agent for Charles B. Hawley, was granted the requested zoning change for one and one-fourth acres of East-West highway next to the Hot Shoppe on Wisconsin ave.

The council pointed out in its written opinion that granting of this applictaion extends the commercial zoning on the north side of East-West highway to a point opposite the most eastern edge of commercial land on the south side.

In approving the request of Ben Termini for one lot on Fairmont st., between Norfolk and Arlington aves., the council repeated its belief that the Woodmont Triangle is the logical area for commercial expansion in Bethesda.

In other business at yesterday's meeting, the council appointed Clifford F. Bolhagen of 8718 Georgia ave., Silver Spring, as zoning and license inspector in the Department of Inspection and Licenses, and Lemuel G. Johnson of Rockville as a police partolman.

New Contract Postoffice To Open on Thursday

A new contract postoffice for Friendship Heights will be opened at 8:30 a. m. Thursday in the Terminal Valet Shop, 5506 Wisconsin ave. nw.

Camille Chautemps, former Premier of France, and Walter Bogley, president of the Bank of Bethesda, will be featured speakers at opening ceremonies.

Driver Hurt As Cab Hits House Front

Charles W. Stover, 38, a cab driver, was in critical condition at Casualty Hospital yesterday after an early morning accident in which his cab spun out of control.

Police said the cab was going east on Michigan ave. ne., at 2:25 a. m., about 300 feet from the intersection with Perry st. ne.

The cab slashed across the curb, cut across a grass plot, bounded across Perry st., went between a fire box and a parked car, and finally came to rest on a Perry st. sidewalk, its left side smashed against the front of an apartment house at 1000 Perry st.

Members of fire rescue squad No. 2 had to use crowbars to remove Stover, who was pinned beneath the seat and the dashboard.

Stover, who lives at 3157 Queens Chapel rd., Mount Rainier, Md., suffered severe head and internal injuries.

At 9:10 a. m., Mrs. Lessie D. Frost, 69, of 1300 Massachusetts ave. nw., was hit by an automobile at 13th and G sts. nw.

At Emergency Hospital, where she was adamitted with head injuries and an injury to her left leg, Mrs. Frost's condition was described as "fair."

Police said the car was driven by Mrs. Lucy Anna Wetengel, 44, of 5509 McKinley st., Bethesda, Maryland.

Stolen Safe Found Minus $200 in Cash

A stolen safe with $13,450 in war bonds and $200 in cash has been located, Alexandria police reported yesterday. The cash was missing.

Police said the safe, stolen February 28 from the basement of a home at 704 Chetworth pl., Alexandria, was found off King's hgwy. near Mount Comfort Cemetery, Fairfax County. Bonds and other papers were intact.

County Contracts Let for School Work

The Montgomery County board of education yesterday awarded contracts for an addition to one school and for preliminary ground preparation for another.

The $92,490 bid of the H. O. McAlister Co., of Washington, was accepted for construction of a seven-room addition to the Somerset Elementary School.

The addition will include four classrooms, cafeteria, library and assembly rooms. Work is scheduled to begin immediately and to be completed by fall.

Also accepted by the board was the $40,000 bid of the Francis O. Day Co., of Bethesda, for clearing, grading, sodding and seeding of the site for the new Western Junior High School on Massachusetts ave. extended.

Correction

Due to a typographical error The Washington Post yesterday incorrectly identified Oswald S. Colclough as dean of the Law School at Georgetown University. He is dean at George Washington University. The Washington Post regrets the error.

Money For Highways

One of the most awkward problems that major cities must cope with is the fact that their highway facilities are not keeping pace with their growth. As relatively more and more of the population moves to the suburbs, access to the downtown area becomes increasingly difficult without a comprehensive system of expressways. Washington is one of the cities with this issue on its hands. Reporter Chalmers Roberts has shown in a series of articles in this newspaper how despite some important links in outlying areas, the road net here is still a hodgepodge. The problem will get worse unless concerted action is begun quickly.

At the root of the difficulty is the anomaly of conflicting political jurisdictions. Such differences inevitably bring piecemeal approaches. It is unrealistic, however, to hope that any of the smaller communities around the fringe of Washington will relinquish their sovereignty. Hence the best answer to the problem is some sort of Metropolitan Highway Construction Authority which will not interfere in local matters but will have power to act on an over-all basis with respect to roads. The same principle commends itself to use in other fields such as utility regulation.

Even if there were an integrated highway authority, however, the financial problem would remain to frustrate action. To acquire necessary rights of way and build highways quickly requires a great deal of money, and any major construction tends to eat up most available funds for any one year. For example, the East Capitol Street bridge would require all District highway appropriations for two years at the existing rate. Maryland and Virginia have many other demands on their highway funds; undoubtedly that is the reason why construction in outlying areas is so spotty.

The Pennsylvania Highway and Bridge Authority which Mr. Roberts describes seems almost uniquely adapted to this problem. It is set up as a separate corporation with authority to sell its own bonds and accomplish necessary construction; it then rents highways to the State for an annual amount covering the cost of amortization. Thus the State is called upon for no great expenditure in any one year. There is no magic in this system; it is merely a sensible way of meeting accumulated needs quickly, with especial appeal to areas such as the District, which has no bonded debt.

Such an authority would of course require sanction of Congress and the respective State Legislatures. Its compelling advantage is that it would enable the Washington area to function as a unit rather than as an agglomeration of disconnected entities. Some such over-all approach which affords due protection to individual communities is imperative, and we suspect that if the officials concerned were to espouse it publicly they would find a surprising amount of support.

Tax Errors

The Bureau of Internal Revenue has been checking individual income tax returns in order to discover how much revenue is lost through errors. The examination covers cases picked at random, and includes representatives of all classes of taxpayers from the lowest to the highest income groups. While the returns investigated account for only a minute fraction of the individuals who filed income tax returns in 1948, the sample survey suffices to give a fair idea of the cost to the Government of faulty tax returns. The bureau estimates on the basis of its findings that the revenue lost by mistakes favoring the taxpayer (some of which will be recovered) amounted to between $1.3 and $1.8 billion, while mistakes favoring the Government at the expense of the taxpayer amounted to only 100 million dollars. Evidently most taxpayers are disposed to give themselves the benefit of any doubt as to what should be included in their returns. This human failing no doubt accounts for a large part of the mistakes of understatement of taxable income, but there is no way of knowing to what extent apparent errors are in fact deliberate falsifications.

An analysis of the selected cases indicates that about one out of every four taxpayers makes mistakes in his returns. Although the errors of the lower income tax payers result in heavy revenue losses, because they turn in a large part of the tax receipts, the greatest percentage of mistakes is attributable to taxpayers in the income groups above $5000. That is to be expected, since their returns are more complicated, and their income is more apt to be derived from a variety of sources.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue has done a fine job of streamlining personal income tax forms. It has also done what it could to make tax computations easy and to explain what is required of the taxpayer under the law. But income tax legislation is so complicated that there are limits to what can be done to prevent honest mistakes. Many conscientious people are confused by instructions, and are lost when they try to compute the amount of their surtaxes. Mathematical errors, errors in deductions for expenses, and wrong use of standard deductions, account for a large proportion of the revenue losses in the $5000-$7000 income brackets. But at least half the errors in this income bracket were in reports of income. That is rather shocking, although in the absence of careful bookkeeping records, under-declaration may be inadvertent. It does not necessarily imply an intention to defraud the Government. In the high-income brackets it was this disposition to understate the amount of taxable income and overstate deductions that accounted for most of the mistakes.

The results of this special survey emphasize the need for a larger staff to do a more thorough job of checking tax returns and making special audits of the kind described. When taxpayers know that their returns are subjected to scrutiny and that they may have to account for mistakes, they will try harder to avoid them and they will be much less inclined to risk an understatement of income that might subject them to unpleasant inquiries.

Co-Op Housing Bill

Senator Sparkman's middle-income housing bill on which the Senate will vote today has many appealing features. It is designed to aid a group that is said to benefit little from the present FHA and public housing programs. The bill would transfer most of the burden of financing the program from governmental to private shoulders. It would doubtless stimulate the cooperative movement which Americans have found useful in meeting many other economic problems outside the housing fields. Nevertheless, we are persuaded that enactment of the bill at this time would not be in keeping with the best interests of the country.

One significant fact is that a vast number of homes are now being built—most of them with governmental aid of one sort or another. The total reached more than a million homes last year; this year the estimate is 900,000 dwelling units. While it is true that a great many of these are beyond the economic reach of middle-income families, Senator Sparkman himself pointed out that about 51 percent of the homes financed with the aid of FHA in 1948 were purchased by families with annual incomes from $2400 to $4200. This is the group that the cooperative housing bill is especially designed to aid. Most of these low-cost FHA homes are in the low-building-cost areas rather than in the big cities. It should not be assumed, however, that the existing programs discriminate against middle-income families.

The major objection to giving cooperative housing associations the extremely generous incentives provided in the Sparkman bill is the one voiced by officials of the Federal Reserve Board and reiterated on the Senate floor by Senator Tobey. The bill would permit the proposed National Mortgage Corporation for Housing Cooperatives to lend co-ops 100 percent of the development cost of their projects over a period as long as 50 years at an interest rate estimated at from 3 to 3¼ percent. If the program should prove to be successful, the effect would be to give our economic system a strong shot in the arm at a time when it is already operating in high gear. That is what the Federal Reserve officials told the committee in guarded technical language. ". . . if amortization is stretched further to 50 and 60 years in periods of high activity like the present," said Winfield Riefler, the board's chief economist, "you are setting a precedent throughout the mortgage market that might come home to roost very seriously." This is no time to court inflation. If the country were in a depression, the situation would be an entirely different one. The bill has been modified to meet this criticism in part, but we doubt that it has been modified enough.

Closely related to this point is the question of whether the Government should, as a matter of policy, offer mortgage money at 3¼ percent to co-ops when private builders must pay 4½ percent under FHA. In addition to that favored treatment, the Sparkman bill would set up a special agency to give technical assistance to housing co-ops and to make advance planning loans to them. In order to take advantage of these benefits, groups having no cohesive unity might be encouraged to venture into cooperative housing. We cannot help thinking that the bill provides too much nursing for a movement which, after all, owes its strength to private initiative on a cooperative basis. In this connection it is well to remember that the present law gives cooperatives an opportunity to operate under FHA. Senator Tobey makes a strong case for further perfection of this method instead of launching a new rival program.

More important, however, are the over-all economic objections to the Sparkman bill at this time. Economy is required to steady the general economy and to ready it in case of emergency needs. The Government has already gone too far with socially desirable programs that it cannot finance with the present tax structure. When to this fact is added the danger of upsetting the mortgage market with overly liberal credit pushed out through Government guarantees, the case for rejection of the bill by the Senate seems to be very strong.

Case In The Flesh

Boadicea came to town yesterday in the person of Miss Dorothy Kenyon, the McCarthy Case No. 1. But when she alighted from her chariot at Capitol Hill, her traducer was not around, and she had to unload her vindication on the head of Senator Hickenlooper, the only Republican at the Tydings hearing. In truth Case No. 1 turned out to be not only an outraged and innocent American, but also a woman of spirit. Even a marine of McCarthy's background would have quailed at the sight, for, as the poet truly says, the female is the more deadly of the species, anyway, and a veritable hornet's nest when impugned. Doubtless Senator McCarthy did not know the kind of person he was traducing, or he would not have had the gall to daub Miss Kenyon. Miss Kenyon established her innocence of Communist sympathies beyond a peradventure.

In future the Senator will doubtless look more carefully into his "cases" before impaling them. The names he cited yesterday were of a piece with his shotgun tactics. To prove communism in the State Department he named present officials, past officials, a director of the Harvard Observatory and a professor. The matter in hand has to do with the actual persons employed by our diplomatic arm, and insofar as these were covered by yesterday's instances, they bring up the Amerasia case of 1945. In that affair a grand jury held that insufficient evidence existed to warrant a court trial of John S. Service, who was charged with dealing in secret documents—and there we thought the matter had ended. He was reinstated, and is now consul-general in Calcutta. Professor Harlow Shapley, the well-known astronomer, is the only "case" so far who is known as sympathetic with the Soviet Union. However, since he is a private citizen not in the employ of the State Department, Professor Shapley has a right not only to his own opinion, but also to express it—at least as long as we are left to live under the Constitution.

The question has been raised by Dorothy Thompson as to what redress is available to the smeared. A Senator has constitutional immunity when he launches attacks on his official ground, but when this cloak of immunity is as grossly abused as McCarthy's is, then his fellow Senators may step in, and call him to book. More Kenyons before the Senate may raise the question as to whether the man that produces them is not demeaning Congress. Certainly we don't have to turn Muscovite in order to fight communism, and so degrade that struggle.

Streamlined Boards

The President's reorganization plans Nos. 7 to 13 are an attempt to bring greater efficiency into seven Federal regulatory commissions without destroying their quasi-judicial character. Administrative boards are universally regarded as inefficient. Some reformers have urged that they be stripped of all functions, except the decision of cases. The Hoover Commission did not go that far. It recommended that the chairman of each commission be made primarily responsible for its administrative work and supervision of its staff. Reorganization plans Nos. 7 to 13, which the President has sent up to Congress, would implement this idea.

Two months ago we pointed out the dangers in the "strong chairman plan." If the chairman is permitted to become a dictator, he can destroy the independence of a board or commission, despite the fact that the only reason for assigning regulatory tasks to boards is to get a well-rounded judgment. This danger has been minimized, if not eliminated, in the plan now devised for such agencies as the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Federal Trade Commission, the Securities and Exchange Commission and the National Labor Relations Board. The chairman in each case has been given responsibility for the appointment and direction of personnel and for the conduct of the routine business of the agency. But he would be bound by the general policies adopted by the board. The chairman would prepare the budget, but the commission could revise it and determine the general distribution of funds. Each commissioner would retain control over personnel in his immediate office, and the agency as a whole would have to approve the men chosen by the chairman to head the various administrative units. Chairmen might abuse this power in some instances, but we suspect that on the whole it would greatly improve the operations of the regulatory bodies.

The most controversial item in this segment of the reorganization program is the elimination of the general counsel of the NLRB. This action lends itself to criticism because Congress so recently gave the general counsel separate status in the Taft-Hartley Act. However, the independence of the general counsel has created more problems than it has solved. The judging and prosecuting functions were separated, but the prosecutor himself became also an administrator and policy-maker. The task force of the Hoover Commission concluded that the position is "an unstable one" and recommended that it be reabsorbed into the board or into one of the executive departments. The Senate, too, voted to abolish the separate general counsel in passing the Taft bill (S. 249) last year. Since then General Counsel Denham has publicly attacked the NLRB, and the board has clipped his wings. To avoid a prolonged and costly feud, the office ought to be abolished in favor of a general counsel subordinate to the board.

School Transportation

On March 10 you printed a letter from Representative John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts in which he seeks to prove that his proposed amendment to S. 246 (Federal aid to education) was not intended to provide public funds to church schools, as the account in your paper indicated. All that the Congressman had in mind, he insists, was to insure reimbursements "to persons or companies providing school bus transportation for children attending nonpublic schools in those States where there are constitutional or statutory provisions which prevent the State authorities from carrying such children on its own equipment."

Not only would this amendment, if attached to a measure carrying Federal aid to education, make possible direct and indirect subsidies to church schools, in order that they might transport their children to and from school, but it would override the will of the people in all those States in which, by constitutional provision or legislative act, it is illegal to transport children to nonpublic schools at public expense.

The Everson decision, on which the Congressman professes to lean in support of his amendment, sanctions only the transportation of children to parochial schools on public highways in public conveyances, not the creation of special bus routes that are designed to assist schools in maintaining and enlarging attendance.

The transportation of nonpublic school children is being used as a camel's nose for a more ambitious project: to bring substantial aid to church schools and, thus, to undermine the traditional principle of separation of church and state.

"Finer Sensibilities"

I have read the March 11 letter by Theodore Cushing. I have lived in this country for 10 years now, but mainly in the North and West, and I am still mystified by the Negro question. I suppose the main thing I do not understand is what the "finer sensibilities" are, "which the Southern white holds above all else." If every Negro had "the brain of Einstein, the physique of Atlas, and a soul which puts to shame mere minor saints," what would still be missing?

Of course I know that all Negroes do not actually possess these wonderful qualities. Many of them are diseased and shabby and uneducated, and they live in perfectly terrible houses. But I wonder if it is really their fault. Have they ever been given a real chance to be as good as white people? I know that at home in England we are very apt to condemn the Irish for various things we don't like about them. Yet these very characteristics are often nothing but the result of our past bad treatment of the country.

KATHARINE TAIT.
Bethesda.

I agree with Theodore Cushing in his March 11 letter upholding segregation. I propose that theaters, trolleys, trains, buses, schools and all aspects of social life be segregated in the following manner:

One part to be reserved for men of "finer sensibilities" and one part for the rest of humanity. Into the first part will be drained the decaying flower of the Jim Crow South, and with them their leaders, men of fine sensibility, such as Rankin, Wood, Talmadge, etc., and also with them shall go those everywhere who deny the fundamental dignity and brotherhood of men—all men. In the other part will go those poor unfortunates with Einsteinian mentalities and saint-like spirits so luckless as to possess a coarse sensibility and a black skin, and with them the rest of mankind.

"Montgomery Streets"

I am gratified to see that The Washington Post is cognizant of a most controversial issue in Montgomery County, i. e., the proposed ordinance for general street improvement. As a homeowner, I agree with the statement in your March 10 editorial "that the reasonable thing would be to delay the decision until the implications of the new requirements could be given more study."

This ordinance provides for an extensive street improvement project in existing developed areas of home-owners. It should be pointed out that present home-owners would be assessed the cost per front footage of property on their tax bill and would be subject to payment at the rate of 6 percent per annum over a period of 10 years, whereas most prospective home-owners would pay the cost with interest at 4½ percent over a period of 20 years (the popular and prevalent long-term mortgage).

Another point of issue is best illustrated by quotation from the ordinance itself, which applies to "primary residential and secondary residential roads"—"construction"—"The entire right-of-way shall be graded, and appropriate drainage structures, paving, curbs, gutters and sidewalks shall be installed and trees planted." It is my firm belief that the majority of suburban residents do not want sidewalks and as far as the community of Rosemary Hills is concerned, the writer has written evidence from a majority of home-owners in that subdivision that they oppose sidewalks on their streets.

A proposed law which has incurred as much opposition and stirred as much interest as this has, should be very carefully considered in a true democratic manner, and, if possible, submitted to a referendum at the next election.

Boone's Transfer

With tongue in cheek I watched Secretary Johnson oust Admiral Denfield. I was half willing to agree to Admiral Denfield's replacement, since it seemed that he could no longer serve our country as well as he had previously, if only because of the publicity attached to his removal and the preceding events.

Despite the foregoing I objected vociferously to the manner in which Mr. Johnson and Secretary Matthews chose to hedge about their change of minds.

Now it appears that the first instinctive alarm should have been heeded—note Admiral Boone! Just what do we have for a Department of Defense, a totalitarian state?

Will the Congress of this country, empowered to speak for its citizens, permit such a situation to exist, within one of its most powerful and important departments, wherein any man, speaking his honest opinion, is summarily dismissed if his opinion dares to be at variance with that of his nominal superior?

End And Means

Communism, not Communists, in Government is the danger the United States faces today. The loyalty board hearings conducted in star-chamber proceedings are strangely reminiscent of the Russian purge trials of the mid-thirties. In Whittaker Chambers and the other self-confessing Communists we even have our own parallel to the Russian conspirators who confessed on the witness stand. We do not execute nor send to an Alaskan Siberia the victims convicted in these inquisitions. They are merely denied a day in court and deprived of their means of livelihood for life.

Perhaps the Marxian tenet which placed communism and democracy furthest apart was the belief that the end justifies the means. Even this philosophy is now being adopted by our loyalty boards and our own secret police in the FBI use of wire tapping, mail pilfering and neighborhood snooping.

I sincerely hope that this tide sweeping us toward a totalitarian state can be stemmed and turned and I would remind the Government in the words of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, "The only thing we have to fear is fear itself."

NANCY P. STRAUS.

"Cut Wood Or Starve"

I am writing with reference to your March 7 editorial "Cut Wood or Starve." I am not especially surprised that you oppose forcing men on relief to do some physical labor, since this went out of style circa 1932. But your question "How many men have the physical strength to do the work of woodsmen?"—this goes too far. A man does not have to be a Paul Bunyan to handle an axe or saw and if our Eastern male has lost both the vitality and the intelligence required to learn, then as a Nation we might as well get ready to close shop.

I suggest that the editorial writing occasionally be turned over to someone who has worked with his hands. Having had some youthful experience with an axe and saw, let me reveal that it not only is not exhausting, dangerous, and demoralizing but is rather exhilarating, great for the appetite and waistline, and one of the best ways in the world to keep warm.

Traffic Islands

As a citizen-to-be of America, I can only express my great admiration of my new home; and as a resident of its beautiful capital, only my most heartfelt gratitude. But being a modern man schooled in European discipline, I must put my ideals into practical form. So I therefore request that I be permitted to paint the islands on Virginia ave. and Pennsylvania (near the juncture of Constitution ave.) which so frequently endanger precious American lives. I myself have nearly been mashed twice by them, along with two women. Therefore, as a gentleman, I am obliged to try to prevent any further recurrence.

G. VON LUMPENHEIM,

Brannan Plan

Could it be that "Economist" whose letter appeared in your March 9 issue deriding the Brannan plan is speaking for the middlemen and processors through whose hands surpluses pass before they reach the Government?

Under the present plan the farmer gets only a portion of the Federal expenditures sharing with the middlemen. Under the Brannan plan the middlemen would lose their cut, so naturally would fight it bitterly.

Undermining Foreign Policy

A Communication

WE ARE deeply disturbed by the current attacks upon the integrity and devotion to American interests of the Secretary of State, Mr. Acheson, and the personnel of the State Department.

We are keenly aware of the corrosive results of such attacks upon the efficiency and effectiveness of Government personnel. However much Government officials may steel themselves against irresponsible onslaught, however much they may seek to ignore unfounded personal abuse, their ability to devote themselves to their tasks, to command public confidence and to persuade those with whom they deal are profoundly affected.

It is for this reason that we believe that the irresponsible personal attacks upon Mr. Acheson and the personnel of the State Department represent a serious danger to the national interest. These attacks, sponsored as they are by persons in high position, have the effect of undermining the officials who are in charge of our foreign relations. They are a severe blow to our effectiveness in international affairs.

NO ONE would suggest that it is necessary for Americans to agree on any particular policy advanced by the State Department. All international programs must be subjected to public criticism if they are to receive public support. But the attacks upon the State Department now made are not criticism of its policies. On the contrary, they are attempts to make both Americans and citizens of foreign countries believe that whatever policy the State Department advocates is the product of men who do not have the real interest of the United States at heart. This is being done by innuendo and suggestion of Communist affiliation and sympathy. The effort of the charges is to create suspicion of the motives of those who are engaged in the most difficult task which American diplomacy ever faced.

Nor would it be suggested that officials of the Government, including the State Department, should be immune from criticism or investigation. But to make unsupported charges of Communist affiliation, however disguised or qualified, is base, inexcusable and unpatriotic in a fundamental sense.

ANYONE—including a Senator—who impairs the effectiveness of our international relations for partisan purposes, discredits his party and his office; and anyone who does this by unfounded personal attacks upon the loyalty and integrity of individual public officials, is doubly guilty.

We are forced to conclude that the very purpose of these attacks is to divide the people of this country, for partisan purposes, on the crucial question of foreign policy administration. Certainly its effect is to weaken the position of our officials abroad and to impair their efforts to rally the free nations of the world to united opposition to the spread of communism. No one except a Communist sympathizer or a vain, reckless and arrogant man would deliberately lend himself to such ends.

We write this letter in the hope that others will join with us in expressing to the State Department, in whose hands our destiny is so largely entrusted, that we believe in its high purpose and integrity and that we regard any attempt to undermine confidence in its good faith as subversive of American interests.

Mundt Bill

In his letter of March 10, Mr. Jerry J. O'Connell of the National Committee to Defeat the Mundt Bill has stated that the AFL, CIO, railroad brotherhoods, NAACP, American Civil Liberties Union, Americans for Democratic Action, National Lawyers Guild, and others are opposed to the Mundt bill. I fail to understand why he failed to list the organizations spending the most money and speaking most vociferously for the defeat of this proposal—the Communist Party.

I feel it only right to point out that this same bill has as proponents the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, AMVETS, the National Sojourners, Conference of Small Business Organizations, Chamber of Commerce, Federal Grand Jurors' Association for Eastern New York, American Bar Association, American Wage Earners Association—all organizations whose patriotism and Americanism can hardly be questioned.

I feel the statement by Mr. O'Connell that "The Mundt bill would give the political party temporarily in power authority to outlaw its opposition as 'subversive'" somewhat asinine in view of the fact that if this were true (which it is not) how can this same gentleman explain the fact that this legislation is cosponsored by Senators Ferguson and Johnston of South Carolina, making a total of two Republicans and one Democrat as sponsors of a proposal which, if Mr. O'Connell's statement were true, would serve to outlaw the Republican Party?

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

What Fools We Are!

FRANKFURT, Germany—In the Soviet zone of Germany there is one sight that has, all by itself, the status of a hard fact—a fact even harder, in its peculiar way, than the bleak statistics about the lives of the slave population that are so easy to collect. This is the sight of a Volkspolizei barracks. It means that while we in the West are sadly worrying about the rearmament of western Germany, the Soviets have long ago begun to rearm their Germans of the east zone.

This reporter saw such a barracks on a recent expedition into the Soviet zone. Our little party left the autobahn somewhat illegally to enter Leipzig by a side road. Just before entering the once-charming little town of Weissenfels, the barracks loomed up before us—a large group of big, high, dun-colored buildings, enlivened with red-painted slogans such as "Workers and Volkspolizei United for Peace." The place could have accommodated 2000 men at a pinch.

At present, this barracks at Weissenfels holds only a thousand trainees, since the people's police of the east zone that will some day become the people's army of Germany is still in the first stages of growth. Yet the youth recruits were omnipresent in Weissenfels, immensely smart in their excellent blue uniforms, obviously given a new self-confidence by their generous rations and hard training, lording it over the civilians like the Prussian army of old.

THESE youngsters are not, of course, the foundation of Russian power in east Germany. That rests upon the Russian occupation army of 250,000 men, and upon the secret police of the Ministry of State Security, newly established in flat defiance of all Allied agreements. But the Russians are kept largely out of sight in huge, fenced barracks areas.

Even the Soviet officers have had their families sent home two months ago, and are now only allowed out of the barracks for an occasional night in town. As for the soldiers, they emerge for training (our Chevrolet once rather alarmingly served as a tracking target for four Soviet mobile antitank guns lined up along the roadside at Weimar). And for the rest the troops are kept in the barracks and are not seen. It is the Volkspolizei who are noticeable all over the east zone.

It is time to realize that this Russian-built German army of the future is no joke or newspaper rumor. The first paramilitary units appeared, within the larger mass of the ordinary east zone police, over two years ago. In September, 1949, the para-military parts of the police were separated out, and placed under the command of the famous Gen. Wilhelm Zaisser-Gomez of Spanish civil war fame. These units were then given a purely military character. By now these units of the "Main Administration for Training" already constitute a respectable militia.

THE FACTS about the "Main Administration for Training" are both simple and formidably meaningful. It comprises 11 or 12 officer-training schools and approximately 37 "Bereitschaften" or training groups for noncommissioned officers. Each school or group is commanded by former German officers who have received "antifa" indoctrination. To each unit are attached two "Sovietniks," a Russian staff officer who serves as deputy commander, and an officer of the Russian secret police. The strength of the whole force is between 40 and 50 thousand men.

The training groups are divided by function into infantry, artillery, tank units and engineers. One school is reserved for training staff officers. All have been issued with small arms, machine guns and light artillery. Token issues of Soviet medium tanks and heavier artillery have also been made to appropriate units. Because of haste in original recruiting and the problem of political reliability, attrition in all units has been very high. Bad housing has also been a grave difficulty in many instances. Training should be completed, however, and the next phase should begin, toward the end of this year.

Since the present training is aimed to produce either officers or NCOs, the nature of the next phase is easy to deduce. The graduates of the officers' schools and Bereitshaften will be organized into cadres of tactical units, which they have not as yet been. New troops will be formed and trained under them, first into regiments, and later into divisions. The end result will be a German army of at least 8 or 10 divisions, which should be ready not later than the spring of 1953.

THERE ARE several other points about this German army in embryo which it is interesting to note. For instance, General Zaisser-Gomez has been transferred to become Minister of State Security and master of the secret police of the east zone. His successor as army commander will probably be a former Minister of the Interior of Land Brandenburg, Major Bechler, who was once a member of the so-called "National Bolshevismus" wing of the German general staff. In his person the old general staff is coming back to life.

But the moral of that barracks at Weissenfels is more important than any additional data. What fools we are to ignore this simple Soviet preparation for German unity on Russian terms! And in view of these facts and many others like them, what fools we are to let the voluble untruths of Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson conceal the shabby reality of American disarmament!

Is life subject to chance?

Life often seems insecure. Health, happiness, security are all too precarious for many, in spite of earnest and sincere efforts.

Is there something to depend upon? Is there any power, or Principle, or law that is utterly reliable, and able to operate in humanity's behalf with kindness and goodness and intelligence?

Today Christian Science is providing the answer to these vital questions. Through the thoughtful study of the textbook of Christian Science

SCIENCE and HEALTH with Key to the Scriptures
by Mary Baker Eddy

are found the answers that really satisfy and assure one. Even more, these statements can be put to the test of proof in daily life.

Every day many are thus quietly finding for themselves that there is "something to depend upon" and are increasingly experiencing health, freedom and peace of mind.

McCarthy's Smears

By Marquis Childs

Senate Responsibility For Conduct

UNDER the glow of the television lights Senator McCarthy is beginning to look pale and a little flustered. The material he is offering as evidence of his charges is so very thin that even he himself seems to lack confidence in it.

Childs

His strategy is to spread it out for as long as possible so that it will reap the largest harvest of headlines. It probably contributes to the campaign to remove Dean Acheson from the office of Secretary of State. And certainly it contributes to the uncertainty, the fear and the suspicion that undermine the hopes for a positive, constructive American foreign policy both at home and abroad.

But, in my opinion, that is not the greatest disservice McCarthy is performing. What he is doing that is most dangerous and most reckless is to extend and confirm the technique of the indictment by association and smear.

You don't have to watch the process very long to understand what it is. It is the technique of the revolutionary tribunal, those fantastic mock courts that came into being in the holocaust of the French Revolution. It bears some relation to the methods of the purge trials in Soviet Russia. The whole approach could hardly be more directly at variance with the Anglo-Saxon concept of equal justice under law that has slowly and painfully evolved through the centuries.

REREADING Charles Dickens' thrilling novel, A Tale of Two Cities, you get some idea of what those revolutionary tribunals were like. Victims by the thousands were hauled before so-called courts. If it could be shown in any remote way that the individual had had contact with any aristocrat for whatever reason, the clamor for his blood went up and he was carted off to the guillotine.

Whether this 10-cent store Robespierre from Wisconsin knows it nor not, what he is helping to do is break down law and order. The Senator can reply, of course, with the easy and cynical good humor that is natural to him that his victims are, after all, not guillotined.

But the smear can destroy, too. Denials rarely catch up with the original accusation. They are usually found back among the want ads while the charge itself has blossomed in big headlines on page 1. Few victims have the aggressiveness, the spunk and the resources of Judge Dorothy Kenyon.

The investigating committee itself has a lot to answer for. The method of procedure should have been carefully mapped out before any evidence was presented. It is difficult to see why Chairman Millard Tydings should at the outset have given McCarthy his choice of presenting the charges in public or in closed session since this opened the way for public accusation with the accuser hiding under the cloak of legal immunity.

A PRECEDENT existed for orderly procedure. That was in the inquiry conducted by the Joint Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee into the charges brought by Senator Hickenlooper of Iowa.

Hickenlooper had a list of 27 employes of the Atomic Energy Commission whom he considered in the doubtful category. The names of those individuals were not spread across the front pages. Under Chairman Brien McMahon they were thoroughly reviewed in closed session.

Long before the last case was reached, it was apparent to virtually all committee members that the charges raised were insubstantial. Attendance at the closed sessions fell away to the chairman and one or two others.

But the important point is that reputations were not subjected to lynch law. Elemental justice was observed. If at any time the Atomic Committee had agreed that an individual case warranted a public hearing, then the hearing would have been held. There was no inclination to keep back information to which the public was entitled.

It was too much to expect that McCarthy himself would show a sense of responsibility. Virtually all the material he has produced thus far has come out of the files of other investigating committees, including the notoriously irresponsible California Un-American Activities Committee. Or it is read out of newspapers and magazines.

This seems to me to call for something more than a mere political exchange between Republicans and Democrats. The Senate, under the Constitution, has the power to make its own rules of conduct and to compel its members to live up to those rules. This would be a good time to try to define senatorial responsibility by a new rule.

Methods of Sex Education Hit at Family Conference

Detroit, March 14 (NYHT).—The second day's discussion of the eighteenth annual convention of the National Catholic Conference on Family Life was devoted today to training of children and an attack on dangerous sex education.

More than 500 leading Catholic clergy, educators and lay leaders are attending the conference at the Hotel Book-Cadillac. The conference will close Wednesday.

Robert P. Odenwald, director of the child guidance center of the Catholic University of America, Washington, deplored the fact that "our present-day modern civilization makes it impossible for the parents completely to educate their children at home." He pointed to problem parents as the foremost cause of maladjusted children and juvenile delinquents.

Anne Houck, registered nurse and executive secretary of the National Council of Catholic Nurses, Washington, called on mothers to breast-feed their infants to produce healthier and happier children.

The Rev. Joseph E. Haley of the University of Notre Dame, said in his talk that "we are in a period when reaction to the unrealistic and un-Christian prudery of puritanism has given way to the equally un-Christian shamelessness of hedonistic epicureanism." He said the philosophy of sex has an important part in training children, and suggested making training in chastity an essential part of complete Christian training, and taking a positive attitude and approach toward sex and instruction adapted to the individual child.

The Rev. Demetrius Manousos, of Glencliffe High School, Garrison-on-Hudson, N. Y., said in his address that "if there is a conspiracy against chastity, our strongest armor against it is a correct attitude toward sex."

Senate FEPC Fight Slated To Begin 'Around' March 24

Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) yesterday tentatively slated Senate consideration of the Administration's fair employment practices bill for "around March 24."

The controversial legislation, certain to collide with another Southern filibuster, will be temporarily laid aside on March 31, however, to make way for final action on the displaced persons bill, Lucas said.

Under a debate limitation agreement, the Senate is expected to start voting on the DP bill April 3 or 4, and thereafter would immediately resume debate on the FEPC measure.

Lucas announced tentative scheduling of the long-delayed FEPC bill following the regular weekly conference of the Senate Democratic Policy Committee.

The policy group programmed these other measures ahead of the FEPC bill: Middle-income housing, now being debated and slated for a vote today; the natural gas bill and the flood control bill.

The House last month substituted a voluntary FEPC bill for the Administration's compulsory measure. Highly-placed Senate Republicans, opposed to compulsory FEPC legislation, said the House action improved the admittedly dim outlook for getting the 64 Senate votes necessary to shut off a Southern filibuster.

Federal School Aid Measure Killed by House Labor Group

lion dollars in Federal aid exclusively for teachers pay.

Long Religious Dispute

Torn by a long-simmering religious dispute and differences over whether Federal control of public schools is involved, the committee twice turned down the Senate bill, once on a motion to report it favorably, and later on a motion to reconsider. Two members changed sides on the second try, and the motion again failed, 13 to 12.

The committee then voted 18 to 1 for a subcommittee study of a bill by Representative Wingate H. Lucas (D., Tex.) authorizing the RFC to make construction loans to school districts.

Chairman John Lesinski (D., Mich.) ruled out attempts to tie general aid measures to the school construction move. The committee backed him up, 14 to 10.

Following the meeting, Lesinski declared flatly that "no acceptable bill preventing Federal domination of local schools can be drawn."

Said Lesinski:

"It seems to me now that the best type of Federal aid that we can supply is by way of assistance in the construction of schools. I hope that the subcommittee I will appoint brings in a bill soon."

Several other members similarly interpreted the votes as a death blow to general aid legislation, but House Majority Leader John W. McCormack (Mass.) told reporters:

"I wouldn't say it's dead if a little rationalism prevails."

The dispute which has deadlocked the committee for months centered chiefly around whether parochial and other nonpublic schools should share in Federal aid for so-called "fringe" services, such as bus transportation.

The Senate approved bill, shelved yesterday, left that question up to the individual States.

In yesterday's committee showdown, the vote was not officially announced, but here's how the committee reportedly divided:

Against the Senate bill—Lesinski, Barden (D., N. C.), Kennedy (D., Mass.), Lucas, Steed (D., Okla.), Burke, McConnell (R., Pa.), Gwinn (R., N. Y.), Smith (R., Kans.), Kearns (R., Pa.), Nixon (R., Calif.), Werdel (R., Calif.) and Velde (R., Ill.).

For the Senate bill—Kelley (D., Pa.), Powell (D., N. Y.), Wood (D., Ga.), Bailey (D., W. Va.), Irving (D., Mo.), Perkins (D., Ky.), Howell (D., N. J.), Sims (D., S. C.), Jacobs, Wier (D., Minn.), Brehm (R., Ohio) and Morton (R., Ky.).

Burke later moved to reconsider the vote, but this motion likewise failed 13 to 12. Except for two switches (Burke voting to reconsider and Brehm voting against it), the line-up was the same.

Finland Faces Coalition Rule Including Reds

Helsinki, Finland, March 14 (U.P.). Agrarian Leader Urho Kekkonen, speaker of Parliament, today accepted a mandate to form a coalition government.

He proposed a 16-man cabinet which would include three Communists and immediately ran into trouble. His own Agrarian Party, the largest in Finland, is reported in opposition to inclusion of the Reds. The Social Democrats declared they could not work with him because he had not formulated a policy.

3 Seamen's Unions Hit Hiring Hall Ban

Leaders of three seamen's unions urged Congress today to exempt maritime hiring halls from the closed shop ban in the Taft-Hartley Act.

Andrew MacDonald, general chairman of the AFL Radio Officers Union, told a Senate subcommittee on labor-management relations that the ban on the hiring hall "will put our union out of business."

MacDonald was backed up by W. J. Van Buren, secretary-treasurer of the national organization of Masters, Mates and Pilots of America, and H. L. Daggett, president of the CIO National Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association.

Melbourne, Australia, March 14 (AP).—When his truck caught fire on the highway, the driver put in a rush call to the fire departments of two nearby towns to bring fire extinguishers.

The firemen put out the blaze and then found the truck carried a load of 400 fire extinguishers.

South Carolina House Votes $10,000 to Impeach Waring

Columbia, S. C., March 14 (AP). The South Carolina House of Representatives voted today to put up $10,000 to finance the proposed impeachment of United States District Judge J. Waties Waring of Charleston.

Waring's 1947-48 orders opened State Democratic primary voting and party membership to Negroes.

Representative Hare (D., S. C.) reported in Washington last week that a resolution to impeach Waring had been prepared for introduction in Congress.

The State House of Representatives previously had voted to appropriate money to buy Judge and Mrs. Waring one-way tickets out of South Carolina.

Steeplejack Falls 150 Feet Into Snow

Ottawa, March 14 (U.P.)—A 23-year-old steeplejack working on a Parliament Building tower fell 150 feet into a deep snowbank today and lived.

Authorities at Ottawa General Hospital said the youth, Robert Swartzman, was in "fair condition." He suffered a broken leg, fractured ribs and shock.

Swartzman was repairing roofing on the tower of the building housing Canada's trade and commerce department when the small platform gave way. The deep snowbank at the foot of the tower saved his life.

Medical Clinic Set For Alexandria

Northern Virginia physicians will get a one-day crack at the latest in medical techniques next month, the Alexandria Medical Society announced yesterday.

The society, according to Dr. Milton R. Stein, secretary, will hold its first annual Northern Virginia Clinical Assembly from 9:30 a. m. to 5 p. m. April 16. The place will be Ficklin Elementary School auditorium, Alexandria.

Aim Outlined

Aim of the assembly, Dr. Stein said, is to afford physicians a "general review of all topics." He pointed out that many doctors practicing in small communities have not had the opportunity to brush up on newest medical and scientific developments.

Here are the speakers and their topics:

"Immediate Treatment of Fractures," 9:30 a. m., Dr. Custis Lee Hall, clinical professor of surgery, George Washington University; "Vaginal Bleeding," 10:10 a. m., Dr. J. Mason Hundley, jr., professor of gynecology, Maryland University.

A discussion of "the newer antibiotics and their limitations," 10:50 a. m., Dr. Theodore E. Woodward, assistant professor of medicine, Maryland University; followed at 11:30 by a discussion period and luncheon at noon.

Pediatric Address

At 1:20 p. m., "Pediatric Emergencies" will be presented by Dr. Alexander J. Schaffer, assistant professor of pediatrics at Johns Hopkins University. "Acute Surgery Abdomen" will be discussed at 2 p. m. by Robert J. Coffey, professor of surgery at Georgetown University.

"Psychiatric Emergencies and What the Medical Man Can Do," 2:50 p. m., Dr. Harvey J. Tompkins, chief of the Veterans' Administration psychiatry and neurology division; "Treatment of Duodenal Ulcer," 3:30 p. m., Dr. J. Edward Berk, assistant professor of medicine, Temple University.

"Acute Cardiac Emergency," 4:10 p. m., Dr. Sidney Scherelis, instructor of medicine, Johns Hopkins University. A discussion period will round out the assembly.

At Book Luncheon

Navy Volume Author to Be On Program

Comdr. Lederer

A Navy commander who got his first writing job after describing himself as "the world's worst writer" will speak at The Washington Post Book and Author Luncheon on Friday, March 24, at the Statler Hotel.

He is Comdr. William J. Lederer, author of the humorous story of Navy life, "All the Ships At Sea." Lederer was 15 at the time, and the job was with veteran journalist Heywood Broun.

Lederer's adventures and misadventures with the Navy began when he joined the Navy to get a free college education at Annapolis.

After his graduation from Annapolis, Lederer saw active duty on the USS Indianapolis, the USS Hovey and the USS Bulmer. He was serving as executive officer of the USS Bristol when she was sunk in the Mediterranean in 1943.

Lederer, 47, son of a dentist who gave up the profession to go on the stage, now lives in Falls Church, Va., with his wife and three small sons.

The three other speakers at the luncheon will be Margaret Culkin Banning, whose latest novel "Give Us Our Years" will be published March 29 by Harper and Brothers; James Burnham, author of "The Coming Defeat of Communism," and Clare Barnes, jr., author of "White Collar Zoo" and "Home Sweet Zoo."

Tickets for the luncheon, at 1 p. m. in the Statler's Presidential Room, are $3 and may be obtained at Washington book stores.

Yield From New Diamond Field Is 'Phenomenal'

Accra, Gold Coast, Africa, March 14 (AP).—The Secretary of the Chamber of Mines at Tarkwa today said the yield from a new diamond field discovered in the Gold Coast is "phenomenal."

An African prospector who ignored a local taboo reportedly discovered the field in an area 50 miles inland from Takoradi between the Tarkwa and Abosso gold mining areas. There is a local legend that the region is haunted.

When the news leaked out, reports here say, scores of other prospectors shook off their fears and flocked into the locality.

GE Develops Robot to Do Atomic Work

Schenectady, N. Y., March 14 (U.P.).—The General Electric Corp. disclosed today it has developed a one-armed mobile robot almost as versatile as the human hand for use in atomic laboratories where radiation might endanger live workers.

It said the new robot, prosaically known as a tool dolly despite its almost human capabilities, will be used in the company's atomic plants. It can close doors, turn valves and tear down and reassemble complex machinery.

GE said the device will be used to do work on or near radioactive materials where men cannot go for fear of contamination. The robot rolls on wheels and is operated by remote control from a shielded room nearby.

The dolly, which weighs about five tons, is said to look like a railroad handcar with a small-sized naval-type gun mounted on it. The barrel part of the "gun" actually is a telescope arm to one end of which clamps are attached.

These clamps—the "hand"—can bend like a wrist, rotate, grip, and pick dimes from the floor even when operated by a learner.

In addition to the "hand" the dolly also has a hydraulic ram with a four-ton push, rotating devices to open and close valves, and specialized attachments to work on machinery.

The robot features 24 electric motors—six in the hand and arm, a three-foot movable mirror to allow its operator to see what his "third hand" is doing, and 23 controlling switches, nine of which work the arm and hand.

Israel Lets Moslems Help Run Affairs

Tel Aviv, Israel, March 14 (AP).—The Israeli government is giving the Moslems living in this little Jewish state a full voice in running their own affairs.

Courts, schools, community councils and settlements are being operated by and for the 120,000 people who constitute the Moslem community.

Four Moslem tribunals are functioning in Nazareth, Acre, Haifa and Majdal. A fifth soon is to be opened in the Jaffa sector of Tel Aviv.

Special Moslem committees are cooperating with the Ministry of Religious Affairs in providing care for orphans, the aged, religious libraries and mosques. Moslems enjoy all the legal privileges of an Israeli citizen.

During the last six months about 60 Moslem officials have been appointed by the government, bringing the total to 150. Of these, 40 are muezzins, imams, preachers, mosque keepers and sheikhs. Sheikh Taher E-Tabari recently was named Israel's first kadi (district judge) for civil and religious matters. The post is next in line to the highest religious one of mufti.

WE INVITE THE RUPTURED OF WASHINGTON

To A Private Trial Fitting Of New Rice Support

If you are ruptured and wear a truss, now is your opportunity to get a 30-day trial of a scientifically constructed rupture support "made up" to meet the needs of your particular and individual condition.

Rice Fitting Experts of Adams, N. Y., will be at the Harrington Hotel, 11th & E Sts. N.W., Washington, D. C., from Thurs. morning, March 16, through Sat. afternoon, March 18, to give free demonstrations and private trial fittings of a Support designed to comfortably hold any reducible rupture—large or small—no matter where located or what your work may be.

Backed by more than 60 years' experience and fitted by Experts with a thorough knowledge of what they are doing, the Modern Rice Support should prove to be a revelation to the most skeptical—and you are allowed a 30-day trial period to see if this is so. No binding, cutting or chafing, but a comfortable, evenly directed pressure at just the right spot to keep bowel from escaping.

Thousands have reported entire satisfaction with the Rice Support, so why endure the burden of reducible rupture suffering if you can be free from it? Anyway, it will cost you nothing to come in and learn about Rice methods and the wonderful opportunity it offers. Just ask at the hotel desk for the Rice Experts and they will do the rest. Hours: Thurs. & Fri., 10 to 12 a.m., 2 to 5 p.m., or 7 to 9 evenings & Sat. 10 to 12 a.m., 1 to 5 p.m. There is absolutely no obligation and you are promised friendly, courteous treatment.

Rep. Harris Accuses Post of Maligning Congressmen in Effort to Get Home Rule

Representative Oren Harris (D., Ark.) yesterday accused The Washington Post of maligning members of Congress as part of a "high pressure" effort to obtain passage of a Washington home rule bill.

Harris, in a speech to the House, sharply criticized the newspaper story in yesterday's Post about Monday's House District day.

Harris emphasized that he had opposed from the outset the legal hours for serving liquor in the District from midnight Saturday to 2 a. m. Sunday.

The liquor bill became a hotly disputed issue in House voting Monday when a 242-to-70 majority refused to consider the bill.

The Washington Post story emphasized a shift in the prevailing sentiment of the House District Committee members from majority support for the bill when the committee acted upon it to majority opposition against it when the House voted Monday.

Harris protested that his vote in committee against the bill was not mentioned in the story, although he had disclosed his vote in committee to The Washington Post reporter who wrote the story.

The reporter had called Representative Harris to learn why his name appeared as the author of the report recommending that the House approve the liquor bill. Representative Harris explained this point by saying that the report had been filed in the House in his name because the measure had been considered by the District Judiciary Subcommittee of which he is chairman.

He said he did not know his name was on the report until Monday. The writing of reports to accompany bills is frequently left to the committee staff, and the routine procedure is to file the reports in the name of the chairman whose subcommittee prepared the bill.

Representative James C. Davis (D., Ga.) said he also voted against the bill in the committee and in the House. The lineup of District Committee members in the House vote was 13 to 4 against considering the liquor bill; committee members said this was almost the exact reverse of the committee vote that recommended House passage of the liquor bill.

Representative Harris told the House:

"The purpose of the newspaper article was again to malign the members of Congress."

Representative Harris said that Representative John W. Heselton (R., Mass.), who had followed Monday's District Day with a strong appeal for Washington home rule, had been acting as the "mouth organ for the highly prejudiced Washington Post."

Representative Harris also voiced regrets that The Post story had mixed together the controversial liquor and FEPC issues "to promote their high-pressure efforts for 'so-called' home rule."

Cancer Research Hospital Ready Soon at Oak Ridge

Oak Ridge, Tenn., March 14 (U.P.). Selected patients will begin arriving at Oak Ridge within a month or six weeks for the first cancer research with "perishable" atomic materials, it was disclosed today.

Children suffering leukemia, or cancer of the white blood cells, will be among the first admitted. Only 30 patients at a time, chosen in advance, will come to the cancer research hospital.

The hospital nevertheless is regarded as the first practical step toward making Oak Ridge a world center for cancer studies using atomic materials. The research center is being built as a wing of the present Oak Ridge Hospital.

Heretofore, no facilities have been available for research into the powers of so-called "short-lived" isotopes.

Neely Chides Bar on 'Rule'

Senator Matthew W. Neely, (D., W.Va.), last night accused 150 members of the District of Columbia Bar Association of "lethargy and lack of patriotism" for failing to lead the fight for national representation for Washington.

Chairman of the Senate District Committee, Neely told the lawyers at a Mayflower Hotel gathering they were "going to be voteless and voiceless from now until the end of time" if they were not ambitious enough or interested enough to fight.

It was District of Columbia Night at the Bar Association meeting and these District officials were called upon to take a bow: George E. Keneipp, Director of Vehicles and Traffic; Vernon E. West, Corporation Counsel; Guy W. Pearson, Collector of Taxes; Joseph A. Mewhew, Chief Engineer of the Fire Department; Arthur R. Pilkerton, District Auditor; C. T. Nottingham, Superintendent of Licenses, and Albert F. Jordan, Superintendent of the Insurance Department.

Neely Backs AFL Law Plan

Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.), Senate District Committee chairman, yesterday indorsed creation of a District labor department and other local labor law revisions recommended by the Washington Central Labor Union, AFL, and promised his active support.

Besides the labor department, sections of the proposed labor program include:

1. A law providing that wages must be paid in cash on regular pay days.
2. Stronger regulation of private employment agencies.
3. Revision of the child labor laws.
4. Increases in unemployment compensation benefits from the present maximum of $20 a week for 20 weeks, to $30 a week for 26 weeks.
5. Broadening coverage of minimum wage legislation.

Grant Opposes E. Capitol Span

Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant, 3d, sharply criticized the District Commissioners yesterday for sponsoring the proposal to bridge the Anacostia River at East Capitol st.

He denounced the plan as "extravagant," said it would violate numerous acts of Congress for improvement of Washington.

General Grant was one of three witnesses at a House District Subcommittee hearing to protest the East Capitol plan. He urged Massachusetts ave. se. as the site for the next Anacostia span.

Trade Board Stand

William H. Press, executive secretary of the Washington Board of Trade, said his organization supports the District Commissioners in their choice of the East Capitol st. site.

Two other witnesses, Dr F. P. Cullinan, assistant chief of the Agriculture Department's Bureau of Plant Industry, and Frederic P. Lee, chairman of the National Arboretum Advisory Council, urged the District subcommittee not to let a major road be run through the Arboretum grounds in northeast Washington.

Arboretum Protected

District Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young earlier had assured the subcommittee that the District would give up a right of way through the Arboretum if the East Capitol st. bridge is built.

The hearing will be resumed at 10 a. m. today.

General Grant, former chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, appeared for the American Planning and Civic Association.

Peoples Drug Reports Net of $3.95 a Share

By S. Oliver Goodman

Peoples Drug Stores, Inc. yesterday reported net income of $1,695,103 for 1949, equal to $3.95 a share. This compared with 1948 net of $1,722,215 or $4.01 a share.

In his annual report, President T. N. Beavers noted that last year's sales of $46,954,187 were 4 percent less than in 1948.

He added that during 1949 two new stores were opened, one store was closed, five were moved to new locations and 13 were remodeled and modernized. At the close of the year, the chain operated 141 retail stores. In 1950, he said, it is planned to open three new stores, one store will be moved to a new location and eight other stores will be air-conditioned.

His report also cited the repayment of a $1,400,000 bank loan five years ahead of due date.

Current assets as of December 31, 1949, totaled $10,628,513, with current liabilities of $3,865,420. Ratio of current assets to current liabilities was 2.75 to 1, compared with 2.57 to 1 on December 31, 1948.

SECRET REVEALED: Britons hoping to sell goods in the United States were told a secret about about the American market. "We don't keep goods. We throw them away," said Arthur H. Motley, leader of a group of nine American salesmen in London to tell about American sales methods. "A definition of durable goods," Motley added, "is goods that will last until time payments are completed."

TURNABOUT: Net income of Glenn L. Martin Co. in 1949 totaled $5,131,500 or $4.52 a share, President C. C. Pearson reported last night. This marked a significant turnabout from the past two years when sizable net losses were shown for the Baltimore aircraft maker. Net loss for 1948 was $16,-731,000. Pearson said that last year's earnings, the most substantial since 1945, were realized despite a decline in sales to 52 million dollars from above 72 million in 1948. No further commercial model inventory write-offs were required last year, Pearson said, and closer controls over costs also aided.

NEW MANAGER: Clyde M. Larmer has been named manager of the Washington agency of The Union Central Life Insurance Co. of Cincinnati, effective today. He succeeds Rains Wallace, who will remain with the organization as associate manager, specializing on brokerage and policyholder relations. Larmer has been in the insurance business since 1937. For the past four years he has been assistant manager of the Mutual Life Insurance Co. in Washington.

ODD LOTS: Zinc and tin prices were raised yesterday while lead price was cut . . . Du Pont reduced prices about 2.3 percent on tetraethyl lead used in gasoline anti-knock compound . . . Greater efficiency saved American railroads about 900 million dollars last year compared with 1941 operating costs, according to James H. Aydelott of the Association of American Railroads . . . Dun & Bradstreet reports business failures in week ended March 9 totaled 221 against 179 in preceding week.

EFFECT DISCOUNTED: Fire which destroyed Hecht Bros. branch furniture store in Baltimore "will not materially effect sales" of the Hecht Co., parent firm, President Samuel M. Hecht reported yesterday. Sales of the destroyed unit accounted for less than 1½ percent of the company's 1949 net sales of 84 million dollars, he pointed out. All merchandise and fixtures were fully insured.

ASSETS: Three Washington member associations of the U. S. Savings and Loan League have assets exceeding 27 million dollars, the League reported yesterday. They are Perpetual Building Association with $105,-643,000 (largest in the nation); National Permanent Building Association, $29,239,000, and American Building Association, $27,488,000. The figures are as of December 31, 1949.

EARNINGS: Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. reported record net income of $38,135,088 or $4.22 a share for 1949, compared with $32,748,900 or $3.65 a share in 1948. Other earnings statements:

SEC Debates Tough Question: How Much Do Investors Read?

By J. A. Livingston

HERE'S a little quiz to determine whether you're a good guardian of your own rights, whether you act with reasonable caution in taking care of your financial and economic interests.

When you buy a new electric iron or mechanical washing machine, do you always read the manufacturer's guarantee so that you'll know in advance how far the company will go in making repairs in case something goes wrong? When you bought your last insurance policy, did you read it in entirety? Or did you just accept it on the insurance agent's say-so?

Livingston

What about when you sign a lease? Do you read the fine print? Or again, do you depend on the real estate agent? I know of a tenant being sued for damages because a woman fell in front of his house. A clause in the lease stipulated that the occupant was responsible for sidewalk repairs, not the landlord.

If you own common stock, do you read the company's annual and quarterly reports? Do you study the proxy statements? Even more than that, have you ever purchased a newly issued security and, if so, did you read the prospectus—the report filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission giving the history of the company, the purpose of the issue, the contracts the company has, the properties owned, and so on? Or did you just take your broker's word for it all?

THAT'S FAR from an academic question. Right now it's being mulled over by the SEC. And it's a tough nut. Chairman McDonald, who used to be in the securities business himself, feels that prospectuses are all right for security dealers, financial analysts, insurance companies, banks, and investment trusts, and so on. But to most individual investors, they're bulky and forbidding.

Other commissioners and the SEC staff have more faith in people's willingness to read than McDonald. Edward T. McCormick, author of the scholarly book, "Understanding the Securities Act and the SEC," and a new commissioner, believes that people do study the prospectus — particularly after they've bought a lemon once or twice. Further, McCormick believes investors ought to read prospectuses, and therefore he wants them made available as a matter of course whenever new securities are issued.

The issue comes up because the SEC commissioners want to have the Securities Act amended to conform to life. Experience, after 16 years, shows that Congress made the act too inflexible. If underwriters and brokers complied with the letter of the law, the securities business would be tied up in knots.

THE LAW stipulates that brokers and dealers are not permitted to sell or offer for sale a security until it has been registered with the SEC. That means that an underwriter, when he makes a commitment, would have no idea whether he could sell the securities he is committed to buy. He couldn't test the market. He couldn't find out what investors think about his wares.

In actual practice, the law is winked at. As soon as a registration statement—a prospectus—is filed with the SEC, underwriters, brokers and dealers call up their regular customers, tell them about the XYZ Co., and say, if you're interested, I'll reserve stock for you.

If the prospect says okay, that's referred to as an "evidence of interest," not a sale. Then when the security registration becomes affective, usually in 20 days, the broker mails the customer a prospectus along with a confirmation, and as a practical matter, the sale is completed. The customer gets the prospectus after the purchase. He has bought on the broker's say-so, though he can, if he reads the prospectus, say he decided he'd rather not buy. In such an instance, he'd quickly get on his broker's blacklist.

ALL COMMISSIONERS are agreed that security dealers should be allowed to solicit customers while a security is in registration. That would give the underwriter time to size up the market. But the SEC staff says the broker ought to be required to mail a preliminary prospectus to the customer at least 24 hours before the transaction can become binding.

McDonald feels that the prospectus should be provided only on request. He'd provide a highlight summary for the investor. Argues McDonald: An investor who reads a summary is better informed than the investor who groans at the full prospectus and uses it to play basketball with the waste basket.

McCormick and the staff want to cut out the unnecessary and legalistic material. And they've been succeeding slowly. Prospectuses have been getting shorter and less complex in terminology. But they're still long. Two came to my desk today. The Hoffman Radio Corp. preliminary prospectus is 37 pages plus, Texas Gas Transmission Corp. is 48 pages. And neither reads like "The Sun Also Rises."

One on the Aisle—

Ingenious Puzzler Is Neatly Knitted

By Richard L. Coe

"THE THIRD MAN," at the Playhouse, is a mesmerizing mystery yarn about a man who didn't seem to be there but was. It's well worth your while.

It's from the talents of the two men who gave us "The Fallen Idol," Author Graham Greene and Director Carol Reed. These two work beautifully together, and while I don't think it's up to the brilliance of "The Fallen Idol," it's an ingenious tale neatly told.

The leading actors are Joseph Cotten, Trevor Howard, Valli and Orson Welles, who is, for a change, darn good as the guy who wasn't there. Another feature of which you've probably heard is the background music, chiefly a zither which permeates eerily throughout the whole business. I found it quite a diverting novelty but it just goes to show how numbed we all are by background music when a mere zither can send you reeling into the streets.

Cotten plays an American pulp fiction writer who goes to Vienna to look up an old, disreputable pal. This character is buried the day he gets there, and while Joe didn't admire him, he did like him, and wants to figure out how he died.

By delving into the matter, he comes across a British major who advises him to let the matter rest. Bad type, the late chum was, dabbling in the black market and causing no end of harm with his dealings in penicillin. He also meets the pal's actress-girl friend, a chic type but a mum one. It turns out she's afraid the Russians will want to send her back to Czechoslovakia, for she's existing on a false passport supplied by her late suitor.

Then one night a cat happens to make friends with a pair of legs in the dark. Before the film's over we've had an exciting trip on a ferris wheel and quite a time in the neat, gurgling sewers of ault Wien.

It's all neatly sewn together and recalls the early Hitchcock spy chasers, "The Lady Vanishes" and "The 39 Steps." The playing is fitted nicely to the director's and writer's specifications and there are some appealing portraits limned by Austrian actors, for the picture was made on the spot.

"THE THIRD MAN," Selznick Releasing Organization release from Sir Alexander Korda. Screen play by Graham Greene from his own story. Produced and directed by Carol Reed. Zither music composed and played by Anton Karas. At the Playhouse.

COMMENTING on the One-Act Tournament winners yesterday this column gaffed badly . . . Stated that Anne Seigel of American U., won the Maud Howell Smith award; Miss S. was one of the second-place winners along with the Neighborhood Players' John K. Davidson . . . Winner of the Smith Award (which we printed correctly in a news story) was and still is James Elward of the Foundry Players, an organization justifiably miffed at our poor reading of our own notes, as are we.

CAROL CHANNING'S finally been assigned a standby for her wonderful Lorelei Lee in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," and who does she turn out to be but Bibi Osterwald, that lively Government gal who jumped from roadside mellers to Catholic U. and its "Sing Out Sweet Land" and via that to Broadway, where she's done fine in musicals and the clubs ever since . . . Because Carol carries "Blondes," but hasn't yet been given her deserts as a star, a standby's long been thought likely . . . A tough job and who ever would have thought one of our gals would get it? . . . Bibi's fearful: "I hope," she says, "that Carol never, ever gets sick."

FAYE EMERSON'S Monday night TV dramas mean that "Goodbye, My Fancy" will be having Sunday night performances instead of Mondays for the two-week run starting next Tuesday at the Gayety.

"SAMSON AND DELILAH" have settled on a Washington date . . . The Cecil B. DeMille film with Hedy Lamarr and Victor Mature will open at the Capitol April 8.

HOLMES ALEXANDER'S dramatization of his "Aaron Burr" biography is the week's bill of the Vagabond Players in Baltimore . . .

THIS IS A ZITHER, that basic instrument which supplies the curious background music for "The Third Man." The man at the strings is Anton Karas, the Viennese musician whose work caught the fancy of Carol Reed, director of the mystery yarn now at the Playhouse

Alexander's Washington and national coverage have given him Nation-wide readership and the lively Baltimore group thinks highly of his well-authenticated play . . . Also in Baltimore, at Ford's for a return visit, is "Brigadoon."

THE NEW Georgetown Theater, latest of the amateur groups, makes its bow tonight in "This Is It" in the auditorium of Christ Church, 31st and O sts. . . . Performances will be held each week through April 8 on Wednesday through Saturday evenings.

THE ALEXANDRIA Little Theater tonight winds up its run of the Tennessee Williams-Donald Windham play, "You Touched Me!" and tomorrow night, in the city's Cameron st. recreation center, starts casting its next, an original three-act mystery comedy by Alden Ryan, "The Tangled Webb." . . . Casting starts at 8:15.

Leoffler Given Hike in Fees on Public Courses

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

To Whom It May Concern:

ORLANDO, FLA., March 14.—Fully recovered from gunshot wounds by a half-crazed girl who thought she was in love with him, bachelor Eddie Waitkus of the Phillies now says: "Only one woman ever thought I was wonderful, and she was nuts." . . .

POVICH

Under the new rules limiting the spread of first basemen's mitts to four inches at the webbing between the thumb and forefinger, they are actually narrower than infielders' gloves . . . The same ruling that compelled Joe DiMaggio to discard his net-webbed fielders' glove also forced Outfielders Gil Coan and Irv Noren of the Nats to buy new gloves sans the netting . . . Johnny McHale, former Buffalo and Detroit first baseman now an executive of the Tigers' farm system, had a cheerful report for Bucky Harris when he visited the Nats' training camp. Pointing to Pitcher Steve Nagy, McHale said, "I got one hit off that guy in five years in the Piedmont and International leagues." . . . Since it was indicated emphatically by Clark Griffith that he did not require the active help of John J. Jachym, his new 40 percent partner, Jachym has kept discreetly aloof from the Nats' president. "I haven't seen him since January 3," said Jachym. That, significantly, was the date of the stockholders meeting when Griff was revoted control of the club.

WHEN Jimmy Dykes and Al Simmons were Connie Mack's coaches last year, they had an agreement that if either one was thrown out of the game by an umpire, the other would shut up lest Mr. Mack be compelled to go on the baselines himself . . . The umps got hep to the secret and realized they could subdue both prize hecklers simply by taking action against either one . . . Charlie Justice, now vacationing in Orlando, is playing coy with the Redskins who have been suggesting salary terms but haven't yet tendered him a contract. Justice gives many reasons why he won't play pro football, including his statements that at 170 pounds he's too small, and the objections of his wife. But he has never said "positively." . . . The Nats are lying in wait for the Red Sox and Yankees who are overstocked with pitchers, to attempt to get their surplus waived out of the league. They're ready to claim three of 'em . . . Joe McCarthy is trying to take some comfort from his own statement pointing out that Joe Page of the Yankees has never had two successful seasons in a row . . . Page could point out that since McCarthy took over the Red Sox, he hasn't had one successful season in a row.

MICKEY GRASSO, the Nats' fiery rookie catcher, who was ejected from 23 games by the Coast League umpires last season, has asked the baseball writers to soft-pedal that stuff . . . "I love all the umpires," says Grasso discreetly, "and I want to break into the majors with a clean slate. Please desist." . . . Gene Bearden, the prize rookie of 1948, says it wasn't the sophomore year jinx that stopped him last season, but an injured leg he suffered while fielding a bunt in Griffith Stadium on May 8 . . . Cuban Catcher Mickey Guerra who is still absent from the A's camp, has gotten away with the dodge of overstaying his leave so many years that Connie Mack no longer fumes at him, but accepts any excuse . . . A couple of years ago, Guerra was two weeks late because, he said, he had eaten two bad eggs in Havana. Last year, he refused to report until Mack agreed to pay his U. S. income tax . . . Joe Tipton, recently of the White Sox where he had trouble with Manager Jack Onslow, may oust Guerra as the A's No. One catcher. In their two games at West Palm Beach, the Nats rode Tipton fiercely from the dugout, calling him "Onslow's Little Bobo." . . . The mildest-mannered Washington player off the field, Gil Coan, is the ring-leader of the razzberry chorus in the dugout.

GEORGE McQUINN is back in the minors as a manager, but he is drawing big league royalties from the McQuinn model first baseman's mitt which he endorsed. The Rawlings Company can't manufacture a sufficient supply to meet the demand . . . the most popular glove used by pitchers and outfielders is the long-fingered Mort Cooper model . . . George Genovese, the smallest Nat, swings the biggest bat on the club, 35 inches long, 35 ounces in weight, and chokes it . . . Benny Bengough, former catcher with great Yankee teams, and Bucky Harris of the Nats, cut up old touches the other day. They both remembered when they reported to the Giants for a tryout and were turned down for lack of size by John McGraw . . . For 26 years, Clark Griffith has been carrying the silver dollar that was tossed in the air to decide the locale of the seventh game of the 1924 Series. McGraw called "tails," was wrong, and the game was awarded to Griffith Stadium, not the Polo Grounds . . . Jackie Robinson now admits that he's slowing up, a fact noted early last season from the press boxes . . . The Nats may yet trade Eddie Robinson to the Yankees for an outfielder, a pitcher and an infielder; not necessarily a first baseman. The Washington bosses are convinced Irv Noren could give them a big league job at first base.

Nats Refuse To Worry Over Hitless Irv Noren

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Orlando, Fla., March 14.—Irv Noren, the $70,000 rookie outfielder from the Coast League, has yet to get his first hit at the end of three exhibition games, but the Nats' bosses are not at all panicked by that fact.

Noren has been striking out, popping up, and indeed, hasn't lifted a ball beyond the infield. Not only that, but he floundered a couple of times while racing fo. long fly balls and altogether has been a lackluster performer.

Were the Nats' bosses minus the backlog they have on Noren, they'd be grieving painfully over the $70,000 they spent and wondering if the husky blond fellow could make good with their Chattanooga farm club.

Yet Harris and Griffith are completely unperturbed. "If I hadn't seen him hit all those home runs and rack up that .330 average in the Coast League against pretty good pitching, I'd be worried," said Harris today. "As it is, I was prepared for this sort of thing."

Harris Forewarned

According to Harris, Noren's manager at Hollywood, Fred Haney, had forewarned him about the follow's utter incompetency in the spring. "I had him in camp last spring," said Haney, "and he wasn't worth a dime. After the season started, I wondered how a hitter could look so bad in training and hit so well when it counted."

Griffith is equally unexcited about Noren's dismal showing. "He's like all the rest of those power hitters with a hitch in their swing," comments Griffith. "They don't get their timing down until they see a lot of pitching, and then they are plain murder.

"Goose Goslin was the same type of hitter—wasn't worth a nickel in training on our club. Noren will come around the same way."

There's excuse for Noren's inability to get to certain balls that have fallen in front of him and over his head, says Harris. "Here in Tinker Field and down at Palm Beach, there's nothing but sand in those outfields. You can't get over the ground. You do a lot of running and get nowhere. Noren can go as far for a fly ball as any player can and he'll prove it."

Yost, Dente, Can Please

On the pleasing side, Harris for the first time viewed Eddie Yost as a power hitter the other day when he saw him belt a homer against the Phils and he was encouraged by the home run off Gil Coan's bat that was labeled one of the longest ever hit in Orlando. He saw Sam Dente make two of his patented hits into right field, and also watched Al Kozar sting the ball.

IN SHORT—At Palm Beach the other day, where the Nats were playing the A's, a stranger was talking to Rookie Pitcher Bob McChesney on the Washington bench . . . Harris was somewhat muffed when he learned that the character was Eddie Hogan, A's publicity man, who was trying to interest McChesney in signing a contract to play football for the Philadelphia Eagles . . . Hogan is also on the payroll of the Eagles. He got little encouragement from McChesney, who has been getting a lot of encouragement from Harris about choosing a baseball career . . . Clark Griffith journeyed to the Chattanooga farm team workout at Winter Garden, and came back with news of two incipient Washington regulars—Roberto Fernando, Cuban outfielder, and Harold Harrigan, third baseman from Asheville . . . He saw them both batter the fences and predicts they'll be with the Nats next season . . . The Nats face another open date tomorrow before leaving for the Florida West Coast for games with the Yankees, Cardinals and Reds over the week-end.

He Also Gets Pay Increase Of $3000 In New Pact

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Severine G. Leoffler, sr., oft-criticized czar of the local public golf courses, was given an official go-ahead yesterday to continue operation.

In fact, he was granted greens fee increases ranging up to 60 percent—which start today—and presented with a tidy $3000 salary boost.

All this was provided under a new agreement reached with the Interior Department and approved unanimously yesterday by the D. C. Recreation Board.

Leoffler has been running the courses for more than a year without a contract. Last spring he was under severe congressional fire and before his last pact expired golfers themselves complained over the condition of the courses.

The rates that go into effect today follow:

	New	Old
Langston, 9 holes, weekday	.30	.20
Langston, 9 holes, weekend, holiday	.50	.35
E. Potomac and Rock Creek 9 holes, weekdays	.40	.25
9 holes, weekend, holiday	.50	.40
E. Potomac, Rock Creek and Anacostia 18 holes, weekdays	.80	.40
18 holes, weekend, holiday	.90	.75
Fort Dupont, 9 holes, weekday	.60	.50
Fort Dupont, 9 holes, weekend, holiday	.90	1.00
Fort Dupont, new 18-hole ticket weekdays	.90
Fort Dupont, new 18-hole ticket, weekend and holiday	1.50
Miniature golf	.35	.35
Driving Range for 35 balls	.50	.50

There's no time limit in the agreement. It says only that the S. G. Leoffler Co. will be permitted to continue operations until further notice by the Secretary of Interior.

However, it was emphasized that it was made pending the proposed transfer of supervision of golf facilities to the Recreation Board. The transfer will be effected by January 1, 1951, if, and it's a big if, the Recreation Board is successful in its efforts to obtain funds to assume responsibility.

Along with the fee increases was approval to boost the yearly salary of Leoffler to $11,500. The golf czar here since 1921 had been receiving $8500 under an interim agreement since his last contract expired December 31, 1948.

Salaries of three golf course managers also were boosted from $5000 to $6500. Two of them, W. Alfred Farr and Alfred L. Thomas, are brothers-in-law of Leoffler.

Harry S. Wender, chairman of the Recreation Board, said he was well-pleased with the agreement. "Golfers will have to pay a little more," he said, "but they're going to get better golf. They're guaranteed that."

Claims $27,000 Loss

Speaking at yesterday's Board meeting, Wender said, "We're unanimously convinced that Leoffler sustained substantial losses last year, primarily because rates were too low."

Leoffler's fiscal report for 1949 showed a loss of $27,673.21.

The new agreement provides that some of the profits will be applied to the sum Leoffler advanced for the construction of Fort Dupont golf course and clubhouse. Leoffler's figure on this is approximately $69,000.

Guaranteed $3500

Under the agreement, Leoffler is guaranteed the first $3500. After that, the Government and Leoffler split the first $30,000 on a 50-50 basis. Profits in excess of $30,000, if any, will be split 75-25 respectively between the Government and Leoffler.

The Interior Department also

You Might Know Southpaw Baffles Club Psychologist

Burbank, Calif., March 14 (AP) Even psychologists boot one now and then, Dr. David M. Tracy of New York said today.

Dr. Tracy is working with the St. Louis Browns at their spring training base. He said his error came in a mass hypnotism class Monday night.

"Has any pitcher a sore arm?" he asked. Up stepped Les Stone, one of the club's rookies. "I have," said Stone.

Without asking any more questions, Dr. Tracy worked on Stone's right arm for about an hour. Later he asked Stone how the arm felt.

"My right arm feels great," Stone replied. "The only trouble is that I'm left-handed."

Kryhoski's Triple Beats Yanks, 3 to 1

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 14 (AP). Scoring three runs in the second inning, the Detroit Tigers dug in behind the effective hurling of Ray Herbert, Hal Newhouser and Fred Hutchinson to defeat the New York Yankees, 3-1.

Fred Sanford was the victim of the Bengals' brief flurry which was sparked by Dick Kryhoski. The former Yankee first sacker tripled in two of the three runs. A single by Bob Swift then scored Kryhoski.

Newhouser, making his first appearance this spring, worked only two innings and yielded the Yanks' lone run in the fourth.

Hutchinson blanked the Yanks on two hits in the last four rounds.

Bradenton, Fla., March 14 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals overcame a three-run deficit to down the Braves, 5-3, today for the second pre-season exhibition victory in as many days over the Boston National Leaguers.

Boston scored once in the second and added a pair in the fourth for a 3-0 lead. The Cards tied it in the fifth on a pair of walks, a missed double play, fielder's choice, a brace of singles and an error.

A single mixed with a walk, an error and a force play accounted for the Redbirds' tiebreaking score in the eighth.

Benner Breaks Pistol Record

Tampa, Fla., March 14 (AP).—H. L. Benner, Army crackshot from Fort Knox, Ky., shot a record 298 today in the national match course event with the .22-caliber pistol.

Benner's total, only two points short of perfect, broke one of the longest standing records in the books—a 297 shot 12 years ago by Lieut. John Jegoda of the United States Marines.

Losing Pitcher Hurls No-Hitter—So Does Winner

Los Angeles, March 14 (AP).—The opposing pitchers in a high school baseball game here each turned in no-hit games.

Lefty Schmidt of Leuzinger and Dick Gerakos were mound opponents yesterday as Leuzinger won 1-0. The lone run came when a Leuzinger batter was hit by a pitched ball, stole second and then came home on a wild throw.

CCNY Springs Upset in NIT; Duquesne Wins

New York, March 14 (AP)—Aroused City College of New York, getting an All-America performance from big Ed Warner, shoved heavily favored Kentucky to the sidelines tonight, 89-50, in a stunning quarter-finals of the National Invitation basketball tournament.

Playing like champions before an awed crowd of 18,000 at Madison Square Garden, Nat Holman's Eager Beavers stormed into the round of four where they play Duquesne Thursday night. Duquesne won a 49-47 thriller over La Salle of Philadelphia in the opener tonight.

The other semifinal game Thursday sends top-seeded Bradley against St. John's of Brooklyn. The finals are scheduled Saturday night.

Adolph Rupp's Kentucky Wildcats, the team he labels as potentially his best ever, were confused and inept in the face of the torrid pressure poured on by the home town collegians.

Warner, dropping them in from all angles, scored 26 points—the same number he got in CCNY's opening game win over San Francisco Saturday.

NBA teams meet at 8:30 tonight at Uline Arena.

The Royals have beaten the Caps five straight times.

The Caps, though, figure to make a good attempt tonight. They have won their last three games and have been the victors in five of their last six outings.

Both teams have already clinched playoff berths. Washington, with a record of 31 triumphs against 34 defeats, is in third place in the Eastern Division. The Royals, with a 48-17 Western Division mark, still have a chance of overcoming the Minneapolis Lakers

The Caps will be strengthened by the return of coach-elect Bones McKinney, who will be returning to the lineup after a dislocated finger sidelined him briefly.

Bob Davies, all-association forward, may be forced to sit on the Royal bench the entire game tonight. He has a lame ankle.

Pirates Thump White Sox, 12-7

San Bernardino, Calif., March 14 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates exploded for 16 hits including four homers to whip the Chicago White Sox 12-7 before a crowd of 1044 today in Perris Hill Park.

Ralph Kiner got a three-run circuit clout in the first inning off Walt Pierce. It was his third in four exhibition games. In the fourth inning Kiner suffered a sprained wrist in a collision with Herm Reich at first base and had to be sidelined.

Three other Bucs got homers—Wally Westlake, Nanny Fernandez and Dale Coogan.

—No Talking Back to This One—

Rickey Comes Up With a Pip: 'Cross-Eyed Electronic Ump'

VERO BEACH, FLA., March 14 (AP).—The so-called "cross-eyed electronic umpire," the mechanical device produced for Branch Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers, had it's first test today, and the tests were not quite breath-taking.

It is, perhaps, a machine that would have to be seen to be believed—and some of those who saw it, including Bill Stewart, veteran National League umpire, and several Dodger players, still don't believe it.

The robot umpire is set up in one of the practice batting cages and concealed in the long flat box in which home plate is located.

The "electronic umpire" is a system of lenses, mirrors, electric eyes and other electronic equipment which lights a lamp when a ball is pitched through the "strike" zone. The lamp won't light if the pitch is a ball.

The strike is "called" by the ball, in its passage through the strike zone, casting its shadow on the electric eyes in definite sequence, thereby creating electric impulses which light the lamp.

Pee Wee Reese, Dodger captain, who played "guinea pig" at the plate, was on the verge of indignation when the gadget "called" a strike on a pitch that passed over the plate several inches below his knees.

Stewart was on the player's side for one of the few times that an umpire finds himself in that position.

"I guess you can see that we're not so bad after all," said Bill, with a smug smile.

In justice to the machine and to Dick Shea, the General Electric Co. engineer who has had charge of developing and building it, however, there are adjustments to be made—and which can be made—which doubtless will improve the contraption's "eyesight."

It was established that a back swing of the bat would register a strike, but only a very swift swing and one that is unlikely to be made by any batter.

In any case, that is unimportant, since Rickey has stressed that there is no idea whatever of the gadget ever replacing manual umpiring in an actual game.

"I'm greatly interested in it," said the Dodger boss, "because I'm sure it will be of great aid in making both young hitters and pitchers more conscious of the strike zone. It will help us to determine better the speed and control of untried pitchers."

Schayes' Omission From All-Stars 'Disgusts' Cervi

Syracuse, N. Y., March 14 (AP).—Al Cervi, player-manager of the Syracuse Nationals, says he is "disgusted" by omission of Adolph Schayes from the first all-star team of the National Basketball Association.

Schayes is the Nats' leading scorer and fifth highest in the league. He has accounted for 1000 points so far this season.

Cervi said:

"It's hard to believe the balloting was without prejudice."

Giants Whip Cleveland, 5-3, Using Two Rookie Pitchers

Phoenix, Ariz., March 14 (AP).—Two rookie hurlers led the New York Giants to a 5-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians here today.

Dick Adair, a 20-year-old yearling of 6-foot 5-inch stature, and Roger Bowman, a port sider, held the American League club to one run in six innings.

Larry Doby slammed a home-run in the second for the tally off Adair. Eddie Stanky sparked the Giants' big three-run opening inning spree with a double. He had a three-hit day.

Luke Easter socked his first home run today as the Cleveland B squad nosed out Oakland of the Pacific Coast League, 5-4.

Brooklyn Wins In NAIB Play

Kansas City, March 14 (AP).—Brooklyn College's cagers had the scare of their lives, but managed to stay in the National Intercollegiate (NAIR) basketball tournament today.

In one of four afternoon first round games, the highly-touted Easterners survived a tough struggle with Appalachian State Teachers from North Carolina, winning 79 to 75 in the last seconds on Mike Ditomasso's two free shots and basket.

In other afternon games Baldwin-Wallace defeated Kalamazoo College, 84-78; East Texas State Teachers eliminated University of South Dakota, 55-54 and College of Puget Sound ousted Southeastern Louisiana, 70-68 in overtime.

In night contests Arkansas Polytechnic won over Morningside (Iowa), 75-64, and Indiana State College eliminated Mississippi Delta State, 65-59.

Girls, Swedish Angel, Wrestle At Arena Tonight

Mildred Burke, who has claimed the women's wrestling championship for the past 10 years, meets Elvira Snodgrass, Tennessee hillbilly, in a 60-minute match headlining the weekly wrestling show at Turner's Arena tonight.

Sharing honors with the girls match is another one-hour contest in which the 340-pound Super Swedish Angel faces Johnny (Dutch) Schweigert, former Oklahoma University football star.

A four-man team bout will bring together Marvin Mercer and Ace Freeman against Jim Austeri and the 300-pound Tiny Mills. A special match pits Billy Darnell against Ivan Kamaroff.

Leoffler Gets Golf Rate Hike

agreed to waive its share and apply the money to the sum reputedly owed Loeffler on the Fort Dupont construction.

A rehabilitation fund of 5 percent of the gross receipts will be carried over from the last contract. However, any part of it not spent also will be applied to the Fort Dupont advances.

A House Public Lands Subcommittee concluded hearings on the Leoffler operation last June and voted unanimously to take control of the golf courses from the Interior Department. The full committee never took any action.

During the hearings, GAO Auditor Bertram B. Barr refuted Leoffler's claim of being owed money and said the Government actually was owed $119,515. James B. Robinson, Interior Department official, said his audit took exception to $31,135 charged as operating expense by Leoffler.

The 62-year-old concessionaire insisted that Barr and Robinson were incorrect. "There's not a single exception they claim that will hold water," Leoffler explained at that time.

Gibbons and Spellman Opening Sports Shop

Two Washington sports personalities, Jim Gibbons and Bill Spellman, will team up as owners of a sporting goods store called Champion Sports, Inc., at 816 13th st. nw.

An informal opening will be held Saturday with the formal ceremonies scheduled for March 25, also a Saturday.

Gibbons is one of the top radio and television sports announcers. Spellman until recently was associated with the Sports Center.

Ransom Has 68 to Match Cary's 137

By James F. Fowler

Palm Beach, Fla., March 14 (AP).—Cary Middlecoff fired an 8-under-par 64 today to jump into a three-way tie for the lead in the professional-amateur division and a two-way tie for the medal play lead in the eleventh annual Seminole 10,000 Pro-Amateur Golf Tournament.

Middlecoff, the National Open champion, set a new competitive course record as he carded a 2-under-par 34 going out and a 6-under-par coming back.

He and Henry Ranson, defending champion from St. Andrews, Ill., were deadlocked at 137 strokes at the end of 36 holes in the 54-hole professional tournament.

Ransom, who paced the pros yesterday with his three under par 69, carded a 34-34—68 today to share the lead with Middlecoff.

Tied for the lead with a best ball of 62 in the 36-hole Pro-Amateur Tournament which began today was Middlecoff and his partner, Robert D. Huntington, Palm Beach and New York; Professional Denny Shute, Akron, Ohio, and Amateur P. T. Sharples, Philadelphia, and Pro Jim Ferrier, San Francisco, Calif., and his amateur partner, Leray Berdeau, Palm Beach and Paris, France.

Three pro-amateur teams were tied at a best ball score of 63 for second place. They were Pro. Bobby Cruickshank, Gulfstream, Fla., and Amateur L. M. Lloyd, New York City; Middlecoff and C. D. Dillon, New York City, and Lawson Little, Monterey, Calif., and his partner Richard Raese, Dover, Ohio.

Dick Mayer, resident professional, and Lew Worsham, Oakmont, Pa., were tied for second in the medal tourney with 139. Mayer fired a 36-32—68 to couple with his first-round score of 71. Worsham carded a 34-35—69 to add to his 70 on the first day.

Dodge to Return President's Cup; Award Invalid

Los Angeles, March 14 (AP).—Awarding of the President's Cup speedboat racing trophy to Horace E. Dodge of Detroit has been declared invalid.

Arthur L. Bobrick, chairman of the Inboard Racing Commission of the American Power Boat Association, said today that the 14-man commission has ruled the 1949 race on the Potomac River last September was "no contest" because only one heat was run.

Hence, the commission said, Dodge should return the trophy to the President's Cup Regatta Association in Washington, D. C.

U. S. Hockey Team Loses Exhibition

London, March 14 (AP).—Canada, Norway and Sweden won their games in the World Amateur Ice Hockey Championships today while the United States lost an exhibition game to Great Britain, 4-0.

The Canadian team, favored to capture the title, made its first start of the tournament and trounced Switzerland, 13-2. Sweden defeated Holland, 10-0, and Norway romped to an 11-0 triumph over France.

A Guy With Real Class

Eddie Waitkus Looks Grand and Is Beating Sisler Out of First Base Job With Phils

By Whitney Martin

TAMPA, FLA., March 14 (AP).—Eddie Waitkus sawed a big towel back and forth across his sun-stained back with the vigor of a shoe-shine boy putting the final gloss on a pair of brogans.

ED WAITKUS

He had just finished his stint in a squad game and taken his shower and was quite pleased with the world in general, although he'd had rather a bad day. He'd got only three for four at the plate. He had been getting four for four.

"Pretty good for an invalid," he said in answer to a suggestion he had looked pretty stout at bat, and in the field.

"You're no invalid," a bystander said. Waitkus winked.

"Shush, don't tell anybody," he warned. "A blind pig finds an acorn once in awhile. On that ball that hit the screen in right field, that was a hit and run play. The pitch came right in here where I like it and I just teed off."

Waitkus does look grand, for a fact. He shows absolutely no ill effects from the near-tragic shooting incident in Chicago last summer, and is hitting and fielding with his old-time class; a class which made Manager Eddie Sawyer term him the best first baseman in baseball prior to his injury.

Sawyer, an eminently fair man, gave Dick Sisler the first base job at the start of practice this year out of appreciation of Dick's fine play there after Waitkus had been incapacitated last year. Waitkus had the privilege of winning back the position.

That was all right with Waitkus. He wouldn't have wanted it any other way, and he has lost no time in making his bid. In his first at-bat in a squad game he hit a sizzler down to Sisler on first and the ball was too hot to handle, going for a hit.

"Eddie's making sure of his job," an onlooker suggested.

Sawyer's fairness, and his patience, are among the many reasons he is so highly esteemed by everyone, including his players, and possibly had something to do with a remark Bob Quinn made several years ago while Sawyer still was a bush-league pilot at Olean, N. Y.

"Mark my words," the wise Quinn prophesied, "Sawyer not only is destined to be a major league manager, but a great major league manager."

CCNY Routs Wildcats, 89-50

to date, CCNY's sophomore club eliminated San Francisco and Kentucky, the 1949 National Invitation and NCAA tournament champions, respectively.

Trailing with five minutes to go, La Salle pulled into a three-point advantage at 44-41 with 3 minutes 20 seconds to play, but the Dukes wouldn't give up in the first game.

At this point, Art Goldberg came in to relieve Ed Dahler for the only Duquesne substitution. Steve Skendrovich converted two free throws, and 6-5 Chuck Cooper got another pair of charity tosses to put the Dukes in front.

Larry Foust, La Salle's 6-9 center, missed four free throws in the final three minutes, which would have kept his club in the game, and possibly have brought victory.

Kick Kills Olhaverry, Santa Anita Winner

Los Angeles, March 14 (AP).—Olhaverry, winner of the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap in 1947, was killed yesterday when kicked in the head by a mare.

The horse, now in stud, was kicked at the Conejo Ranch in Camarillo, Calif. The kick fractured the horse's skull and he died almost instantly.

St. Martin's Takes CYO Basketball Cup

St. Martin's defeated St. Anthony's, 40-30, last night at Central High to win the Catholic Youth Organization unlimited class Section No. 3 title.

The victors play Our Lady of Lourdes Sunday afternoon at Catholic University for the city-wide unlimited title.

Hank Sinsky, with 15 points, and Henry Houck, with 12, paced St. Martin's.

Waitkus Hits 2-Run Homer

Clearwater, Fla., March 14 (AP).—Eddie Waitkus, Philadelphia Phillies first baseman, emphasized his return to big league baseball today by hitting a two-run homer in the first inning, but his team lost to the Cincinnati Reds, 7-5.

Ron Northey, Reds outfielder, matched Waitkus' feat with a two-run homer in the third inning

Battling Nelson Pension Rejected

The Veterans' Administration has rejected a pension application from Oscar (Battling) Nelson, 67, former world lightweight boxing champion, because it can find no record that he ever served in the Army.

Nelson, who now lives in Chicago, would be entitled to a $90 a month pension if proof can be found of his claim that he saw service in the Spanish-American war.

The VA said the army had checked on all possible variations of the name Oscar Battling Matthew Nelson, which the former boxer said he used. His application said that he served in the Army from May to September, 1898, enlisting in South Dakota.

Dynamite Meets Smith

A "boxing natural," Gene Smith against Little Dynamite, is scheduled for Monday night at Turner's Arena. The local featherweights will go for either six or eight rounds.

Smith, who won local and national amateur honors has won all seven of his bouts since turning pro, six of them by knockouts.

Dynamite, who bypassed the amateur ranks, has won 18 of 20 pro bouts, dropping one to Charlie Titone, the Brooklyn ace and the other to Lemons after having won a split decision over Lemons in an earlier bout.

Royal Reported N. C. State Coach

AAU Diving Championships Set Tonight

The District of Columbia AAU men's and women senior indoor low-board diving and the women's junior low-board championships at Ambassador pool tonight at 8 p. m. inaugurate a busy three days on the local AAU calendar.

Tomorrow and Wednesday the D. C. AAU wrestling championships are being staged at University of Maryland's Ritchie Coliseum.

Two meets are on tap Saturday. The men's and women's senior indoor tank championships will be held at American U. pool, while the gymnastic meet takes place at Central YMCA at 8 p. m.

In tonight's diving Irving "Soupy" Bridgers will try for his ninth consecutive men's low-board crown.

Barbara McCutcheon, defending women's senior diving champion, is ineligible to compete because she is a physical education teacher. She teaches at Central High School.

Complete diving entry list:
Men: Jay Lent, Jack Young and Woodrow Stevenson, Takoma; Irving Bridgers, Vean Holt, Paul Fite, Wayne Johnson, Frank Dempsey, Basel Troutman, John Frazier, Ambassador; Arthur Fox, John Leninger, Georgetown U.
Women: Gloria Dirr, Virginia Haggerty, Joan Conger, Takoma; Wynne Cramer, Roberta Ashburner, Maura Silverman.

Kansas Selection Stands, Says Drake

Artesia, N. Mex., March 14 (AP).—Kansas is the logical team to represent the Big Seven Conference in the NCAA fifth district basketball playoffs and there won't be any change, Bruce Drake, selection committee chairman, said today.

Drake, University of Oklahoma basketball coach, and the other members of the committee drew fire from Coach Jack Gardner of Kansas State for the selection of Kansas.

Softball Starting

The West End Community Softball League is now forming. Anyone interested is asked to contact Myer Eudell any afternoon between 3 and 6 o'clock at the Georgetown Playground, National 6000, extension 2580.

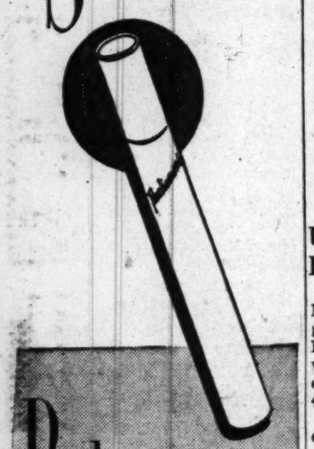
Parliament CIGARETTES

A tip to Smart Smokers



Parliament's built-in Filter Mouthpiece

It removes much of the tar—keeps all loose bits of tobacco from reaching your lips. This gives you the protection of a fresh, clean, individual filter with each cigarette, plus the utmost enjoyment of Parliament's superb tobaccos. This means filtered smoking at its best.

For Richard Trophies

U. S. Figure Skating Group Names Six Special Judges

Dall Dort, chairman of the 1950 National Championships Committee, announced yesterday that the United States Figure Skating Association has appointed the special judges for the Oscar L. Richard Trophies.

One of the trophies is awarded to a ladies' junior or senior skater each year for the most artistic performance. The other trophy is awarded to the junior or senior man for outstanding performance in free skating.

The National championships will be held in Washington March 23-25.

The following have been selected as judges for the women's trophy: Samuel Bookatz, artist; Emerson Meyers, piano soloist with the National Symphony Orchestra; and Felix G. W. de Weldon, Viennese-born sculptor, best known to Americans for his inspiring statue of the U. S. Marines raising the flag over Mt. Surabachi on Iwo Jima.

Special judges for the men's Oscar L. Richard award include William Werber, former major league baseball star; Clarence Charest, District tennis champion and for three years National Veterans' champion, and Arthur J. "Dutch" Bergman, radio sportscaster and manager of the National Guard Armory.

Blue Rocket Scores by 6 Lengths

Baird Rides 12th Winner Of Meeting

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., March 14. Blue Rocket, performing in the fashion his name implies, shot home six lengths in front of the closest opposition in today's featured Hagerstown Purse.

Carrying the silks of S. H. Rogers of Washington, D. C., the fleet colt made it two straight victories here, brought Jockey Jimmy Baird his twelfth winner and returned a $4.40 mutuel to favorite players.

In the place position in the field of eight was J. N. Barnes' Miss Prime, the popular mare being unable to stay with the son of Maxium who turned in the excellent time of 0:49 4/5 over a track termed "good," being dull as the result of yesterday's rain.

W. C. Ensor's Ale Crannon, making her season's debut was third in the test of about 4½ furlongs with Justin Funkhouser's Aura Lee, off very slowly, in fourth position.

Blue Rocket and Miss Prime ran head and head out of the chute and almost to the far turn where the 3-year-old assumed command. From that point to the wire it was only a question of the margin of his victory. Miss Prime had to place safe from Ole Crannon by a length and a half.

Willie Downs rode two winners on the card. He annexed the fifth race with W. C. Ensor's Ned's Polly, a $5.40 favorite, and took the seventh with C. F. Hovis' Easter Bonnie at $11.20.

The second disqualification of the meeting came after the finish of the fourth race. R. M. Finn's Hawkwood Aress was first to reach the line, a neck in front of Stanley Greene jr's Ethel's Pick with N. D. Mayo's Devil's Broom third.

Jockey Eddie Danhauer, rider of Ethel's Pick, registered an objection against Nick Shuk who piloted Hawkwood Aress, maintaining the latter's mount impeded his filly in the stretch drive. The stewards allowed his claim and Hawkwood Aress was placed second to Ethel's Pick in the official listing.

Devil's Broom appeared to have been an accessory before the fact. She carried Hawkwood Aress into the stretch, the latter forcing Ethel's Pick out. In the final drive, however, Shuk's mount continued to come out and obviously impeded Ethel's Pick.

The official winner was the favorite and paid $5. Time for the 6½ furlongs was 1:25 3/5. Shuk was held blameless for the foul, stewards announced later.

At Charles Town

Dear Folks:

Somebody asked the secretary's office jokester for his best bet and the reply was, "Joe Stalin in the Soviet Election." If all the races booked in this country for 1950 were run at one track it would require six years. The horse van owned by H. M. Simpson of Washington overturned on a nearby road last night. Luckily the only damage was to the van, the operator and horse emerging shipshape. Sunshine Park closed with the Tuesday program which means there will be an influx of fans, jockeys and horses soon from that point. Today's crowd was treated to a between races show as trainers put their charges through workouts. The track was frozen this morning and trials were delayed.

Some 17,000 U. S. Jobs Go Under Classification Act Within Few Weeks

An estimated 17,000 Federal jobs will be brought in under the Classification Act for the first time within the next several weeks. The legal deadline is April 28.

The 5200 Federal Housing employes will be the first major group to be affected. Final papers on the conversion process are being drafted. FHA has been fixing its own salary and job standards. Other important groups of employes whose salaries will be set by the Classification Act are:

Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Housing and Home Finance Agency, Export-Import Bank, Displaced Persons Commission, and a scattering of employes in Justice, Treasury, Agriculture, General Accounting, and others.

The employes whose jobs are being brought in under the Classification Act for the first time need not worry over a reduction in salary.

In new regulations issued the other day, the Civil Service Commission ruled that such employes will have their present salaries protected as long as they remain in those jobs. In approving the Classification Act of 1949, Congress directed that no employe whose job was brought in under it was to suffer a loss in pay.

STORY: This conversation was overheard in an income-tax office: A deputy collector of internal revenue by the name of O'Toole was assisting a taxpayer by the name of O'Connell in preparing his tax return. Both were as Irish as their names.

O'Connell insisted that he was entitled to a $150 deduction. "I contributed it to a church," he explained.

"What church?" asked O'Toole.

"The Baptist church," answered O'Connell.

O'Toole looked him over and commented: "What a helluvan O'Connell you are!"

AIR FORCE Secretary Symington had this to say to the House Appropriations Committee:

"Our policy is that military people will not be used to substitute for civilian people wherever the civilian people can be obtained and can do the job . . . We can't pick up a civilianized depot and move it to England, for instance. We have to have units prepared to go any place in the world to establish supply organizations.

"The Air Force has a lot less civilians than the other services. Unquestionably, however, there was some water in our civilian setup. The program of cutting out the water is a fine program."

REORGANIZATION: The general outline of the Hoover commission plan to place all Federal hospitals in a single agency is reported to be getting a second look from White House advisers. The Hoover proposal was rejected at first glance.

"The Government could save an awful lot of money if it had a single hospital system," an official said yesterday, "Most of us didn't care for the Hoover plan, but no one has been able to come up with a better proposal."

Veterans' groups have been most active in fighting any suggestion that VA hospitals be moved to any other agency.

EXAM: The controversial test for apprentice plate printer at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing will be given today. Both the House and Senate Civil Service Committees have tried to get the test delayed. The House group has reported out a bill to limit all apprentice tests to veterans only. Civil Service could decide whether such examinations would be open to veterans on a Nation-wide or local basis.

Thugs Beat Druggist And Rob Him of $304

Three thugs beat and robbed Samuel Einwohner, 54, a druggist, of $304 late Monday night near his home at 441 Decatur st. nw.

Einwohner, proprietor of the Lincoln Drug Store, 1342 7th st. nw., was getting out of his car when the men, all with handkerchiefs over their faces, attacked him. The druggist said they threw him to the sidewalk and beat him about the head with a blunt instrument. Einwohner was treated at Garfield Hospital for multiple cuts and bruises.

PROSTRATE BEFORE ALTAR—The Most Rev. John J. Russell is consecrated Catholic bishop of Charleston yesterday in St. Matthew's Cathedral. On the altar is the consecrator, the Most Rev. Amleto Giovani Cicoghani, apostolic delegate to the United States

St. Matthew's Scene Of Impressive 3-Hour Ceremony Before 1200

By Martha J. Hall
Post Reporter

The Most Rev. John Joyce Russell yesterday was consecrated seventh Catholic bishop of Charleston, S. C., at a solemn, three-hour ceremony at St. Matthew's Cathedral.

More than 1200 persons crowded into the great cathedral at 1727 Rhode Island ave. nw., to witness the elevation of the 53-year-old Baltimore-born priest to the episcopacy.

Bishop Russell has been pastor of the Church of the Nativity, 13th and Peabody sts. nw. He previously served two years as pastor of St. Patrick's Church, 619 10th st. nw.

He is now head of the diocese once headed by his uncle, the late Most Rev. William T. Russell, fifth bishop of Charleston, who ordained him at the American College in Rome in 1923.

Relatives who attended were his mother, his father, John W. Russell, sr., retired Baltimore realtor, who came to the ceremony from a sick bed and was attended by a nurse, and two sisters, Miss May Russell and Mrs. Charles Kimmell, all of Baltimore.

Solemn Procession

The ceremony opened with a solemn procession of 33 bishops and archbishops, 76 monsignori, and more than 200 priests and members of religious orders.

During the ritual of consecration, the new bishop received the traditional articles of his office.

His pectoral cross and crozier, or pastoral staff, both belonged to his uncle before he died in 1927.

Bishop Russell's espiscopal ring, to be worn on the ring finger of the right hand, was a gift from the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, archbishop of Washington. His parents gave him his pontifical ring, to be worn on the same finger outside the glove, on ceremonial occasions.

Consecrator at the ceremony was the Most Rev. Amleto Giovani Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States. Co-consecraters were Archbishop O'Boyle and the Most Rev. John M. McNamara, auxiliary bishop of Washington.

In the Liturgy

The ceremony, like all ordinations, is inserted in the liturgy of the mass. The consecrator and the newly consecrated bishop together said the same mass and in receiving communion shared the same Host and the same Chalice.

After his head and hands were anointed by the Apostolic Delegate, Bishop Russell was given the ring, crozier and mitre, head dress symbolic of his office as bishop.

Bishop Russell's brother, the Rev. W. Joyce Russell, pastor of St. Francis de Sales Church, Benedict, Md., was assistant priest at the mass.

In his sermon, the Most Rev. Lawrence J. Shehan, auxiliary bishop of Baltimore, praised Bishop Russell for his work here and in the diocese of Baltimore and said "he has the qualities which will lead to a happy and successful administration" in Charleston.

Because the Papal Bull officially appointing Bishop Russell to the Charleston bishopric has not arrived, authorization to proceed with the consecration was given by Archbishop Cicognani. It was read at the opening of the service by the Right Rev. Msgr. John K. Cartwright, rector of St. Matthew's Cathedral.

Police Methods Challenged After Sidewalk Arrests

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Local police arrest methods were challenged yesterday by spokesmen for several groups after disclosure that a policeman had dressed in civilian clothes and borrowed a truck to arrest 11 on "incommoding the sidewalk" charges.

Representatives of several organizations met yesterday with Representative Adam Clayton Powell, jr. (D., N. Y.), to complain of the arrest method.

After the session, Powell said he would try to arrange a meeting shortly with Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police. Capt. Albert B. Clark, commanding No. 2 Precinct, where the arrests occurred, and Pvt. John J. Balassa, jr., arresting officer.

Arrested February 24

The arrests were made on the morning of February 24 and culminated a lengthy program by No. 2 police to break up knots of loiterers outside the combined District Unemployment Compensation Board claims office and United States Employment Service trades and industrial hiring office, 505 K st. nw.

For several years, the USES has asked police aid in thinning out the sidewalk ranks. Reports were received that women "were made subject to remarks, which to say the least, aren't very good," according to Fred Z. Hetzel, local director.

In addition, the office has prepared construction gangs for employers and when the trucks pulled up, others have jumped on board who had not been through the agency's processing, Hetzel said.

"When they see police coming, they scatter and run," Captain Clark said, "and a few minutes later they are hanging around another corner."

Jumped on Truck

On February 23, Balassa and his sidekick, Pvt. Norman L. Richardson, borrowed a truck, determined to clear the sidewalks on K between 4th and 5th. One put on a gray topcoat and felt hat and pulled up along a group of men standing around the USES office, Captain Clark reported.

"Without saying a word, men began to jump on the truck," he said. After 11 had boarded, the truck was driven to an alley where a uniformed policeman hopped on and the vehicle proceeded two blocks to No. 2 Precinct, where the 11 were charged with "incommoding the sidewalks," the captain said.

Several forfeited the $5 collateral while others went before Municipal Court Judge Frank H. Myers the next day and received fines of $5 or five days in jail.

Captain Clark said this was the only time the "masquerade-type" arrest had been made. "In this particular case the end justified the means. We won't make a practice of it, but if the same situation comes up again, we may have to do it," he added.

Henry Thomas, Local 74 president, said the truck arrest method had been used again early this month, but a check of precinct records indicated only two arrests for "incommoding the sidewalks" in the area in the period between February 27 and yesterday.

Airport In Fairfax Advocated

Virginia Aviation Advisory Unit Cites 'Critical Need' for Field Close to D. C.

By Robert P. Jordan
Post Reporter

Virginia's State advisory committee on aviation yesterday cited a "critical need" for another major airport in Greater Washington and said Fairfax County is the best place for it.

The committee asserted that ground transportation is inadequate over the State and "apparently reaching a saturation point." Virginia, it contended, must look to the air for much of its future transport requirements.

In a 174-page report to the State devision of aeronautics, the committee said that National Airport's capacity has been surpassed, and that landing facilities are inadequate. "Further expansion," it added, "presents almost insurmountable difficulties."

In addition, some of the small airports in northern Virginia will be forced to close down "due to operational difficulty," the committee predicted. One such field, it reported, is the Washington-Virginia Airport, near Bailey's Cross Roads.

Approaches Blocked

The committee said the approaches to the field are being blocked by building developments. "The effect of this situation on operations will no doubt result in closing of the airport."

As a result, the importance of fields at Leesburg, Manassas, Culpeper and Warrenton will increase, the advisory group opined. It found "impossible" any further planning of airports in Arlington and Alexandria.

State-wise, the committee held up the possibility of new secondary airline feeder operations by 1956 which would about equal present mileage of major airlines. At a combined Federal, State and local cost of about $12,000,000, the committee proposed building of 37 new airports and improvements to 50 existing fields.

Recommendations

After suggesting Fairfax County's "high terrain" as the "most feasible" site for a new airport in this area, the group made these recommendations:

That State of Virginia, with Alexandria and Arlington and Fairfax Counties, " . . . expedite condemnation and purchase of land most desirable" for a major airport to serve as an auxiliary to National Airport.

That Virginia consider setting up a representative "airport authority" for Greater Washington, with District and Maryland authorities participating.

D. C. Invokes Law to Fix Structure

The District yesterday invoked a rarely used power under which it can repair dangerously unsafe buildings immediately and bill the owner later.

The building in question is a two-story structure on the northwest corner of the intersection of 9th and D sts. nw. It is owned by Rudolph B. Behrend, local attorney, and houses Washington Surplus, Inc., and space for other stores.

J. J. Ilgenfritz, deputy director of the Department of Inspections, said building inspectors driving by the building last Friday noticed the roof sagging. Closer inspection disclosed that wooden trusses had failed, he said.

Danger of collapse seemed so great, Ilgenfritz said, that in addition to ordering the building vacated it was decided repairs should be made immediately to protect passersby.

Assistant Engineer Commissioner Thomas J. Hayes 3d said this action of the District stepping in to make repairs was very rare—taken only about once in 10 years.

Behrend said last night he will decide when he gets cost estimates from the District today whether to go along with the plan to make it a one-story building or have the entire building torn down.

"I want the public protected first," he said. "Then I want to take care of the occupant."

Parents Held in Death Of Baby Free on Bond

SERIOUS FACES—Hand-in-hand, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kelley return home

Bail Set at $1500 Apiece; Friends Rally to Support Of Accused Couple

The young parents charged with murder in the death of their 4-month-old child were released from District Jail yesterday under $1500 bond each.

Meanwhile, at Catholic University, where the father, Robert Patrick Kelley, is a popular student, Dean of Men Rev. John M. Walsh reported his office swamped by priest-teachers and students alike, asking: "Father, if there's anything I can do to help, let me know."

Kelley and the girl he met in Austria while a DFC fighter pilot reflected the tension of the charge as they stepped out of the van on their way to release under bond.

They had spent the night in jail after a coroner's jury said their baby Eileen died Saturday of a fractured skull and held them responsible. Mrs. Kelley had testified she dropped the baby while feeding him. But Deputy Coroner Christopher J. Murphy told the jury the injury was such it could not have been caused by a fall from the arms of her mother, who is 5 feet 3 inches tall.

Between 2 Marshals

When the van pulled up yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Kelley, who was 21 Thursday, was in the front seat between two marshals. Kelley, 29, was in the back handcuffed to another.

A very attractive girl with brown hair and strands of red in it, Mrs. Kelley's face was set but unfurrowed as she marched into the court building. Once she smiled quickly at a girl friend who had come to be at her side.

By contrast, her husband's face seemed twisted in worry and sorrow.

A close friend who visited the fighter pilot in jail yesterday said he "broke down in sobs . . . as if he in some curious way was to blame for this whole thing."

Motion Made by Government

The couple lives at 880 Hemlock st. nw. The baby died there. The Kelleys have one other child, Elizabeth, 21 months.

Bond was set in a hearing before District Judge Alexander Holtzoff. Motion for the bond was made by the Government and the couple's attorney, Donald H. Dalton, agreed to the sum.

The Kelleys' friends, both at Catholic U. and the District Air Guard, where Kelley is a major and assistant operations officer, rushed to their support.

They described Kelley as "a wonderful man . . . crazy about children . . . one of the most likeable men you can imagine. . . ."

The word "sweet" was used to describe Mrs. Kelley.

"Deluged" With Offers

The Air Guard reported its office "deluged" with fellow Guard members wanting to help them and confident of their vindication.

Said his commanding officer, Col. Laidler B. Mackall: "He's a man beyond reproach, a man of the highest integrity. I am amazed at this whole proceeding."

Colonel Mackall said he had seen Mrs. Kelley a couple of times socially. He described her as "very quiet, very timid."

Fund-raising offers came from fellow-students at Catholic U., where Kelley is a junior in aeronautical engineering.

Two Injured

Fireman's Home Burns In Brentwood

An intensely hot flash fire yesterday burned out the interior of a District fireman's home in Brentwood, causing damage estimate at more than $6000.

The fireman, Benjamin H. Feiertag, sustained burned hands in an effort to smother the blaze with a raincoat. Also injured was James Metznotte, of the Mount Rainier volunteer department, who suffered a cut hand. Both were treated on the scene.

The flash fire started in the kitchen of Feiertag's home at 3416 Tilden st. Mrs. Feiertag told firemen it broke out in the rear of her gas stove while she was standing nearby. Her husband rushed in with a raincoat and attempted unsuccessfully to smother it.

In a matter of seconds, the fire spread to the kitchen walls, and then to the ceiling. As it gained momentum, every window pane in the one-and-one-half story frame house snapped under the heat.

Firemen of the Mount Rainier and Brentwood departments were able to bring the blaze under control in a short time. Three rooms on the first floor and two upstairs were gutted.

Damage was put at more than $6000 by Fire Marshal Ralph Collins. Firemen said they believed the fire was caused by a gas leak. The Feiertags smelled gas before the blaze broke out, it was reported.

Police Rate Boy As Accomplished Pickpocket at 14

Police have caught a 14-year-old pickpocket who has been giving them a headache for years.

The boy has been rifling the purses of women on streetcars and buses. But after 30 or 35 such jobs (by his own estimate) he was seen "at work" last week by a woman who had him arrested.

At the Receiving Home the boy told Detective Sergts. R. R. Nichols and M. A. Dixon of the robbery squad he got started at the age of 11 after watching an older youth operate.

The boy was placed in a special lineup yesterday, after which police announced they had cleared up 13 pickpocket jobs and expect to settle 10 or 12 more.

Officers Save Woman From Burning House

Phares

Duvall

Kitchen

Fortunately for Mrs. Collette Schneider, 36, the three policemen were right at the scene.

They had responded to a traffic accident call at 2:25 a. m., at Michigan ave. and Perry st ne., in which a cab driver was critically injured.

The three—Pvts. William M. Kitchen and W. Byron Phares and Corpl. Percy C. Duvall—were still at the accident scene at 3 a. m., completing their investigation.

One of them noticed a bright light in a first floor window of the house about a half-block away.

When they reached the house they saw flames. They called in a local alarm on their police radio. Then they ran to the rear and pounded on the kitchen door and the window of a rear bedroom.

A light went on in the bedroom. Through dense smoke the men outside saw a woman, Mrs. Schneider, groping for the window. They forced open the window and removed Mrs. Schneider.

She was confused. "Save my baby; she's inside," she pleaded.

Phares shouldered open the kitchen door while one of the other policemen ran and pulled a fire box. Fire rescue squad No. 2 arrived. Phares was overcome by smoke and carried out. He was held overnight at Casualty Hospital.

Fire Pvt. Ernest Boggs, 36, of the rescue squad, climbed a ladder to the second floor, trying to get in to reach the child, but he was burned about the face and hands and had to return. He was treated at Emergency Hospital.

About this time Mrs. Schneider's head cleared. She said she had been alone in the house, that her "baby," her 10-year-old daughter, was not at home.

The blaze apparently started in a stuffed chair in the living room. It burned out the living room, dining room, kitchen and hallway.

2 Convicted for Terrorizing Boy Whose Watch They Stole

Two persons were convicted yesterday in District Court of terrorizing a 15-year-old student at the Banneker School into giving them a $20 wristwatch.

The robbery took place January 16 when school officials were fearful of spreading "gangs" which were compelling students to pay "protection money" or else face a beating.

Convicted by jury before Judge F. Dickinson Letts were John Henry Glover, 18, of 745 Park rd. nw., and Everett A. Wallace, 29, of 1113 O st. nw. Both were committed to jail pending a presentence report by the probation officer.

They were arrested by police soon after the victim, Roger Powell, 15, of 3609 New Hampshire ave. nw., reported that he turned over his watch in the school auditorium to Glover who threatened otherwise to "beat him."

Powell told police that he had known Glover to be a "bully" and a member of one of the schoolyard gangs. Police quoted Powell as saying that at least two boys had teeth knocked out when they refused to comply with the demands.

Powell also said that Glover, with Wallace as his companion, demanded $5 in protection money, in addition to the watch, and that Powell was given four hours to get the sum.

Police began investigating a number of similar complaints on schoolgrounds here. The Glover and Wallace cases are the first to be tried here, according to Assistant United States Robert Scott who obtained the convictions.

Pair Gets Cab And $8 From D. C. Taxi Operator

Two holdup men robbed a cab driver of $8, his wallet and taxi last night, then used a necktie—one of theirs—to bind his hands behind his back.

The taxi driver, Roy Perdue, 51, of 4051 Ely pl. se., said the men were picked up near 7th and K sts. nw., and asked to be taken to 42d st. and Sheriff rd. ne.

But near 48th and J sts. ne., he said, the men forced him to hand over the money. Tying his hands with the necktie, they rode him around for several blocks while discussing the possibilities of staging a holdup in the area.

The taxi, owned by Diamond Cabs, was recovered—as were the empty wallet and ignition keys.

Blonde, 21, Gets Jail Term for Bad Checks

Alta Jean Seiss, 21-year-old blonde, of no fixed address, yesterday was sentenced to a total of 225 days in jail after she was found guilty on five counts of passing bad checks.

The checks, cashed mainly to buy clothing at a downtown department store, totaled $125. Sentence was pronounced by Municipal Court Judge Walter J. Casey.

Capt. Karpe Burial Rites On Thursday

Capt. Karpe

Burial services for Capt. Eugene S. Karpe, USN, 45, will be held Thursday at 3 p. m. with full military honors at Arlington Cemetery.

Capt. Karpe, a close friend of Robert Vogeler, recently sentenced to 15 years on a Hungarian prison, fell or was pushed from the Paris-bound express on February 23. His mangled body was found in a tunnel south of Salzburg, Austria.

Captain Karpe had served as Naval Attache at the American Embassy in Bucharest, Romania, for the past three years. He had been detached from his post on February 1, and was en route to Washington for reassignment at the time of his death.

Captain Karpe is survived by his sister, Mrs. W. P. Crawford of Delhi, La.

Escort commander for the funeral will be Capt. Paul M. Curran, USN. Honorary pallbearers will be Navy Captains Joseph M. Carson, Charles L. Freeman, Robert B. Pirie, William G. Cooper, Laurence H. Frost, Robert B. Ellis and William K. Romoser, and Col. John R. Lovell, USAF.

Mrs. Marsh, Wife of Army Major, Dies

Mrs. Etta G. Marsh, 36, wife of Maj. Samuel B. Marsh, died yesterday at Walter Reed Hospital from a heart attack.

Mrs. Marsh was the daughter of the late Dr. Joseph Graham, a founder of the Southern Medical Society, who practiced here briefly before his death in 1933, and Mrs. Graham.

A native of Durham, N. C., she was married here in 1933. Her activities included the Air Force Women's Association, the Women's National Democratic Club and the Army-Navy Country Club.

Surviving, in addition to her husband, who lives at the Westchester Apts., 39th st. and Cathedral ave. nw., are a son, Samuel W. Marsh 3d; her mother, Mrs. Etta Heartt Graham, Wyoming Apts., 2202 Columbia rd. nw.; two sisters, Mrs. Jackson C. Davis of the Wyoming Apts. and Mrs. Charles Forsyth of Santa Barbara, Calif.

Requiem mass will be said at the Church of the Annunciation, 3860 Massachusetts ave. nw., at 11:30 a. m. Friday. Burial will follow in Arlington Cemetery.

Col. Davis Dies at 109

Nashville, Tenn., March 14 (U.P.). Col. James Russell Davis, one of the Nation's oldest Civil War veterans, told a Missouri court last week that he was 109 years old, had one foot in the grave and the other foot on the brink.

He died yesterday in Sullivan, Mo., en route to his home here.

Colonel Davis, who claimed to have been a friend of Jesse James, went to Missouri to identify a man who professed to be the infamous outlaw. He said that J. Frank Dalton who was petitioning the court to be declared the original Jesse James actually was the outlaw.

Another Leopard Loose

Auckland, New Zealand, March 14 (U.P.).—A half-grown leopard was on the loose here today. It escaped from the Auckland Zoo some time during the last two days.

Mrs. Young, Retired Census Employe, Dies

Funeral services for Mrs. Thomas Newton Young, 73, retired Census Bureau employe, will be held at 9:30 a. m. today in St. Michael's Church, Silver Spring. Burial will follow in Mount Carmel Cemetery, Sunshine, Md.

The daughter of a former secretary to the Swiss consul in New York, Samuel Schaeffer, Mrs. Young died Sunday at Washington Sanitarium where she had spent the past nine months.

A native of Tremton, Ill., she came here as a young girl, and prior to her death lived at 827 ingraham st. nw.

Mrs. Young had worked for the Agriculture Department and was associated with several women's shops here as a fitter. From 1941 to 1947, she was employed by the Bureau of Census.

Announcing the Publication of

by Kees Van Hoek, foreign affairs correspondent of the Irish Times, with a preface by the Most Rev. Michael Browne, Bishop of Galway.

In 24 Installments in The Washington Post, Daily and Sunday, Starting Sunday, March 19th

At a most opportune time, during the Lenten season of the Holy Year, comes this carefully drawn, sincere portrait of Eugenio Pacelli, the man, and Pius XII, the Pope. This biography, by a famous European journalist who is accredited to the Holy See, is appearing in newspapers all over the world. In Washington, it will be published exclusively in The Washington Post.

Begin this absorbing life story this coming Sunday in . . .

Easter Time's the Time for Eggs—Except on the White House Lawn

By Elizabeth Maguire

EGGS will not roll this Easter on the White House lawn.

Not since before the war has this traditional Easter Monday lawn party been held. In those days parents were admitted to the grounds of the White House for this occasion when accompanied by a child, and the sport of egg-rolling usually had as many as 1000 participants.

All the eggs were hard-boiled and prettily colored. Adult Washingtonians sometimes crashed the gates by playing foster parents to passing children at 25c a head. The egg-rolling itself did the lawn no harm, but the children and their parents usually tore the turf to bits. The custom was discontinued during the war years in the interest of food conservation, and now because of reconstruction work at the White House, it has not been resumed.

Mrs. James Helm, White House secretary, mentioned at a press conference yesterday that because of the waste of food, the egg-rolling tradition had lost its appeal to many people, and no definite plans had been made to start the custom again.

It was announced at today's conference that the First Family will probably be in Washington for Easter. But before then, Mrs. Truman will join the President in Key West for a short vacation. It is believed that Margaret will also go down for a visit, although she gave a concert in Miami just about two weeks ago. Earlier in the winter, the Trumans were reunited at the Florida resort.

Before leaving for Key West, Mrs. Truman will attend a report luncheon of the Red Cross Fund Campaign to be given in the Hall of Flags, United States Chamber of Commerce, at 12:30 p. m. on St. Patrick's Day. She will also greet delegates to the Regional Conference of the Camp Fire Girls on March 25 at 11 a. m. at Blair House. There will be approximately 150 in the gathering.

The Governor of Puerto Rico and Mrs. Munoz Marin were feted last evening at a dinner given by the Ways and Means Subcommittee on Social Security, which made a trip to Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands last November, relative to the extension of social security to these islands.

Those who attended the dinner included Albert Sidney Camp, chairman of the subcommittee; Walter A. Lynch, Herman P. Eberharter, Thomas E. Martin, John W. Brynes and Stephen M. Young. And from Puerto Rico there were Dr. Juan Pons, commissionier of health; Dr. Rafael Pico, Puerto Rico planning commission; Col. Alberto Arrillaga, military aide to the Governor; and Resident Commissioner and Mrs. Fernos-Isern.

'Miss Peru' Surrounded At Exhibit Opening

"MISS PERU," more widely known as "Miss Western Hemisphere," arrived in town Monday. Daughter of a prominent Peruvian family, the senorita's real name is Ana Maria Alvarez Calderon.

The evening of her arrival, she attended a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Morris Cafritz, and last evening she was a guest at the dinner given by the Peruvian Ambassador and Senora de Berckemeyer in honor of Hugo Gouthier, Brazilian Counselor, who is returning soon to Rio.

In the afternoon "Miss Peru" drove over to the Pan American Union to view an exhibit of paintings by Peruvian artist Helen Aramburu, sister of the Peruvian Minister, Don German Aramburu. The exhibit was opened yesterday at a reception given by the Alternate Representative of Peru on the Council of the OAS, Dr. Felipe Portocarrero.

Seated on a bench in the patio, "Miss Peru" was surrounded mostly by young men. It was agreed. "She's beautiful." Her costume was a black dress, a little black velvet hat pushed down over her dark brown hair, and a mink coat. Nearly 300 diplomats, officials, and members of Washington art circles attended the opening of the exhibit which will be here through March 31.

Teaching Children at Home Easier When You Have the Right Equipment; Anne Tells Reader How to Buy It

DEAR ANNE:

Do you know the name and address of a firm that sells lessons, suggested procedures, textbooks, etc., for instruction at home of children of preschool age?

Mrs. V. F. P.
Annandale, Va.

DEAR MRS. V. F. P.:

In teaching children of preschool age, whether at home or in nursery school, "lessons" and "textbooks" do not enter largely into the picture—unless you mean textbooks for the adult in charge. At this age, the teacher's concern is to encourage development of muscular coordination and of personal and social adjustment through directed play activities. Excellent equipment scaled to the capacities of children of various ages, and similar to that used in modern nursery schools, can now be obtained for home use.

Some of these educational toys and materials can be purchased in Washington from a shop at 1018 18th st. nw. However, for more complete equipment, you will probably want to consult the "Handbook of Educational Work and Play Materials" published by the Educational Playthings Co., Sandusky, Ohio. This booklet, which costs 50 cents, is a catalogue graded according to age, and educators here recommend it as one of the fullest listings of preschool teaching material.

Several handbooks for parents and teachers explain methods and procedures used in modern preschool teaching. Newest of these is "The Nursery School Guide: Theory and Practice for Teachers and Parents," by Rhoda Kellogg, published by Houghton Mifflin, Boston, 1949. Others recommended are "Nursery School Education" by Josephine Foster and Marion Manson, Appleton-Century, N. Y., 1939; and "Education of the Young Child," by Catherine Landreth, J. Wiley, N. Y., 1942. Any bookstore will probably be able to order these manuals for you.

J. G., who was kind enough to send us a letter about local theaters with nurseries, has forwarded a clarification of the situation. It appears the theaters do not have baby sitters, as we had believed. You do your own baby sitting. Here's what J. G. has to say.

"What they have is glassed-in enclosures with several rows of adult seats, several playpens and high chairs. You stay with the children and watch and hear the movie, just as though you were sitting downstairs, but the other patrons don't hear your children and the children are free to run around and play or watch the show." J. G.

DEAR ANNE:

May I add a word to your recent answer to a reader regarding an electric curling iron? I have curled my hair with irons for 30 years and had my hair marcelled by hairdressers. But I have never heard of wetting the hair before curling. I would say there is danger in this practice because steam caused by the iron on wet hair can easily burn the scalp. After twisting a dry strand of hair around iron, hold it 30 or 40 seconds and a nice curl will result without wetting. G.V.S.

DEAR ANNE:

I hear that it is possible to buy bread dough that one can finish off and bake in one's own kitchen. Several times, I've wanted to make sweet breakfast rolls but had too little time for the process of yeast rising, etc., so I wonder if you can tell me where this dough is available? M.L.S.

The only things I can think of along this line are the frozen rolls that you thaw out and rise at home, or the "brown 'n' serve" rolls that require seven minutes of additional baking. I do not know of a place where they sell bread dough in bulk, as it were. Any suggestions, readers?

PETUNIA!

The prints in the album,
The negative's not.
Would it be in the closet?
The deck-drawer? Or what?

If you'd keep your negatives in the album, each one beneath its own print, Petunia, you could find 'em easily. It's good protection from light, too.

Virginia Shrine Inherits Priceless Art Treasure

NEIGHBORING Virginia's newest shrine—Woodlawn, one-time home of Nellie Custis Lewis—has just fallen heir to a priceless art treasure which is now in storage at the National Gallery. Mrs. George Maurice Morris, chairman of the committee of accession of furnishings of the Woodlawn Foundation, announced the acquisition yesterday.

The art work is a pastel of Nellie Custis, stepdaughter of George Washington, and was rendered by the famed revolutionary artist, James Sharples, at the close of the eighteenth century. It is the gift of Mrs. Ailsa Mellon Bruce of New York, daughter of the late Andrew Mellon, founder of the National Gallery.

Shown publicly only twice before, the pastel was discovered in Chevy Chase in 1931 by Mrs. Mc Cook Knox of Georgetown through an anonymous telephone call. This was shortly after publication by the Yale University press of a book by Mrs. Knox called "The Sharples—Their Portraits of George Washington and his Contemporaries." Mrs. Knox was able to authenticate the fact that the Custis pastel was the original Sharples left in the hands of Richard B. Winder to satisfy a loan made by Winder to Sharples.

Purchased From Estate

AFTER a series of appearances and disappearances, the portrait which is 13½ inches by 11 inches, was finally purchased by Mrs. Bruce from the Winder estate after being stored in the Baltimore Museum of Art.

The two public showings were in April 1899 and again in March 1932. In 1899 it was displayed at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York on the occasion of the Centennial Celebration of the inauguration of George Washington. It then disappeared until rediscovered by Mrs. Knox who persuaded the Winder family to display it in the Corcoran Gallery in Washington in 1932 in an exhibit by the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission.

The portrait of Nellie Custis will form part of the gathering collection of rare antiques which are being slowly assembled to refit and refurnish historic Woodlawn, under direction of such patriotic leadership as J. W. Rixey Smith, president of the foundation; Gen. Thomas Holcomb, national campaign chairman, and Trustees Robert Woods Bliss, Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d, Mrs. George L. Harrison, Miss Genevieve Hendricks, Mrs. Roscoe O'Byrne, Mrs. George Maurice Morris, Mrs. T. I. Hare Powel, to mention a few.

Bed Also Acquried

ANOTHER recent acquisition by the Woodlawn Foundation is the original Nellie Custis bed. The bed was the property of Mrs. Edward Willis who inherited the canopied, four-poster from her grandfather, Paul Hillman Troth, one-time owner of Woodlawn.

Additional collections just recently presented through Mrs. Morris' furnishing committee include 14 Duncan Phyfe chairs traditionally the property of the Nellie Custis Lewis estate. The chairs were presented by Mrs. Yale Stevens of Rye, N. Y., whose family once owned Woodlawn. Word also has been received by the foundation that George Livingston Williams of Washington will loan a complete set of Sheraton antiques and two Italian paintings with which to furnish the dining room.

Woodlawn was originally part of George Washington's Mount Vernon estate and is just 3 miles below it on highway No. 1. In 1799, on the occasion of Nellie Custis' marriage to Lawrence Lewis, he gave the site of some 200 acres to his stepdaughter Nellie as a wedding present. Mr. Lewis was George Washington's favorite nephew and aide at the time.

Plug Both Holes, Says Judd

When a boat has two holes, you don't stop up one and let the other go, Representative Walter H. Judd (R. Minn.) told members of the Washington Club yesterday.

By analogy, he said that American foreign policy is "sheer madness" because since VP-Day the Uinetd States has concentrated its efforts to combat communism in Europe and ignored China.

We woke up three years ago to the Russian objective of world conquest in Europe, Representative Judd said, but he believes we have not yet awakened to the fact in China.

Representative Judd recommended the banding together of all nations that believe in peace.

Mrs. Thos. Magee Tells Secret of her Hot Milk Cake

HERE'S MRS. MAGEE'S RECIPE:

½ cup butter or margarine
1 cup milk
4 eggs
2 cups Franklin Granulated Sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder

Combine butter or margarine and milk; bring to boiling point. Beat eggs; gradually add sugar, beating constantly. Add vanilla extract. Sift together flour and salt. Add flour mixture to egg mixture; gradually add butter mixture; beat until smooth. Add baking powder; mix well. Pour into 9" greased tube pan. Bake in moderate oven, 325°F., 1 hour. Cool 10 minutes. Remove from pan. Cool on wire rack. People who know Mrs. Thomas Magee of 6236 Haverford Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa., rave about her famous Hot Milk Cake. Mary Haworth's Mail

Girl, 26, Newcomer From England, Breaks With Fiance Who Was to Follow; Then Gets Homesick and Sends for Him, But He Balks

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a girl 26 and some months ago I came here from England, where I had been carefree and happy and was engaged to a fine boy whom I loved. Friends over here had said this was a wonderful land for young people and Brian had decided it was the best place for us; but his sailing was delayed by setbacks in his family and he was to follow me two months later.

I landed here, got a wonderful job and was so enthralled with everything about me that I thought I'd start life anew. I started having doubts about marrying Brian and finally broke our engagement. His folks are wonderful and I hated breaking off with him, knowing that they, as well as he, would be hurt; but my family was quite pleased, and for that I am satisfied.

I love my folks very much and would do almost anything to please them; in fact, I never realized how much they meant to me until I came away. They always said I would do well in a career and they weren't keen on Brian. They never interfered in our romance and they treated him nicely, but always with a touch of condescension; and as I always felt above him in education, etc., I would wonder if he were Mr. Right for me.

Why Do People's Views Worry Her?

RECENTLY, however, I got bored with the men I know here and longed for my fiance again, so I wrote to him, apologized and asked him to come out. His reply surprised me. He has decided he prefers his own town and doesn't care to travel; and he asks me to come home and marry him. But I argue that it was his idea to settle in the New World, that I was content to stay home if we married, and I don't want to do all the running—although I confess that at times I was restless at home and did want to travel.

Brian argues that he might come out here and be stranded, knowing no one, if I should change my mind again. Promises on my part don't influence him now, and because of his new attitude I love him more. My feelings are mixed—wanting to please my parents, regain his parents' liking and make him happy. Why do I worry so much about other people's opinions? Is it an inferiority complex? I am often told that I have a superiority complex, but sometimes I wonder!

A friend at home, to whom I explained the situation, writes me that my parents are sure I won't stay out here, that I shall come home and marry Brian. I won't admit defeat. I like this country and intend to make a go of it here. I won't return home and have people say "I told you so." Do you think Brian is meant for me? I am deeply troubled and shall be grateful for your comment. T. F.

Dependent Personality Fighting Frustrations

DEAR T. F.: In making a digest of your letter, I've cut out much that indicates emotional confusion. But the over-all picture I get is this—you are a very dependent personality, blindly wanting and gamely trying to break out of the frustrations of that state, and now in special turmoil due to your discovery that a change of surroundings doesn't do the trick.

Being so dependent, you had an enormous problem (for you) back home, in loving a lad whom your snobbish parents delicately scorned—when he seemed most available, perhaps I should add. And to escape the wretched inner conflict caused by seeing him through their eyes, while also feeling ardently attached to him, you hastened abroad as soon as the idea could be translated into action—at Brian's suggestion, you say.

But was it Brian's idea to make that type of getaway from unpleasant nuances at home? Are you sure? The fact that you sailed alone, and that he is exactly where you left him, implies that you may have sparked the joint agreement to emigrate, and that he verbally fell in with the plan while under the spell of your presence—and later found various plausible reasons to delay his going, without recognizing the real reason, namely: that he isn't fighting deep frustrations, as you are. In short, he isn't driven by moods to run from this, or in search of that.

She Was Fleeing Problem Parents

WHILE LIVING at home with your parents, no doubt you disliked them and yourself increasingly, and in the new country you found joyous relief from this, at first, until childish "homesickness" began to cripple your attempts to make a new life in a new environment. Since then your thoughts have fixed on Brian as your salvation and you want him to come here because you hate to go back—not because of what people might say, but because your soul rejects the idea of becoming intimately involved with your parents' stifling views again.

I don't know that Brian is meant for you, but if he is a decent sort whose devotion is loyal and steady, despite the difficulties of coping with you and your parents, then I think marriage to him offers you as much sanctuary as you can hope to find. And it's just as well that he hasn't voyaged after you, because I believe you would have managed to mess up his life as well as your own, if you had the power to lead him by the nose. For advice, go back home and with psychiatric help work out your dependency dissatisfactions; and then if you and Brian see fit to emigrate, make a new start in this direction. M. H.

TODAY'S LENTEN SUPPER SUGGESTION

Crispy Fish Cutlets
Mashed Potatoes
Buttered Spinach
Salad Bowl
Bread and Butter
Cinnamon Applesauce with Crisp Cookies

CRISPY FISH CUTLETS: Ingredients: 1 cup milk, 3 tablespons farina, 2 tablespoons water, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 2 teaspoons finely grated onion, 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, 1 cup flaked cooked fish, ¾ cup cooked diced celery, 1 egg (slightly beaten), salt and pepper to taste, finely crushed cereal flakes.

Method: Scald milk, mix farina and water and add to hot milk, stirring well. Add salt, parsley, chives and butter or margarine; cook until thickened. Remove from heat and allow to cool. Add flaked fish, celery, egg, and salt and pepper to taste. Mix thoroughly. Add enough crushed cereal flakes to hold mixture together. Shape into desired size cutlets, roll in cereal flakes and saute in hot fat until brown. Makes 6 servings.

D. C. Has Two Maids With But a Single Thought: Cotton

FOR the first time in history, Washington will have two Maids of Cotton today.

One's in a bed with the flu at Georgetown Hospital and the other is flying in at 5 a. m. this morning at the National Airport to take over at all parties and fashion shows planned by the National Cotton Council.

Miss Elizabeth McGee, the 19-year-old South Carolina lass who was chosen as this year's good-will ambassador of he Cotton States, reacted to the energetic flu bug almost immediately after alighting from her plane at the airport during a drizzle Sunday.

Then the NCC, which annually chooses one of the Nation's prettiest belles to model its products, sent rush orders to Edmond, Okla., for their alternate Maid, a University of Oklahoma sophomore, Miss George Ann Hicks. She's 19, too, with brown hair and blue eyes.

"And we hope to gosh she's the same size," exclaims a Cotton Council representative.

The Council has always chosen an alternate just in case something like this should happen, but this is the first year they've ever had to call on her.

Miss Hicks will reign at the Congressional reception planned for today, 5:30-7:30 p. m. at the Statler Hotel—provided she stays well, that is.

Georgetown doctors report that Miss McGee will probably be ready to resume her duties in time to take a three-weeks' tour of England and France. She was scheduled to depart on this European trip Friday, but the Council says it can postpone the trip a few days if necessary.

Glorious Gloria Says Folks Eat Too Much—'Cept Her

By Ellen Buell Parry

By Ellen Buell Parry

ALTHOUGH she can't be called the most famous vegetarian in the world so long as a certain Irish nonegarian sticks to his carrots, Gloria Swanson rates our nomination as the best looking. And even acidulous old George Bernard Shaw wouldn't dispute the claim.

Visiting with the celebrated screen star in Washington yesterday, I was surprised to find how beautiful she has remained. Smartly dressed in a wine-colored dressmaker suit, black hat and accessories, Miss Swanson looked at least ten years younger than her fifty-odd. What's more, she still has the energy of a gal half her age.

"What is the secret of keeping so young?" I inquired enviously.

"Eat less—I'm a vegetarian," she replied immediately.

"When people have pains and aches, all one has to do is look down at their plates. You'll usually find a lot of gooey this, and gooey that, fried meat, fried potatoes—it's even likely they've been drinking martinis beforehand."

"What do you like to eat?" I asked.

"Last night for dinner I had raw celery, raw carrots, steamed string beans and broccoli. I got up this morning feeling full of health.

"For lunch yesterday, I had a beautiful fresh fruit salad with apples, apricots, strawberries, avacado, pistachio nuts on top. All through it were sprigs of mint. When I finished it, I felt happy in my tummy.

"Every illness," she continued, "comes from the way we eat. The human body, given half a chance, can throw off most anything. A pimple or a pain is a warning that something is wrong, but, instead of finding out what the trouble is, Americans usually run for a pill."

"Do you worry?" I continued, wanting to know all.

"I get concerned about things. I've made mistakes I've regreted. But, I bury the past and go on living. We're here to live, and I live. I have the good fortune of being able to throw things off as soon as I hit the pillow."

"Do you exercise?" Her perfect figure made me think she must.

"No. I probably should, but I hate to walk, and I don't have time for other exercise. My life is very full from the moment I wake up in the morning. However, instead of exercise I am fond of Finnish baths," she told me smiling.

"How does a Finnish bath differ from a Turkish one?"

"In a Turkish bath you have steam. In a Finnish bath, hot rocks, dry and warm, are used. You perspire 20 or 30 minutes, then you're rubbed down with salt, given a shower, and end up with a wonderful massage."

Her beauty secrets work! Her complexion is flawless, there isn't a wrinkle in her face, her big blue eyes sparkle with health and vitality! And her comeback movie, "Sunset Boulevard," will be released in August.

WHAT'S wrong with Washington's bachelor girls? Not one of them has been smart enough to make application to enter a flower arrangement in the National Flower and Garden Show to be held at the National Guard Armory next week, even though there's a special classification for "Bachelor's Girls Modern Table Arrangements."

Of course, the arrangement doesn't have to be made by a certified spinsterette. It can be made by a mother, a stepmother, a bachelor girl's best beau—anybody who knows what decorations might look well on a modern young woman's dining table.

You have until March 23, the day the show opens, to think up something bright and blooming for this class.

Netherlands 'Princess' Will Wed Physicist

The engagement of Miss Suzanne Buys, a secretary at The Netherlands Embassy, to Arthur A. Magill is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Buys of The Hague, Holland.

The bride-elect attended schools in Bandoeng, Java, where she was born. She was chosen Princess of The Netherlands for the Christmas Carnival in Birmingham, Ala., last year.

Mr. Magill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Magill of Germantown, Pa., is a physicist at the Bureau of Standards. A graduate of Haverford College, he served during the war as a Navy lieutenant.

The wedding will take place October 7 in Philadelphia.

Cottrell—Jenkins

Mrs. Brady Cottrell announces the engagement of her daughter, Mary Frances, to Edgar Joseph Jenkins, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Jenkins of Washington. The wedding is planned for April.

Miss Cottrell is a graduate of the Georgetown Visitation Convent. Her fiance, a Marine Corps veteran, was graduated from Duke University and the Georgetown University Law School.

Greek Singer Decorated at Embassy

ELENA NIKOLAIDI, royal court singer of Greece, was decorated yesterday at a tea at the Greek Embassy. The Order of the Golden Phoenix, awarded by King Paul of Greece, was presented to her by Ambassador Vassili G. Dendramis.

"Elena Nikolaidi is so outstanding in the world of music and art that no further commendation is necessary," he said. "Her talent and magnificent voice have won her the most flattering recognition from prominent critics the world over, establishing her as one of the greatest singers."

Later, the Ambassador remarked to a few of his guests that Mme. Nikolaidi is one of the few women ever to be decorated by the Greek Government. Thanos Mellos, husband of Mme. Nikolaidi, was among the guests at yesterday's ceremony. Another guest was Mrs. George McGhee, who is acting as chairman of the Washington committee for the benefit concert at Constitution Hall on April 3d, when Nikolaidi will sing.

Proceeds from the concert will go to the scholarship fund of Athens College and the American School in Greece.

Mme. Dendramis received her guests yesterday in a black frock designed by Desses. Tea and coffee were served in the dining room. The table was covered with lace and centered with a huge bowl of red roses.

. . . . reporting from Paris

ALL THE kaleidoscopic brilliance of Paris and the Spring openings forms exciting patterns, as Mary Jane Edwards of Woodward & Lothrop reports. Silhouette patterns, fabric patterns, accessory patterns . . . all individualized by the imaginations of top couturiers.

Speaking of silhouettes, she emphasizes the increasingly favored straight and narrow line, dramatizing width at the top. The cut of a sleeve or a neckline may be the way to width . . . both of them evidenced in Jean Desses' boat neckline Rodier wool. The bloused back, too, as you see it in Jacques Fath's suit gives that sense of top fullness. Sometimes a hat does it . . . notably the wide propeller brim that was one of Mrs. Edwards' favorites in Paris hats. Skirts are shorter . . . even Dior's magnificent Pompadour ball gown scoops upward at the front to show off pretty ankles. Belts worn lower, give the long waistline look.

AS TO FABRICS . . . Paris, not contented with one, is cutting them in layers . . . achieving great subtlety in color and texture combinations. Net coats . . . most ethereal newsmakers . . . are sometimes seven layers. A Dior dress in the collection Mrs. Edwards brought back to Woodward & Lothrop uses navy chiffon over white shantung. Jacques Fath's superlative fichu collar, pictured at upper right, wears five layers of pleated organdy.

Among sheer fabrics, stiffened cottons rank high. And Paris has fallen in love with pique. Even in little town suits . . . stark white pique stars in the Capital of Fashion. The petal skirt of a Dior dress in the collection margins its front panel with pique.

LOOKING into the kaleidoscope, you marvel at the bright new look of sun colors . . . from yellows to trenchant tangerines. Mary Jane Edwards brought back a brilliant example in Jeanne Lafaurie's bright orange, all-over draped, chiffon wool. Details are forever the cachet of the great designer . . . the horseshoe necklines of two Dior originals in Woodward & Lothrop's collection . . . the boat neckline of another . . . the flanged hipline of that same Dior design. Flowers are everywhere . . . a vast rose at the waistline of Dior's jacket dress . . . more roses printed on the taffeta of his Pompadour draped pleated chiffon. White collars in Paris range from "small boy" circlets to "nuns' cowls." Jacques Fath floats floor-length panels on a street-length dress. His hats and Jean Desses', chosen by Mary Jane Edwards, emphasize brightness and whiteness to staccato-note dark fashions.

FROM England, too, Woodward & Lothrop's import collection derives much fashion excitement. There Mrs. Edwards chose Digby Morton's "Flitter Mouse" caped suit and his "Maple Sugar" checked coat with voluminous sleeves, his harmonizing wool dress. Peter Russell's brown velour cabby coat and his beautifully moulded blue surah dress with ensembled hat and gloves . . . are further additions to a collection, exciting to see.

More and more, Mary Jane Edwards reports, Paris fashion likes the freedom and liveliness of American living . . . more and more, after wartime doing-without-it, America appreciates the French accent on clothes to be worn in Washington or any American city.

Skin Aid for Children Launched

Plans to aid school children who are handicapped by disfiguring blemishes were revealed here yesterday by Lydia O'Leary, creator of "Covermark."

Miss O'Leary is visiting Washington during a cross-country tour marking the twentieth anniversary of her discovery of the cream which has benefitted thousands of men, women and children.

At a press conference at the Mayflower Hotel she outlined her plans for the future. The Lydia O'Leary Foundation, a nonprofit organization, was recently established and provides "Covermark" free of charge for one year to all school children with skin blemishes in the State of Massachusetts.

Miss O'Leary pointed out that doctors and psychologists today recognize the deep-rooted psychological handicap of facial blemishes in the normal development of a growing child. Through the establishment of the foundation, she hopes to enable all youngsters so burdened to lead more normal, happy lives through the use of "Covermark."

Her discovery of the product—a skinlike cream that conceals birthmarks, vitiligo (brown and white patches), burns, post operative scars and other skin discolorations — was accidental. Just out of college, more than 29 years ago, Miss O'Leary decided on an artist's career. In her studies of oil painting, she stumbled on a discovery that led her into her present field of endeavor.

Coloring an iris, she made one petal too dark and touched it up with a lighter shade which concealed the dark purple perfectly. Pondering this in the light of her chemistry studies in school, Miss O'Leary wondered why a cream could not be made that would conceal skin blemishes.

Obtaining the aid of a chemist and a dermatologist, Lydia O'Leary invested $25 in materials and shortly developed the product that is known as "Covermark."

Chiffon Sweater Blouse Smart Thing to Wear

In Paris last summer I thought the smartest blouse I saw was the double chiffon sweater blouse. I brought some back with me—so did a lot of other women and I know I've loved wearing mine.

Now these have been copied and adapted, and it looks as if these chiffon sweater blouses would become as great a vogue here as they were in Paris. They are made of two layers of chiffon—usually dark over light—as navy over pink or white—with rib-knit collar, cuffs and waistband of wool or silk just like those on sweaters.

Sounds extreme to you? But they're so smart and so soft and pretty to wear!

MRS. GEORGIA NEESE CLARK, left, Treasurer of the United States, congratulates Mrs. Hyman C. Weisman on her reelection as president of the B'nai B'rith Women's Supreme Council. Mrs. Clark was guest speaker at the luncheon meeting of the council held at the Mayflower Hotel yesterday

B'nai B'rith Hears Treasurer Of U. S.; Winds Up Conference

MRS. GEORGIA NEESE CLARK, Treasurer of the United States, yesterday congratulated members of the B'nai B'rith Women's Supreme Council on their pledge to buy at least $2,126,250 worth of series E bonds next year. The membership of close to 115,000 women has pledged to buy a $25 bond apiece during the coming year.

Speaking at the luncheon session on the last day of a four-day meeting at the Mayflower Hotel, Mrs. Clark said that thrift is a basic American virtue and that women are considered particularly adept at making ends meet and having a bit left over for savings.

This country has become what it has "because people saved up enough to invest in other people's dreams," she said.

American women owe a great responsibility to the democratic way of life, the Treasurer said, and "democracy is a fulltime job for a fulltime citizen."

Mrs. Nancy Robinson of the Bond Division of the Treasury, another honor guest at the luncheon, also congratulated the group on its past record of bond purchases, reminding them that "It's not the duration of one's life but the donation that counts."

Newly elected officers were installed following the luncheon. Officers for the coming year are: president, Mrs. Hyman C. Weisman (re-elected); vice presidents, Mrs. Maurice Bisgyer (re-elected), Mrs. M. A. Temerson and Mrs. Charles Solevich, and treasurer, Mrs. David Rolontz. Mrs. Bisgyer is from Washington.

Among guests at the head table were Frank Goldman, president of B'nai B'rith; Judge Shalom Kasam of Israel, Maurice Bisgyer, executive secretary of B'nai B'rith, and Harry Seamons and John Matkos of the State Department, two of Monday's speakers.

Mrs. Theodore Shapiro, president of the Argo Chapter of Washington, presented to the national organization a plaque given to the local group by Mme. Eliahu Elath, wife of the Ambassador of Israel, on behalf of an organization in Israel benefited by the B'nai B'rith women's group. The plaque will be hung in the Henry Monsky Memorial Building soon to be erected by B'nai B'rith.

Awards for membership increases in Districts of the Women's Supreme Council were also made following the luncheon.

New Book on Georgetown, Fresh Off the Press, Ready for Tour

A new book on Georgetown, issued in connection with the annual Georgetown House Tour on March 31 and April 1, is fresh off the press. Packed with lore of the community which, in early days, referred to Washington as its "largest suburb," the guide book gives the story of Georgetown during its proud shipping days when it was the center of trade for tobacco merchants, when residents entertained at grand social functions.

It will be on sale to visitors during the two-day tour when 16 houses will be open through the courtesy of their owners, proceeds going to the social welfare department of St. John's Episcopal Church, Georgetown Parish.

Brief descriptions of the historical background and architectural features of each of the houses has been prepared by Edith Porter Lapish after much digging into old records and files. Fine line drawings have been executed by W. Kingsley Utteridge. Another feature of the book is his map of Georgetown giving the picturesque old names of streets in addition to their present day prosaic titles.

Historic mansions, small houses and one modern house give a variety for visitors who are interested in exteriors, interiors with beautiful old furniture, rugs, paintings and, in several cases, family heirlooms.

Book Review

Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin will review "South Pacific" and Billie Burke's new book, "Feather on My Nose," for the Book Review Group of the D. C. Branch, National League of American Pen Women, at 8 p. m. Friday at the branch studio at 1851 Columbia rd. nw.

Presbytery Approves Two New Proposals

The Presbytery of Washington city yesterday gave its approval to two proposals which would change the government of the church.

Action came at a meeting at Westminster Presbyterian Church, 434 7th st. sw.

Under the first proposal, submitted to the Presbytery by the General Assembly, highest body of the church, a General Council to carry on the work of the denomination would be named.

The council would handle administration, budget and finance, promotion, the total church program, and public relations between General Assembly meetings. It would be composed of officers of the General Assembly and two delegates from each of 12 regions to be established throughout the country.

The second proposal calls for establishment of a permanent nominating committee to name officers of the General Assembly. This would not bar nominations from the floor of the General Assembly.

Both proposals must be returned to the General Assembly for final action at its meeting in Cincinnati this spring.

The Presbytery also approved a resolution calling upon President Truman not to reappoint a successor to Myron C. Taylor, former presidential envoy to the Vatican.

Wrists Cut, Man, 62, Dies Of Apoplexy

The death of Herbert D. Alexander, 62, who was found Sunday night with his throat and wrists slashed, was ruled due to natural causes by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald yesterday.

Dr. MacDonald said an autopsy showed death resulted from apoplexy. He said he could determine that the slashes caused the apoplexy so had issued a "natural causes" certificate.

Alexander, father of Herbert D. Alexander, jr., 24, accused strangler of his wife and baby, was found slashed in the yard of his daughter, Mrs. Mildred Hughes, of 7065 Oxon Hill rd., Oxon Hill, Md.

He was taken to Providence Hospital and later transferred to Gallinger Hospital where he died at 8:45 a. m. yesterday.

His son, a Navy veteran, is awaiting trial in Alexandria in the strangulation slayings of his wife and baby daughter in October, 1948.

Two Inquests Set Today in Traffic Deaths

Inquests at the morgue into two traffic deaths have been scheduled today by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald.

At 11:30 a. m., a coroner's jury will hear evidence in the death of Joseph Clarke Sims, 70, of 3300 16th st. nw.

Sims, a drug store employe, was struck by a car on February 10 at 16th st. and Park rd. nw. He died at Emergency Hospital four hours after the accident. The driver, according to police, was Mrs. Lee B. Guthrie, 56, of 4301 Argyle ter. nw.

At noon an inquest will be held into the traffic death of Roland Summer Robbins, 70, manager of the Trans-Lux Theater, who died Monday afternoon at Garfield Hospital.

Robbins, who lived at 6215 14th st. nw., was struck by an automobile March 7 at Piney Branch rd. and Sheridan st. nw. Police said the car was operated by Dr. Charles H. Wolohon, 55, a physician, of 500 Underwood st. nw.

Auto Tags Go on Sale In Virginia

Virginia automobile license tags for 1950 go on sale today, and two nearby communities are also marketing local vehicle plates required by law.

Both State and local tags must be displayed on vehicles by midnight, April 15.

Both Alexandria and Arlington require that local tags be displayed along with the State plates. In Fairfax County, and the city of Falls Church, however, only the State licenses are required.

In Maryland, 1950 license "tabs" which have been on sale since March 1, can legally be attached to license plates today. They must be displayed no later than midnight, March 31. In the District tags are now being issued. They also must be affixed by the end of this month.

The following locations have been designated as tag agencies in nearby Virginia:

Arlington—State tags: Division of Motor Vehicles, 501 S. Glebe rd.; Greenwood Sales and Services, 4505 Lee hwy., and Crockett's Service Station, Wilson blvd. at Franklin rd.

County tags: the above three establishments, also Arlington County Vehicle License Division, 2043 Wilson blvd.; Filene Co-Op Department Store, 4025 S. 18th st.; Jefferson Cleaners, 507 S. 23d st.; Westover Service Center, 5875 N. Washington blvd., and the Moncure Agency, N. Washington blvd. at Lee hwy.

Alexandria—State tags: Division of Motor Vehicles, 130-32 N. Pitt st.

Alexandria city tags: office of commissioner of revenue, Cameron st. side of City Hall.

Fairfax County—State tags: office of Walter T. Oliver, opposite county courthouse on Payne st., Fairfax.

On the Town

By Georganne Williamson

FOR the pleasure of sophisticates, there's a dancer of new and eloquent style at the Statler Embassy Room. Georgie Tapps is a rugged-looking individual who knows his dancing intimately. He combines tap and ballet and modern. The result, his own original choreography, is unusually expressive.

Tapps

His work requires a great amount of knowledge of his field on Tapps' part, and a fairly sophisticated audience. But Tapps' is not to be caught napping on the showmanship end; there's usually a windup with enough feathers flying to please even those who can't see anything but a bulldozer.

Interpretive dancing is his forte. With a waltz of Chopin for inspiration, or the St. Louis Blues, Tapps is right in the spirit of the piece. He usually delights the guests by impromptu interpretations of several songs they call out. The spontaneous nature of his dance originations becomes obvious then. He even performed credibly to music he had never heard before: "The Third Man."

Al Donahue, witty Irish bandleader, is doing his usual sanguine job of interpreting music, guests and shows. He's become an oldtime friend to the patrons of the Embassy Room, and the humorous, lighthearted musician manages to blend the elements of the room to the benefit of all.

Rosalind Courtright is the throaty blond singer of the show. A beautiful dresser with short, light hair, she likes to end up the show with a community sing.

A GOOD eating bet during Lent is Water Gate Inn. The Pennsylvvania Dutch eating place with the homey atmosphere and delicious food is only a few minutes from downtown. What is still better, there's always plenty parking space there. Water Gate is at the end of a dead-end street facing the Potomac. Around it is almost a full block of parking space for Water Gate patrons only.

Wrecked Plane

Bomb Slayer Of 23 in Air To Be Hanged

Quebec, Que., March 14 (AP).—Jeweler J. Albert Guay was convicted and sentenced today to be hanged June 23 for murdering his wife by time-bombing a plane that carried her and 22 others to death.

Quay

The jury returned its verdict 17 minutes after receiving the case from Judge Albert Sevigny.

The prosecution stressed Guay's love for a 19-year-old waitress, Marie-Ange Robitaille, and a $10,000 life insurance policy on his wife, Mrs. Rita Morel Guay, 28, as the motives for his blasting of a Canadian Pacific airliner September 9 on a flight east from Quebec. All aboard the plane perished.

Guay, 32, took the conviction stolidly, with bowed head.

Judge Sevigny wept as he finished his three-hour charge to the jury: "The law of God and of her country gave Mrs. Albert Guay the right to live. Nothing escapes the law of God. You have to fulfill the law of your country."

The 68-year-old judge was so The plane blew up in flight near the St. Lawrence River, 40 miles northeast of Quebec.

Among those killed were three New York executives of the Kennecott Copper Corp., President E. T. Stannard, President-designate Arthur D. Storke, and Vice President R. J. Parker.

U. S. Diplomats To Meet in Rome On March 22

Chief American diplomats in Russia and western Europe will meet in Rome March 22 to discuss American policies toward Europe, the State Department announced last night.

The three-day session will be another in the series of regional conferences which American diplomats have been holding to coordinate American policies.

Attending the Rome meeting will be Alan G. Kirk, Ambassador to Moscow; James C. Dunn, Ambassador to Rome; Lewis W. Douglas, Ambassador to London; David K. E. Bruce, Ambassador to Paris; Charles E. Bohlen, Minister at the Paris Embassy; John J. McCloy, High Commissioner for Germany; George W. Perkins, Assistant Secretary of State for European Affairs, and W. Averill Harriman, roving Ambassador for the Economic Cooperation Administration.

'Stable Humor' On Air Brings Threat by Coy

Norman, Okla., March 14 (U.P.).—Chairman Wayne Coy of the Federal Communications Commission threatened possible Federal action tonight against radio and television stations which insist on featuring "Livery Stable Humor" and "Hawkers of Terror."

Speaking before the University of Oklahoma's annual radio conference, Coy said it would be "far better" for the broadcasters to clean up their own programs than have the commission saddled with "such delicate matters as good taste."

He explained that while the FCC is prohibited—"and rightly so"—from censoring radio and television shows, it does have the responsibility of seeing that "stations operate in the public interest."

"Poor taste is not in the public interest," he asserted.

Coy urged citizens who are disturbed about the possible effect of crime programs on children to "combine for organized study and action."

The commission and Members of Congress, he said, have received an "interesting amount" of mail and other comment protesting the "trend toward bad taste" in radio and television as well as shows featuring "Merchants of Death and Hawkers of Horror."

"Of course we do not require any complaint to learn about the trend toward bad taste, particularly by some of these comedians and MC's (masters of ceremonies)," he said. "Anyone who has eyes or ears can learn for himself what is going on."

He said many broadcasters would cut some material going out over the air, but that they "feel helpless" when it comes to them from the networks.

"When a comedian gets so big that his network can no longer handle him, then we have a case of the tail wagging the dog," Coy said.

He said the "boy who used to express himself with chalk on a wall" is now being given a television screen.

"This type of comedian is still peddling livery stable humor," he said, and the result is "off-color television."

He cited complaints about crime programs passed on to the FCC by Senators Herbert Lehman (D., N. Y.), Scott Lucas (D., Ill.), and other individuals and organizations.

POSTLUDE

Heifetz Performance Flawless; Miss Williams' Piano Delights

By Paul Hume

Heifetz played last night in Constitution Hall.

Few people today need to be told that Heifetz's first name is Jascha or that he is a violinist. There is a legend grown up around this great artist that makes identification beyond the word "Heifetz" unnecessary.

The legend stems from a kind of violin playing we hear from only one man. That playing is always beautiful, untroubled, apparently effortless, and immaculate in poise and technical results.

The program for the evening was, briefly put: sonatas by Beethoven and Debussy, a Chaconne of Vitali, and five short pieces of the usual kind: several juicy, one pyrotechnical, and one fast rhythm number.

The playing throughout the evening was precisely what you expect: flawless. Vitali's Chaconne, having been swollen in performance by the entire St. Louis Symphony last Saturday, returned with pleasure and corresponding beauty, to its normal size. Nowhere all evening was Heifetz's technique more in demand or more equal to the task.

Beethoven's A Major sonata, named for Rudolph Kreutzer, was equally facile in Heifetz's account. The fact that it is completely different from Vitali in style, content and character did not disturb either the artist nor the delighted audience. Heifetz played it without regard for its granite-like opening movement, refusing the piano its rightful place in the picture, so that the real power of the music had no chance to speak. But Heifetz has played this way for years and is certainly not going to change now.

While this kind of music was being made in Constitution Hall very different things were happening in the Institute of Contemporary Arts. Jean Williams of the faculty of Sarah Lawrence College in New York, played a remarkable piano program there, for the sheer love of making music come to life.

No Beethoven or Debussy graced the program, but there were sonatas by Norman Dello Joio, Edmund Haines and Andre Singer. You never heard of these composers? Well how would you if you never go anywhere but to Constitution Hall?

The piano recital may well have resembled some of the programs on which Beethoven sonatas first received hearings. It was an occasion when musicians and those who understand music gathered to hear some new and some old music which the Heifetzes today do not play. And how else is our great old music, and the new work being written nowadays by young American composers to be heard if not from those who understand it and can play it?

Miss Williams will never play in Constitution Hall. But her playing is a kind that would make people in Constitution Hall listen if they had a chance. And so is the music.

2 Toy Train Firms Battle in Patent Suit

Baltimore, March 14 (AP).—Two of the country's leading manufacturers of toy electric trains became litigants today in a patent infringement suit filed in Federal Court.

The suit was brought by the Lionel Corp., a New York concern, against the A. C. Gilbert Co., described as a Maryland corporation.

Lionel alleged that Gilbert had infringed on patent letters covering a remote control system. The suit said Lionel had obtained the patent in 1939, as assignee of Joseph L. Bonanno, and that Gilbert had manufactured and sold toy trains embodying the patent.

Our Income Tax

The poor are really wealthy and . . . The wealthy ones are poor . . . According to the income tax . . . Our country must endure . . . For if we earn a little bit . . . The tax is rather small . . . While otherwise our Uncle Sam . . . Will ask for nearly all . . . It may not seem so fair to some . . . And yet what else could be . . . A better democratic plan . . . Of true equality? . . . Each citizen should do his part . . . And pay his proper share . . . For unity and happiness . . . and freedom everywhere . . . To overcome the greedy and . . . To conquer every strife . . . And try to give this world of ours . . . A better way of life.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Well, Whadda Ya Know! It's Illegal

A motorcycle policeman patrolling a stretch of Pennsylvania ave. se. noticed a car weaving from lane to lane.

Pulling up alongside, the officer saw that with her left hand the woman at the wheel was eating a stalk of celery and with her right was marking her place in a pamphlet that lay on the seat beside her.

"That's no way to drive a car," remonstrated the cop.

"Mind your own business," snapped the woman. "I don't need you to tell me how to drive a car."

"Hey, look," replied the startled policeman, "I'm trying to give you a break but you're making it awfully tough. Do you want me to charge you with failing to give full time and attention to your driving?"

It was the woman's turn to be surprised. "Is that a violation of the law?" she asked.

"Yes, madam," replied the patient policeman. "When you're driving your car, you're supposed to give it your full time and attention."

"I'm sorry," said the woman meekly. "I didn't know. I'll finish my celery and put the book away."

For a policeman, it's all in a day's work.

SAM CLEMENS DEPT.

I am no longer ashamed of myself for not having been able to identify the story of the long-winded preacher and the author who finally stole some money out of the collection plate.

Shame has turned to pride. I said I thought the author was Mark Twain—and my readers agree. They cite various authorities (and various versions of the story) but everybody agrees it was Twain.

Mrs. Laura Crossley of 4512 Lily Ponds dr. says Twain told the story at a dinner, to explain why he didn't want to make a long speech. Bob Smith of Arlington, Va., says you'll find the tale included in the 1923 edition of "Mark Twain's Speeches" (Page 222).

Bill Popham of 1406 Isted rd., Glen Burnie, Md., makes a hobby of tracking down such items. He finds that two books credit Twain with the yarn: "When to Stop Talking," by J. B. Duryea, and "Secrets of Closing Sales," by Charles B. Roth.

Mrs. R. E. Smith of McLean, Va., points out that the story is included in Bennett Cerf's "Try and Stop Me"—which I should have remembered myself.

Elizabeth Williams of 3600 39th st. nw. takes a public speaking course given by the American Institute of Banking. One of the textbooks for the course is by Dr. Lionel Crocker, professor of speech at Denison University—and page 53 includes the Twain story, using as a punch-line the fact the humorist swiped one dollar out of the collection plate.

Mrs. Brad Millar of 2011 Luzerne ave., Silver Spring, Md., cites "The Pocketbook," published by the Prince Georges Post in July, 1949, as proof that Twain stole 25 cents (after planning to contribute $1000).

Mrs. Miriam Morningstar of Gaithersburg, Md., says "The Playboy's Handbook," edited by William Alan Brooks, disagrees. Twain planned to give $400, but after the preacher talked too long he filched 10 cents from the collection plate.

But no District Liner really rang a bell for me until I heard from Mrs. Carmela Hibben of 2518 N. Harrison st., and Ed T. Carr of 1631 N. Buchanan st., both in Arlington, Va.

They referred me to "The Favorite Works of Mark Twain" (Garden City Publishing Co.), which is on my own bookshelf—and undoubtedly the volume in which I first read the story.

In the front end of the book there's a preface titled "In Homage to Mark Twain" (by Owen Wister). In his version, Twain decided the cause was so worthy that all the cash in his pocket would be insufficient. So he resolved to write a big check.

But the longer the preacher spoke, the more Twain cut down the size of his proposed contribution, and when the collection plate was finally passed, he stole 10 cents. So, as far as this column is concerned, 10 cents will remain the official amount taken.

But perhaps the best commentary on all this hubbub about identifying a story that stumped the Library of Congress came from H. Jayne Greene of 2140 N st. nw., who wrote:

"I looked and looked for the story, without success. But the search led me back to 'The Best American Humorous Short Stories,' 'A Treasury of American Folklore,' 'The Enjoyment of Laughter,' and all the Twain on our bookshelves. I had a wonderful time—so thanks for being a literary agent . . . provocateur, that is."

MID-SEASON FORM

When the Nats were hitting those 18 homers a day in batting practice, Herbie (Wondrous Nats) Heft was in seventh heaven.

But when the exhibition games began and our pitchers started walking a dozen enemy batsmen per game, Herbie mourned:

"Looks like the standard score this year will be 19 to 18."

NEWS NOTE

Opponents of Transit Radio in streetcars and buses have complained to the Federal Communications Commission that the service is a misuse of broadcast frequencies.

As a result, the FCC seems to have undertaken a serious investigation. Forty-five FM stations engaged in this type of "broadcasting" throughout the Nation have been asked to submit copies of the contracts under which they're operating.

WINCHELL GOT SCOOPED

It may be denied by the State Department, but this reporter is now in a position to reveal—exclusively—that Drew Pearson's cat has just had kittens. (You'll probably see them listed in the Give-Aways in a few weeks.)

South's Racial School Pact Is Challenged

Annapolis, March 14 (AP).—The Court of Appeals was asked today to decide whether Maryland can use a Southern educational compact to bolster its policy of segregating white and Negro students.

It can do so and still provide equal educational opportunities to Negroes, argued the State.

It cannot, asserted lawyers for a 19-year-old Baltimore Negro girl, who wants to attend the University of Maryland Nursing School.

The university flouted the Constitution by rejecting the girl's application last year, the court was told.

"The Universtiy of Maryland seems determined to maintain its policy of exclusion of Negroes solely because of race or color without making any serious effort to meet even the minimum requirements of "separate but equal rights," the girl's attorneys charged.

Although whites and Negroes may be "separated," their opportunities must be substantially "equal," Federal and State courts have held.

The compact for Southern regional education provides for higher education of whites or Negroes of 10 Dixie States at both jointly-owned and State institutions.

Esther McCready of Baltimore wants none of it.

She applied February 1, 1949, for admission to the Maryland School of Nursing. She went to court, seeking an order to compel the university to act on her application. The university suggested she try Meharry Medical College at Nashville, Tenn., under the regional compact. Her traveling expenses would be paid and it would cost her no more than attending the Maryland school.

The Baltimore Supreme Bench heard the case. Both sides agreed she was turned down by Maryland "solely because of the fact that she is a member of the Negro race." The court ruled the State could send her to Meharry and abide by the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution.

Truman Asks Gray to Take Atomic Post

By Drew Pearson

President Truman has been trying to persuade Gordon Gray, one of the best Secretaries of the Army the War Department has seen, to remain on in Washington as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Gordon Gray

Secretary Gray had agreed to become president of the University of North Carolina. But the President has explained to Gray that the Atomic Commission badly needs a chairman who has both public and congressional confidence plus ability as an administrator, and has urged him to delay his return to North Carolina for at least one year.

Millionaire Lobbyist

Busiest lobbyist on Capitol Hill these days is genial Senator Bob Kerr, the Oklahoma oil millionaire, who is trying to sell a bill costing American consumers an estimated 506 million dollars a year. Kerr's bill would exempt most of the Nation's natural-gas sales from Federal regulation.

Kerr has some disarming techniques. He selects a Senator for whom he has done a favor, and in his pleasant, easy drawl confides: "Ah'd like to tell you about my bill. Lots of false propaganda being passed out about it. This talk about rasing gas rates, now. That's absurd! Why, the producers are governed by 10- to 20-year contracts."

When Senators say they cannot support his bill, Kerr amiably requests: "Ah'd appreciate it as a personal favor then, if you wouldn't fight it."

The Senator from Oklahoma is all the more effective because he has sometimes fought on the consumers' side of the fence, namely in the Montana public-power scrap. Now he is sidling up to Senators he helped then and begging their neutrality.

Another Kerr lobbying technique is to invite newsmen who oppose his bill to his office for a heart-to-heart talk. The Senator is not angry. He is the gracious fatherly type trying to protect the reporter from evil and untruth. At the height of the "conversation," the Senator pulls a Bible from a desk drawer and quotes from it in support of his arguments.

Note—Senator Kerr owns an estimated 100 million dollars in natural gas reserves and has an annual gross income of 12 million dollars.

Tydings for President

A strange Romeo has showed up under White House balcony singing love songs. He is dappr Senator Millard Tydings of Maryland, who used to make sarcastic slurs against the Administration but now devotes his tongue to the Truman cause.

Behind this quiet reformation, however, Tyding is playing a cagey political game to get his own foot in the White House. By posing as a loyal Administration supporter, he hopes to slip his hat into the 1952 presidential ring.

The shrewd Maryland Senator let the cat out of the bag the other day by disclosing his ambition to close friends. He admitted going along with the Administration, in part, so he can move into Truman's shoes in case Truman doesn't run again. Tydings even indicated he would like Senator Paul Douglas of Illinois as a running mate.
